FELL UNDER WHEELS OF TRAIN

Ephraim Reed Had Narrow Escape From Being Killed This Morning

Ephraim Reed, residing in Southboro, had a narrow escape from being killed while attempting to board a moving train at the Middlesex street station about 7 o'clock this morning. The man escaped with a broken left leg.

Just as the outward bound Ayer train was pulling out of the station Reed ran through the street and made a jump for one of the cars but he came in contact with one of the gate posts and was thrown to the ground. People who anticipated an accident shouted as they saw the man running and the engineer succeeded in bringing the train to a standstill before it had gone one car length.

Several of the employes rusned to the assistance of Reed, who at this time had one of his legs across one of the rails. The ambulance was summoned and the man was taken to St. John's hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a broken left leg.

THE CITY PRIMARIES TOMORROW

Voters Should Make it a Point to Turn Out and Vote for Most Competent Candidates

The city primaries or preliminary city election will be held tomorrow and it is very important that each and every voter should know how to vote without rendering his ballot invalid. The polls will open at 12 m. and will close at 8 p. m. You can vote for only two candidates for the municipal council and three for the school board. If you vote for any more you simply spoil your ballot. So many queries have been received at this office and also at the city clerk's office relative to this matter that it seems necessary to make it very plain as to how many candidates one can vote for.

Because of the bungling count made in precinct 3 of ward 2 at the state election the following notice signed by the city clerk and approved by the commissioner of finance has been sent out to the wardens and clerks:

"Dear Sir:—I am directed by the commissioner of finance to request that in the absence of any of the precinct officers, particularly the clerk or warden, at the opening of the polls at the preliminary election to be held on Tuesday, November 19, that due care be used in the selection of men to perform the duties of precinct officers to the end that a true and proper return of votes may be made to the city clerk.

"Respectfully,

"Stephen Flynn, City Clerk."

There are 14 candidates for aldermen and 11 for school committee. Their names have been published and republished in these columns. A great many seem to have the impression that candidates for aldermen are running for certain departments. An alderman cannot be assigned to a department except by vote of a majority of the municipal council.

School Board Meeting

The school board will hold a regular meeting tomorrow night. The board has adopted the policy of meeting twice a month and the meetings are held on the first and third Tuesdays of the month. It is not believed that there will be business on hand for all of these meetings and some will be called perhaps only to adjourn.

Could Hardly Hear

Senses of Taste and Smell Were Also Greatly Impaired

"I was afflicted with catarrh," writes Eugene Forbes, Lebanon, Kansas. "I took several different medicines, giving each a fair trial, but grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I was about to give up in despair, but concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking three bottles of this medicine I was cured, and have not had any return of the disease."

100 TON VESSEL LOST

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 18.—The schooner E. B. Marvin, formerly the Gloucester fishing schooner Mollie Adams, was lost with all on board while bound from Perth Amboy, N. J., to Halifax, in the opinion of her owners here.

The Marvin, which was a 166-ton vessel carrying three men besides Capt. Cox, left Perth Amboy Oct. 9. She left New London Oct. 11 and has not been heard from since.

Officials connected with the marine and fisheries department here believe the Marvin is the vessel reported by wireless to have foundered in lat. 40 degrees 22 minutes north, lon. 60 degrees 45 minutes west, where it is still a menace to navigation. A gale swept the Nova Scotia coast three weeks ago and the Marvin's loss is generally believed to have occurred at that time.

As the Mollie Adams, with Capt. Col. Jacobs as her skipper, the Marvin was well known in New England waters some years ago. She was built at Kennebunk, Me., in 1884.

BULGARIAN ATTACK PROVED FAILURE

Unable to Make Any Great Impression on Turkish Line of Fortifications Defending Constantinople

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The first Bulgarian attack on the Turkish line of fortifications defending Constantinople at Tchatalja has failed. The whole of the Bulgarian army was engaged. Every available man was moved to the front from the Bulgarian forces investing Adrianople and these were relieved by Servian troops. The Bulgarians, with all their artillery began their advance on Tchatalja on Saturday and continued the bombardment of the works throughout Sunday. They, however, found the Turkish positions so strong that they could not make any impression on them and for the moment at least have been compelled to give up the attempt, the firing, according to a despatch from Constantinople, having ceased this morning. Observers who have been to the Turkish front agree that the capture of the Tchatalja lines must prove a task of tremendous difficulty. The days the Bulgarian troops were compelled to use for the bringing up of guns, ammunition and reinforcements were taken advantage of by the Turks to place themselves into entrenchments and to place their guns in position, giving them a distinct advantage over the attackers. The Turkish soldiers, too, who have been so shaken by their previous defeats appear to have been steadied and thus far have made a most determined stand. The Bulgarian troops made their main attack to the east of Tchatalja, their object being to break through at the point where the railway to Constantinople makes a loop. The strong forts, the marshes and the guns of the Turkish warships had evidently discouraged them from making an attempt to turn either flank of the Turkish lines.

Should the Bulgarians be succeeded in their effort to break through the Turkish left center, Nazim Pasha's Ottoman army will be pushed back to the northeast and its retirement upon their capital cut off.

The Turks seem to have no hope of rolling back the Bulgarian forces but if they succeed in holding the lines of Tchatalja both the military and diplomatic situation will undergo a marked change, for a long defense of the front will probably compel the Bulgarians to enter into negotiations without capturing the Turkish capital.

In Albania, on the other side of European Turkey, the opposing armies have again come to grips and, as the Turkish commander had predicted, another battle is in progress today in the vicinity of the fortress of Monastir.

FIERCE FIGHT FOR THE POSSESSION OF THE TURKISH FORTRESS OF MONASTIR

BELGRADE, Nov. 18.—A fierce fight for the possession of the Turkish fortress of Monastir continues between the Servians and Greeks on the one side and the Turkish garrison on the other. The defenders of the city knowing that their line of communication with Ochrida on which they would naturally retreat in case of defeat, has been cut, are fighting desperately. During the first day's battle 250 Servians were killed and wounded.

The country around the fortress is a morass and the attackers are frequently up to their knees in mud. In spite of the difficulties, however, the Servians succeeded in a series of night attacks in carrying the two important heights of Oblakovo and Kochista, 3600 feet high.

THE DEATHS FROM CHOLERA ARE REPORTED TO BE ABOUT 5000 DAILY

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The liveliest imagination would be unable to depict the frightful conditions existing among the Turkish troops at Hademkeui on the lines of Tchatalja, according to Major Zenger, the war correspondent of the Tageblatt. He says thousands of dead and dying lie along the road. Men with stretchers are engaged day and night gathering the dead for burial and the wounded for transport to the hospitals.

He continues:

"Wherever I looked I saw the distorted faces and stiffened hands of the wounded stretched forward appealing for help. The nearer I approached the railroad station the sadder grew the picture.

"The railroad station itself is just a field full of dead. I walked among piles of corpses and among masses of groaning sick men who will soon find relief in death.

"A train about to start was overcrowded with cholera stricken men. Many of those in the cars died soon after they got on board.

"According to authentic information the deaths from cholera number 5000 daily along the line of Tchatalja."

Another despatch from Kustendji, Rumania, says a thousand cholera cases and 200 deaths occurred daily among the Turkish reserves at San Stafanox, where the sick and the dead lie indiscriminately on the street.

BANDS OF ARNAUT TRIBESMEN ARE RAIDING AND PILLAGING VILLAGES

BELGRADE, Servia, Nov. 18.—Bands of Arnaut tribesmen, armed with rifles and in possession of two machine guns taken from the Turkish troops during their flight after the battle of Kirchevo are raiding and pillaging the surrounding villages and devastating the country as far as Gostivar to the southwest of Uskub. The Servian commander has sent out patrols of troops to search for the looters.

The Turkish troops before leaving Prisrend sold their rifles and ammunition for a few cents or bartered them away for coffee, sugar or bread and in this way many of the tribesmen came into possession of arms.

FIRING WAS HEARD THIS MORNING FROM THE DIRECTION OF TCHATALJA

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—Firing was audible this morning from the direction of the Tchatalja lines. It is thought probable, however, that the great battle begun yesterday continues but the direction of the wind prevents the roar of the cannon being heard here. Detachments of bluejackets and marines were landed from the warships of the international squadron early today. They occupied the foreign embassies, consulates and postoffices, the banks, the hospitals and the schools of the respective colonies. The landing of the foreign sailors attracted considerable attention, crowds of Turkish inhabitants gathering in front of the embassies and looking with curiosity at the men's rifles plied at the entrances.

GRAND TRUNK ROAD

Trouble With New Haven Not Mentioned

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—No mention of the New Haven-Grand Trunk situation was made today when the Interstate commerce commission's hearing on the New Haven lines was resumed before Special Examiner Ward Prouty. Complaints of delays in freight shipments over the Maine Central railroad were considered. It was shown by reports of Supt. F. E. Sanborn of the Maine Central that of 14 shipments from Lynn, Mass., to Auburn, Me., 75 per cent were four days or more on the road. The normal time was three days. Mr. Sanborn's report also showed that shipments from Boston to Farmington, Me., frequently reached their destination sooner than shipments for the same place originating at Portland. This was said to be due to loading delays at Portland. Transfer delays at Monson Junction, Me., were also discussed.

George S. Hobbs, second vice president of the Maine Central, told of reductions that had been made in switching charges and said that a large part of the switching at Portland was now done free of charge. In the last ten years Mr. Hobbs said the road had spent $11,000,000 on improvements and there is yet to be expended a further appropriation of more than $2,000,000.

J. T. Marchand, counsel for the interstate commerce commission, asked for monthly reports on late trains, for one year previous to Nov. 1 from the Boston & Maine, the New York, New Haven & Hartford, the Maine Central and the Boston & Albany railroads to be presented at the hearing later.

TWO MEN INJURED

One Received a Fracture of the Leg and the Other Was Hurt About the Ankle

Hugh Leary, residing at 68 C street and employed by Doughs, the contractor, was painfully injured this morning when he fell from a staging where he was at work at the corner of Holyrood avenue and Laurel street. He received a fracture of the right leg and was removed to the Lowell hospital in the ambulance.

At 11.25 o'clock this forenoon the ambulance was called to the Tremont & Suffolk mill, where a man named Edw. Lynn, aged about 80 years, had painfully injured his right ankle while at his work. The injured man was removed to his home, 19 James street.

JUDGE NATHAN D. PRATT PRESIDED

At Jury Waived Session of the Superior Court Which Opened in Lowell Today

The November sitting of the jury waived session of the superior court was opened at the local court house in Gorham street this morning at 10 o'clock, Judge Nathan D. Pratt of this city presiding. This is the first time that Judge Pratt occupied the bench of the superior court in this city since he was appointed by Gov. Foss.

There was a large representation of lawyers when court opened and the greater part of the morning session was taken up by the reading of the docket and the hearing of motions.

Many Motions Heard

Daniel J. Donahue, counsel for the plaintiff in the case of Vlahos vs. Nicholson, asked that he be granted a continuance, owing to the fact that his client is in Greece at the present time but is expected home in a short time. Lawyer Silverblatt, one of the counsel for the defense, asked that if the case was continued that the trustee be released. Judge Pratt stated that it was a matter for counsel to agree upon and that if they could not agree the case would be disposed of at this term.

John J. Hogan asked for a continuance in the case of Revel vs. Vien, Mr. Hogan, who represents the defendant, stated that it was necessary to get some depositions from France before trying the case and explained that owing to the peculiar methods of procedure of the courts of France he had had some difficulty in ascertaining just how to get the answers to his interrogatories. He asked that the case be put over until the February term in order that he might have a chance to secure the depositions. Lawyer Bent insisted on having the case tried at this session, and in all probability it will be in order next week.

Long Law List

The list of law cases for this session is very long and includes 39 against the Lexington board of health, the majority of the petitioners being farmers or truck gardeners belonging or coming under the jurisdiction of the Lexington board of health.

Heretofore manure upon arriving in Lexington has been unloaded from the railroad cars at various places, but recently the board of health adopted a measure where the manure could be unloaded at only one place. As a result the gardeners of that place entered protest and finally appealed to the court. It is understood that this is the first matter of this kind ever brought before a court in the commonwealth.

In the case of Sherwood against Carney, J. Joseph O'Connor, Esq., stated that the defendant, Owen J. Carney, is dead, and asked that the administrator of the estate of the deceased be enjoined. It is alleged that the late Mr. Carney engaged a store in the Runels building in Merrimack square for a limited time and failed to pay the rent.

Equity Case Heard

Shortly before noon today the first case was called, it being a case of equity in which the Connors Brothers Co. is the plaintiff and Fisher et al. the defendants. This case grew out of the making out of a mortgage to John Connors, formerly treasurer of the Connors Bros.' Construction Co., for a barn which was erected in Dunstable, while the Construction Co. was erecting a postoffice for the United States government in Nashua, N. H. Messrs. F. W. and S. E. Qua appear for the Connors Brothers and Frederick A. Fisher for the defendants.

COURT SUSPENDED

Until Tomorrow Because of Absence of Judge McLaughlin Who Was Called to Washington

The case of Adolphe Lemerise against J. J. Prindiville Co., which was opened before Judge McLaughlin in the session of the superior civil court with juries last week, and was to have been resumed this morning will reopen tomorrow morning, owing to the absence of Judge McLaughlin, who was called to Washington Friday afternoon.

THE POLICE LOST THEIR HEADS

So Giovannitti Testified at the Ettor Trial in Salem This Morning

SALEM, Nov. 18.—Arturo Giovannitti, last of the accused agitators in the Giovannitti-Ettor-Caruso trial, which is being held at Salem to appear for the defense, took the witness stand today. The young socialist writer and poet, who is charged as an accessory before the fact to the killing of Anna Lopizzo in a Lawrence strike riot last winter, faced the jury despite the absence of his personal counsel, W. Scott Peters.

Attorney Fred H. Moore took up the defense where it was left last week when Mr. Peters' illness caused a postponement.

Reports were current about the court house that Attorney Peters had withdrawn permanently from the case, but this was denied by associate counsel.

Giovannitti, whose home is in Brooklyn, went to Lawrence to aid Joseph Ettor in conducting the strike and addressed the workers on several occasions. The commonwealth sought to prove that his utterances in Italian incited the strikers to acts of violence and aided in the precipitation of the fatal riot on Jan. 29 last.

Giovannitti, like Ettor, affirmed to tell the truth as he faced the clerk of the court. He first told of his early life; that he was born in Italy 28 years ago, the son of a chemist, and came to Canada after being educated in public schools and lyceums of Italy. He lived for some time at Halifax and Montreal. While studying English at Montreal he took the place of a minister who died and for some time conducted an Italian Presbyterian mission, after which he entered a Presbyterian theological school. "Soon after that," said Giovannitti, "I was called to Brooklyn to take charge of another mission. That was in 1904. I wasn't exactly a minister but sort of a missionary. I preached to the people on Sundays and taught them during the week."

Later he entered the Union Theological seminary and registered also at Columbia university. The work was too much for him, he said, particularly the study of Hebrew, "which was a little too strong for my capacities." After this for eight months he conducted an Italian mission at Pittsburgh.

"While there I became connected with the socialist party," Giovannitti continued, "and the authorities of the Presbyterian church objected to socialism, and said I should give it up. They said it was not a question of political economy but of soul salvation. I told them that I did not think the teachings of Christ and socialism were antagonistic, and I severed my connection with the church."

Returning to New York he took up Italian newspaper work and met the defendant, Ettor. He went to Lawrence Jan. 20 last after the strike was called.

"Before I went to Lawrence," the witness said, "I had learned the militia had been called, that there was a feeling that Ettor should leave there and that railroad stations were being watched for outside agitators. I read that all such would be under suspicion."

Police Lost Their Heads

Immediately after he arrived in Lawrence Giovannitti said he heard of the discovery of the planted dynamite and he went to the hall where Ettor had just spoken. He asked Ettor at once about the dynamite and Ettor replied: "They've played an awful dirty trick on us." "I said," Giovannitti testified, "do you refer to the McNamara case?" "Yes, that case is still fresh in the public mind and they are trying to fasten the same thing on us. It is the greatest blow that could fall on us just now. We have 25,000 people on the street and hardly any savings. We can't keep up much longer unless we get outside help and if we can't sift this dynamite affair to the bottom and find out who did it, very likely we can't get a cent and the people will be driven back to work.'"

After that Giovannitti began the organization of relief for the strikers. The witness told about a conversation he had with a Lawrence policeman in which he said there was no necessity for the militia in Lawrence.

"This disorder never would have happened in New York," Giovannitti said he told the officer.

"As soon as there was a little disorder the police and authorities of Lawrence immediately lost their heads. I am not over-enthusiastic about the New York cops but I think eight of the good Irish cops here would have handled this situation without calling any militia."

FAVOR GENERAL TARIFF BILL

Democrats So Express Themselves—Others Want Revision Schedule By Schedule

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The form that tariff revision is to take before the special session of congress next spring has become a matter of strong individual opinion among democratic senators and congressmen now here.

Representative Underwood, democratic house leader, who will reach Washington this week, has given no indication as yet of his own plans and it is expected that democratic leaders will confer at length over the situation before advising President-elect Wilson of the tentative arrangements.

Many members now favor a general bill, covering many or all schedules of the tariff law, to be framed as a partial or complete substitute for the Payne-Aldrich law. Those who advance this plan claim it would be the speediest way of fulfilling tariff pledges.

Others favor combining in a single bill those measures passed during the last two years, but vetoed by President Taft; and the preparation of other single schedule bills to follow this measure. Unless the plan to revise the entire tariff law in a single bill should be adopted, it is believed democratic leaders will urge the calling of the special session before April 15. That date was set by President-elect Wilson as the latest upon which he would assemble the new congress.

Democrats now here believe the new house can begin work in March, soon after the present administration retires from power, and be organized ready for tariff legislation early in April.

It is expected that short hearings will be given by the house ways and means committee to industries vitally affected by proposed tariff changes. The extent of these hearings, according to democratic members of the house who favor them, will not be such as to interfere with early action on the tariff bills.

The plan of distributing the various tariff schedules among sub-committees of the ways and means committee, which was resorted to last year, was found to operate satisfactorily both in saving time and in obtaining the information necessary to the work of the committee, and it is expected that this expedient will be adopted again.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma yesterday expressed the opinion that the entire tariff revision should be concluded before next July, permitting the inauguration of the new schedules with the beginning of the fiscal year July 1. To secure perfect co-operation between house and senate, Senator Gore said he probably would suggest a joint steering committee of members of the two houses to act together during the approaching short session in the formulation of a tariff measure for the extra session.

"In that way," he said, "we could insure the drawing of a bill that would receive the support of both houses from the start, saving the loss of much time in subsequent conferences."

It is not the purpose of the republicans to allow the democratic program to be put through without remonstrance. They will ask hearings on many of the schedules, and republican senate leaders expect to be able to make effective opposition in many instances.

"The democrats cannot get a free sugar bill through the senate," said Sen. Smoot of the finance committee yesterday. He based his prediction on the understanding that the Louisiana senators are sure to oppose such a measure and he said there were other democrats who would stand out against that and many other contemplated measures.

The Darrach Recitals

A series of recitals on the works of Shakespeare will be opened at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in Colonial hall when Marshall Darrach, who has been engaged by the playground committee, will give the "Merchant of Venice," which is considered by many as the greatest work of the author. Mr. Darrach comes to this city not as a stranger for the success of his recitals last fall was not in a small way due to the able and thorough readings of the works which he gave.

Few people realize the work which can be done with the amount of money made on these recitals; the proceeds of which are devoted to the propaganda of playground work. The money made on the recitals held last year was sufficient to pay all the expenses accruing from the installation of baths for the boys and girls; the salaries of the attendants present at the baths; the cost of maintining the playground in Paige street, and also an amount slightly over $40 which was expended for material used in the industrial department of the playgrounds. It can be readily seen that while the person attending the recitals receives good, wholesome and mentally elevating entertainment, he or she, is also contributing to a fund which during the summer months will give a good measure of pure air and muscle building exercise to the young.

Pageant Mass Meeting

A pageant mass meeting was held Sunday afternoon in the Paige Street church and was attended by a large number. Miss Harriet Taylor, one of the national secretaries of the organization, was the principal speaker and she told of the work in China. The mass meeting was in the interest of the foreign work of the association. The song of appeal and response used in the final scene of the pageant was sung by the pageant chorus. Miss Ola Sargent was organist, and the soloist was Mrs. J. J. Kerwin.

OUTLOOK FOR PEACE IN CUBA

Opposition to Menocal Not Serious—Days of Uprisings Are Thought to Be Past

HAVANA, Nov. 18.—Within a few weeks the popular feeling toward the political situation has risen from something bordering on despair to one of confidence. The outlook for the republic of Cuba appears brighter than for many years.

The presidential election looked forward to with apprehension passed without violence, and there is a growing disposition in all quarters to accept the verdict as the honest expression of the majority. Those most disappointed have vented their feelings in threats that were never taken very seriously and now seem inclined to accept the new order of things philosophically.

The attitude of the liberals has simmered down to a proposition to attack the legality of the elections on the ground of fraud, upon the convening of the national liberal assembly on Nov. 23.

When that date is reached, it is probable that the question will be quietly shelved and that Dr. Alfredo Zayas will find himself engaged in a fight with Gen. Jose Miguel Gomez for the leadership of the liberal party, the president having let it be understood that he has no intention of retiring from active political life on the expiration of his term of office and that it is his ambition to lead the liberals to victory in the presidential campaign of 1916.

There has been fear felt in the six months intervening before the close of his administration Gen. Gomez would spare no effort to obtain legislation tending to embarrass his successor. But though the conservative leaders have no faith in Gen. Gomez they are not especially anxious on this score, and in fact the president has already manifested a desire to smooth the path of his successor by communicating to him the provisional estimates of the budget for the fiscal year beginning next June, with the assurance that he will be pleased to act on any suggestion that Gen. Menocal may make.

In taking office Gen. Menocal will have the inestimable advantage of a friendly senate and house. In the senate he is assured of the support of 14 of the 24 members and in the house there is a strong working majority. He will have the support of the good element throughout the island and the personal counsel of such distinguished Cubans as Gen. Prefere de Andrade, Col. Ernesto Fonts Sterling, both members of President Palma's last cabinet; Dr. Verona Sherez, the new vice-president and one of the foremost "intellectuals" in Cuba; Col. Charles Hernandez, master-general under Provisional Gov. Magoon, and that veteran campaigner in war and politics Col. Hevia.

He will also have the loyal support of an army organized, uniformed, equipped and armed like American regulars and drilled by American officers, and which has so won the respect of the people that many are convinced that the days of armed uprisings in Cuba are past forever.

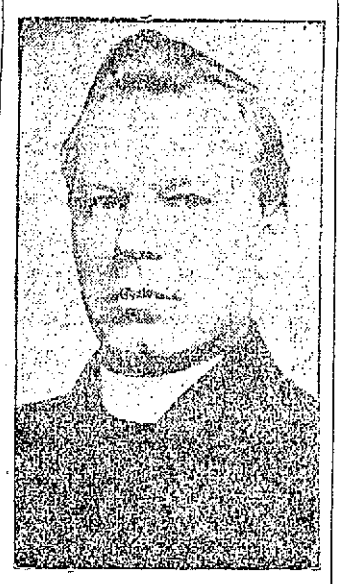

THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Of Fr. Mathews of North Billerica Observed

BANQUET AND CONCERT AMONG THE FEATURES

Silver Loving Cup Presented to Edward F. Slattery, the "Father of the Society"

The Father Mathew Total Abstinence society celebrated its silver jubilee Saturday night in Thomas Talbot Memorial hall, No. Billerica, and it was without exception the greatest observance in the history of the society. About every member of the society attended with a friend and a great number of guests were present. Each of the 23 past presidents received an invitation to attend and with few exceptions all were present to endorse by their appearance the work begun here twenty-five years ago, and carried on so successfully up to the present time. The past presidents are as follows: Richard T. Conway, John Conway, Lawrence Buckley, Edward L. McMahon, Robert Crawford, John H. Mahoney, John G. Mahoney, Thomas Mullen, Michael Coughlin, Joseph Hannon, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Charles Fairbrother, John Welch, Daniel Twomey, James Campbell, Edward Morris, Thomas Twomey, John F. Gannon, Edward Riley, Timothy McCarthy, Joseph P. Meaney, Charles Cowdrey and John Mahoney.

REV. E. J. CORNELL, O. M. I.

EDWARD F. SLATTERY

At 8.30 o'clock a concert opened in the upper hall. Richard T. Noonan gave several piano selections that were very pleasing to the audience. John J. Dalton and Frank Maguire sang with their usual success and were loudly applauded. Maurice O'Donnell gave several recitations and James E. Donnelly sang some of his famous Scotch songs. John Devlin concluded the entertainment by singing several songs.

The gathering then marched to the banquet hall to enjoy the spread that had been prepared by the ladies' auxiliary corps. The banquet hall was beautifully decorated the American flag being strung all around the hall with the Mathews' banner in the center.

After the banquet President William Taylor, after a brief address of welcome introduced Rev. Fr. Cornell, O. M. I. who congratulated the society for its splendid work and spoke at some length on the history of Father Mathew. Mr. Frederic S. Clark and Rev. C. H. Williams each spoke briefly and complimented the society for the great work it had done for the town of Billerica. Mr. James O'Sullivan also spoke on the work that temperance organizations have done in the past and were doing at the present time.

Edward F. Slattery was then introduced as the "father of the society," and it was mentioned that Mr. Slattery has not missed an anniversary since the organization of the society a quarter of a century ago. Mr. Slattery spoke on the value of temperance societies in this and other towns.

In opening he referred to the time the Fr. Mathews was organized 25 years ago and how some 32 men signed the pledge and willingly came forth with help and purse to organize a temperance society in North Billerica and how pleased he was to see some of those same men present.

The speaker mentioned the great work of the Ladies' auxiliary, who worked so faithfully when the Mathews were organized and now were mothers and wives of members of the organization.

Mr. Slattery said he had probably seen as many men under the influence of liquor as any one man in Massachusetts, and he could say for the praise of Billerica, that probably not one dozen of them came from that town. This same thing was true in other towns where temperance organizations were encouraged. He told how Mr. O'Sullivan deserves a great deal of praise for the work he has done to make this organization a success. He spoke of several men who had worked to make the society a success and especially mentioned the great work of the Talbot mills.

Mr. Slattery again told how pleased he was to be with the Mathews on this anniversary and how fortunate he was to be one who had helped to make it a success, and thanked the president and all members for the privilege they had given him to help them in their work.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Slattery by Fr. Cornell, in behalf of the Mathews, of a beautiful silver loving cup as a token of the high esteem and regard in which he is held by the Mathew organization. Fr. Cornell said it was silver without, to memorize the silver jubilee, and gold within for the golden work he had done for the organization. Mr. Slattery thanked the members from the bottom of his heart and said he could never repay his friends in North Billerica for the beautiful token and loving cup.

JUMPED FROM ELECTRIC CAR

Lawrence Man Received Several Minor Scalp Wounds and Had a Narrow Escape From Serious Injury

John H. Dougherty of Essex street, Lawrence, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured last night as a result of stepping off a car backwards while the car was in motion.

Dougherty had been visiting friends in this city and about 7 o'clock last night he started back for Lawrence. When near the corner of Bridge and First streets he evidently thought that he had made a flying trip to Spicketville or else he forgot something and intended to return to the square, for without even stopping to wait for the conductor to signal the motorman to stop the car, Dougherty stepped off backwards. When his feet struck the pavement the momentum of the car threw him down and he rolled over and over, receiving minor wounds about the scalp.

The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to St. John's hospital, where he received treatment.

MILL STRIKERS DISPERSED

Police Had No Trouble With Them

WATERTOWN, Nov. 18.—The police dispersed without trouble 1000 strikers and sympathizers who gathered about the gates of the Hood Rubber Co.'s mill today when several departments of the plant were reopened. About 2000 workers were taken back by the company and 500 others who had expected to return were turned away and told there was no work for them at this time. Other departments of the mill are expected to reopen during the week. Trouble was anticipated at the opening hour because of claims of some of the employes, many of whom are members of the Industrial Workers of the World, that they were being discriminated against when there was a selection of operatives who were to return. The closing of the factory, a little over a week ago, was declared by operatives to be a move on the part of the company to forestall action on the part of the members of the Industrial Workers of the World, but the management claimed that it was to allow necessary repairs to be made. As fast as these repairs can be completed the various departments will be reopened, officials state. Serious rioting developed last week when the first attempt was made to reopen the factory. Last night one man was killed and another injured in an outbreak in which the strikers were said to have been concerned.

BY BOYHOOD ENEMY

Man Was Shot and Seriously Injured

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 18.—M. A. Root, member of a Denver tobacco firm, was shot and seriously wounded at his home Saturday night by a man he says he recognized as a boyhood enemy at Ripon, Wis. Root was taken to the County hospital, where it was said there was a chance for his recovery.

Root said the trouble started in 1870, shortly after he left school in Wisconsin, when his home was robbed. He said he recognized the burglar as Jas. Divinney. He had him arrested and he was sentenced to prison.

At that time, Root declares, Divinney swore vengeance. Several times in the last 15 years since he has lived in Denver, Root has been attacked, shot and once locked in his safe and nearly suffocated. On each occasion, Root declares, he recognized his assailant as Divinney.

SERGT. CARNEY RETURNS

To Lowell After Enjoying Month's Furlough

WAS ACCOMPANIED ON TRIP BY MRS. CARNEY

They Left Lowell on Oct. 17 and Visited Boston, New York, Buffalo, Chicago and Places in Nova Scotia

"Business is great," said Sergt. Robert J. Carney, who is in charge of the local recruiting station in Middlesex street, and who just returned to his office this morning after a one month's furlough. At the time that the writer happened into the office this morning, the sergeant was examining two applicants for enlistment, and both of the young men were accepted.

The sergeant in company with Mrs. Carney, left Lowell on Oct. 17, and was away from Lowell until yesterday, during which time he enjoyed an excellent vacation. Upon leaving Lowell Mr. and Mrs. Carney went to Boston, where they remained for a few days. They then went to New York city and later visited Buffalo, taking in the sights at Niagara Falls. Upon leaving Niagara the Lowell couple went to Chicago, Illinois, where a reunion of the Carney family was held. At the meeting were members of Sergt. Carney's family from many sections of the country. The exercises lasted two days, and after visiting several other cities in the vicinity Mr. and Mrs. Carney left for Nova Scotia, where they were the guests of Mrs. Carney's parents.

Sergt. Carney's furlough expired on Saturday, Nov. 16, and while he returned home on that day, he did not take over his office until this morning. During his absence the local office was in charge of Sergt. Koch, and the latter left Lowell Saturday evening for Boston, where he, too, resumed activities at the Washington street recruiting station this morning.

In speaking of his trip the sergeant said that he had the best time in his life and talked enthusiastically about Niagara Falls.

He said that at the time he went there the falls were very heavy and as the water dropped it presented a most picturesque sight, a sight that he will ever remember. In Chicago, where the reunion was held, the Lowell man met a brother, who is also a military man, after a separation of a number of years. Sisters from the coast were in attendance and the meeting proved a most enjoyable one for all concerned.

In Nova Scotia, too, the Lowell couple had a great time, and the sergeant was given a great reception by the town folk in the section he visited. A short time ago an account of the sergeant's travels appeared in The Sun, and a copy of the paper was sent by Mr. Carney to his parents. The story was read with great interest by all the neighbors and upon the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Carney, all the villagers were anxious to see the "man who traveled the world." Many receptions in honor of Sergt. Carney were held and he was kept busy explaining the many different sections of the globe that he visited.

The sergeant expects a prosperous season and said that the way the first morning opened with two accepted applicants augurs well for the success of at least this month.

FUNERALS

GRAHAMS—The funeral of Peter Grahams, infant son of Peter and Sarah Grahams, took place this morning at 10.30 o'clock from the home of his parents, No. 70 Rock street. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. F. O'Connell & Sons.

BAYLEY—The funeral of Miss Margaret Bayley took place on Saturday afternoon from the undertaking rooms C. M. Young on Prescott street. Rev. N. T. Whitaker, D. D., conducted the funeral services. Appropriate selections were sung by Mrs. John B. Peacock. The body was sent to Church Hill, New Brunswick, for burial, under the direction of Undertaker C. M. Young.

BRUNET—The funeral of Francois Xavier Brunet took place this morning from his home in Dalton street. High mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Louis' church at 8 o'clock, Rev. T. A. Fortier officiating. The choir was under the direction of Mr. Ulier J. David. Miss Ida Mongrain presiding at the organ. The bearers were Arthur Paycette, Frank Brunet, Dick and Octave Collins, Henry Betty and Henry Collins. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Amedee Archambault.

COBURN—The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Coburn took place from her home in Chelmsford street, Chelmsford, on Sunday afternoon and was very largely attended. There were many flowers received from friends and relatives. The services were conducted by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, former pastor of the Eliot Congregational church. The following selections were sung by Miss Etta Thompson: "Abide With Me" and "The Homeland." The bearers were Messrs. C. M. Forrest, Royal K. Dexter, George B. Holden and Amos F. Hill. The committal service was read at the grave by Rev. Mr. Bigelow. Mr. Walter Coburn had charge of the arrangements, and the burial was in the family lot in the Lowell cemetery, under the direction of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co.

WALSH—The funeral of Mrs. Mary Walsh took place this morning at 8.30 o'clock from her late home, 230 Fayette street, and was largely attended. A funeral high mass was celebrated in the Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Denis Sullivan, O. M. I. The Gregorian chant was sung by the choir, the soloists being Mrs. Hugh Walker and Charles P. Smith. Mrs. Hugh Walker was the organist. The burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, where Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O. M. I., read the burial service. The bearers were Michael Walsh, James Walsh, Michael Walsh, Jr., John Walsh, John Brett and Thomas Brett. There were many floral offerings. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Charles H. Molloy.

McILROY—The funeral of Miss Melissa McIlroy was held at the residence of John A. Whitney of 6 Horne street on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. A. Frederick Dunnels, pastor of the Highland Congregational church. Mrs. Edith Fogerman Muzzey sang "Abide With Me," "Gathering Home," and "The Christian's Goodnight." The burial took place in the Edson cemetery, in charge of Undertaker John A. Weinbeck. Among the senders of the flowers were the following: The O'Neil and Morrison families; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dows and family; Mrs. Richburg, Mr. F. A. Bowen and family, Mr. Allan Greenough, Mr. James Stanley and family, Mr. J. A. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. William Nason, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Greenough; the women of the Kirk Street church; Mr. and Mrs. David Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Champney, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis.

SMART—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret A. Smart took place Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from her home, 110 Warwick street, just three weeks after the funeral of her husband, Chas. E. Smart. The services were conducted by Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D. D., pastor of the First Universalist church. Appropriate selections were sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. Fred L. Roberts, Mrs. H. Edward Symonds, Osmond Long and Harry Needham. The floral offerings were as follows: Bank of flowers, "Mother," from children; pillow, "At Rest," from her grandmother, Mrs. Smart; pillow, "Sister," Mrs. W. O. Tuttle and Mrs. E. W. Dresser; basket, "Grandma," from her grandchildren; gates ajar, salesmen and stenographers of T. A. Snider Preserve Co. and Pacific Coast Borax Co.; wreath, Mrs. S. Wiley and Mrs. N. W. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Moses McKelvey and Mrs. Ada Martin.

The bearers were Messrs. Alanson Gray, Charles P. Perham, Charles T. Rowland and Charles H. Wing. The burial was in the family lot in the Edson cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of William H. Downs and William W. Greeley, under the direction of Undertaker George W. Healey.

GILLICK—Miss Hannah Gillick, one of Lowell's oldest residents, having resided in this city for the past 46 years, was consigned to her final resting place in the Catholic cemetery this morning. The funeral, which was a very lengthy one, took place at 8.30 o'clock from the home of her niece, Mrs. Charles McGrath, No. 271 Gorham street. The cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church where a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. W. George Mullin, assisted by Rev. Daniel Heffernan as deacon and Rev. John F. Burns as sub-deacon. The choir under the direction of Mr. James E. Donnelly, rendered the Gregorian chant, Mr. Donnelly and Miss Whiteley sustaining the solos and Mrs. Josephine McKennedy presiding at the organ. The bearers were Messrs. James Rourke, James Gorman, Michael McGlinchey, James Starr, Michael Shanley and John Mellon. Among the many floral offerings were: Pillow, "Aunt," Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGrath; sheaf of wheat, "At Rest," Misses Jennie and Margaret McGrath; wreath on base, Mr. James F. TRADING QUIET

AT CLOSING HOUR OF THE STOCK MARKET TODAY

There Was Some Weakness in Active Stocks—Outside of That Prices Were Not Essentially Changed

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—On a small volume of business prices of the leading stocks declined at the opening today. The heaviest trading was in Reading, which fell back 3¼ on sales of 6600 shares in the first few minutes.

Trading in stocks was dull and hesitating through the morning. The lethargy of the market was due largely to the possibility that decisions might be rendered by the United States supreme court in some of the long standing cases affecting Wall street.

Announcement at midday that the supreme court will adjourn for a fortnight after today's session without taking action in some of the more important cases before it, caused some irregularity in stocks particularly Reading.

Prices shaded further in the later dealings, steel losing practically all its gain in the spurt of the preceding hour, with general heaviness in other respective issues.

The market closed heavy. Trading was practically at a standstill in the closing hour and except for some weakness in active stocks prices were not essentially changed.

Boston Market

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Interest in local stocks in the local trading centred in American Woolen which dropped a point by noon. Coppers were neglected, although some shares of Mayflower changed hands.

Money Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Prime mercantile paper 6. Sterling exchange steady at 481 for sixty day bills and at 485.15 for demand. Commercial bills 480½. Bar silver 62⅞. Mexican dollars 48¾. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular.

Exchanges and Balances

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Exchanges $21,934,953; balances, $1,251,944.

CLEMENS AND LAVIGNE, LOWELL PLAYERS ARE SOLD

Were Purchased By the Milwaukee Club for $3000

Both Played Fine Ball With Lowell Last Season

OUTFIELDER PETE CLEMENS

Manager James Gray of the Lowell baseball team has returned from Milwaukee, where he attended the annual meeting of the minor leagues of America, and he announces that he has sold "Pete" Clemens and Arthur Lavigne, two of the star players on last year's team. Both players were purchased outright by the Milwaukee team for $3000. The sale is conditional upon the players making good. Should the players prove too slow for the higher league they revert to Lowell. Mr. Gray also traded Jake Boultes, captain of last year's team, to the Bridgeport team of the Connecticut league for Howard Baker, an outfielder. To play third base, the Lowell manager purchased Alva Holt, who was utility infielder for the Milwaukee team last season. The latter is highly recommended and Manager Gray expects that he will cover the hot corner in a satisfactory manner. Baker, secured in trade for Boultes, will be played in centre field, in place of Clemens.

The manager has his lines out for two catchers, who are reputed to be very clever performers, and as Monahan will return to the team, all places will be well filled when the 1913 bell rings.

The departure of Clemens and Lavigne from Lowell will be regretted by the fans for both were clever players and "good fellows," but as the American association is a higher league, all will be glad that the fast players have received a promotion.

Clemens is a fast fielder, speedy on the bases and a good hitter while Lavigne was without doubt the best infield artist in the league. He, too, could hit the ball in fine style and the fans feel confident that both will make good in faster company.

Capt. Boultes has played in Lowell for several years, and during that time has made a number of friends, who will regret his transfer. Boultes is a good player, and has many years of good baseball left in him yet. The reason for his transfer is due to the fact that he grew stale in Lowell and a change of scenery will do him good.

Manager Gray wanted some new life in the team, and from the trades made and the new players on the list to be tried out, he expects to open the season of 1913 with one of the best teams that has started in the New England league. He will have one of the strongest pitching departments ever assembled, having Zeiser, Mayhohm, Blum, Weaver and Smith, all under contract.

MRS. HELEN J. SCOTT

First Woman Chosen a Presidential Elector

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Helen J. Scott of this city has the distinction of being the first woman ever nominated for presidential elector in the history of the United States. She will cast her vote for Theodore Roosevelt at the meeting of the electoral college. Mrs. Scott has been an active worker in the progressive ranks, but her chief interest, nevertheless, centers in her home and her children. By all her Tacoma friends she is known as a "home woman." She is the wife of Horace G. Scott, a lawyer. She was born in Michigan, but has been a resident of Tacoma since 189. She is the mother of two children, a boy and girl. Mrs. Scott is president of the Monday Civic club, member of the Tacoma Day Nursery's executive board and the board of the Interstate Federation of Women's Clubs.

THE MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE

Many Scrappers Lay Claim to It

What is probably the most open question in prize ring affairs at this time is just who should wear the middleweight crown. Claimants have been many, as have been elimination contests, but still the title cannot be brought to rest between two men. It is the hope of all interested in pugilistic affairs that the field can be narrowed down and the matter settled. A number of aspirants for the crown will clash in a series of bouts, and when the smoke of battle is cleared away there may be some one who can rightfully set himself up as the champion.

Eddie McGoorty is one of the foremost middleweights, and many think that he deserves the crown, but Mike Gibbons, Jimmy Clabby, Chicago "Knockout" Brown, "Cyclone" Johnny Thompson, Billy Papke, the "Illinois Thunderbolt," and a few others at once raised a hue and cry when Edward announced that he was about to tuck the title under his arm for keeps, and of course the Oshkosh man could not get away with his little game.

The foreign scrappers are not taken into consideration. Georges Carpentier, with his terrible knockout record, was given a severe beating in Paris recently by Billy Papke. Jack Harrison, who boasted possession of the Lord Lonsdale belt and the championship of Great Britain, sallied over to the United States to do battle and met his Waterloo at the hands of McGoorty in New York. Harrison was floored for the count in the initial round.

Billy Papke, who was the logical successor of Stanley Ketchel after the great little champion was killed, has not framed up to championship proportions, despite the fact that he at one time defeated Ketchel. Papke, especially since he defeated Carpentier, is extremely anxious to convince light fans, however, that he is still the "Illinois Thunderbolt."

INJURIES PUZZLE POLICE

Brockton Boy Not Expected to Recover

BROCKTON, Nov. 18.—Brockton police spent all day yesterday investigating a mysterious accident at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at Brockton Heights, which resulted in Charles Hunter, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hunter, 925 Oak street, being taken to the Goddard hospital with a fractured skull, which, it is feared, will result in death.

Indications are, the police say, that the boy was struck by an unknown autoist, who succeeded in covering his tracks, although they say it is possible the lad had a fit, fell in the road and was run over by a car owned by Mrs. Elizabeth N. Atwood of Norwood, wife of Horace D. Atwood. Mrs. Atwood was driving along Pleasant street when she saw something in the road. She says her auto did not strike the object but straddled it. Her story is corroborated by Motorman Timothy J. Cotter of the Stoughton line of the Bay State Street Railway company.

When it was found the boy was badly hurt he was put in the Atwood auto and rushed to the Goddard hospital in this city, where an operation was performed by experts. A part of the skull bone was removed and last night it was said there was a bare chance to save the lad's life.

FUNERAL NOTICES

McLAUGHLIN—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin will take place tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock from the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Dowling, 80 Adams street. At 9 o'clock a high mass of requiem will be sung at St. Patrick's church. Burial in St. Mary's cemetery, Dover, N. H. J. F. O'Donnell & Sons in charge.

SAVAGE—The funeral of the late John Savage will take place on Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock from his home, No. 172 Fayette street. High mass of requiem will be sung at the Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock. The interment will be in St. Patrick's cemetery. Undertaker James H. McDermott in charge.

Keep Out The Money Changers

This Is a Direct Message To You Men Who Regard Honesty In Public Officials of Paramount Importance.

IF YOU DESIRE OFFICIALS WHO WEAR COATS OF MANY COLORS do not read any further—this message is not for you.

IF YOU DESIRE OFFICIALS WHO ATTEMPT TO SERVE TWO MASTERS and who are purchaseable—regard this appeal as of no consequence to you and your families.

DO YOU WANT TO GO ON RECORD IN FAVOR OF CANDIDATES WHOSE PAST RECORDS SHOW THEM TO BE THE TOOLS AND INSTRUMENTS OF CORRUPT MEN?

REMEMBER THIS!

Former Alderman Jeremiah Connors HAS BEEN THE ONLY MAN IN THIS CAMPAIGN WHO HAS HAD THE COURAGE TO EXPOSE THE REAL DANGERS AT CITY HALL—

Realize, then, what it means to elect him—FOR HE HAS ASKED YOU TO JUDGE HIM ON HIS RECORD ALONE AND HE HAS DISCLOSED THE METHODS IN VOGUE TO WHICH HE STANDS OPPOSED.

A Vote For Connors Is a Protest against the contemptible methods of the MONEY CHANGERS, the men who are not seen but who are behind the CASH TRANSACTIONS which finance the corrupt election of corrupt officials.

Are YOU WITH US OR AGAINST US?

A MAN CANNOT SERVE TWO MASTERS!

THREE FOREIGNERS ARE ARRESTED

In Connection With Murder of Frank Cirillo at Watertown, Last Night

WATERTOWN, Nov. 18.—Three foreigners were arrested at the point of revolvers in Auburndale early today charged with the murder of Frank Cirillo, who was killed last night near the Hood mill, where labor disturbances have occurred during the past week. The trio under arrest, Tomasso Fillardi, Gabriel Lepera and Zenzo Rizzotonn, were captured on the Boston & Albany railroad tracks near the Auburndale depot and brought to the Watertown police station. They were to appear in the Waltham district court later in the day to answer to the charge of murder. The victim who was 26, was shot through the neck. His body was discovered by ambulance officers on Arlington street while on their way to the Cambridge hospital with Frank Falzo, aged 30, who was set upon and stabbed by a crowd of men. Falzo was alive at the Cambridge hospital early today, although it was said he could not survive his injuries.

Allens Refused New Trial

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 18.—A new trial was today refused Floyd Allen and his son, Claude Allen by the supreme court of Virginia. The men are condemned to die in the electric chair next Friday for the murder of officials of the Carroll court house last March.

Photograph of Chinese Women Voting Will Be Campaign Issue

"If Chinese women may vote, why not American women enjoy the privilege?" That is to be the slogan of the women of the country in their campaign for suffrage in the different states. The photograph of a Chinese woman voting in California at the recent election will be a prominent exhibit in the campaign.

NOTES OF THE CHURCHES

Fr. Kerrigan Preaches Splendid Sermon

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

The Y. M. C. I. Arranges for a Ladies' Night and Other Social Events, Also for the Bowling Season

The feature of yesterday's services was the sermon by Rev. James J. Kerrigan, who was recently assigned to fill the vacancy left by the departure of Rev. John J. McHugh. Fr. Kerrigan chose for his subject "The Sorrows of Life," and his words were very impressive. He mentioned some of the chief sorrows which must be experienced by everyone in this life, and dwelt on their relation to our spiritual life hereafter, employing beautiful language and figures, and giving ample evidence of the true eloquence which he possesses. The high mass was celebrated by Rev. Timothy P. Callahan.

There will be sung an anniversary mass of requiem tomorrow morning for Mary A. Shanley.

On next Thursday, which is the feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the ceremony of the blessing of the infants will take place at St. Patrick's church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Immaculate Conception

A high mass of requiem was sung this morning at the Immaculate Conception church for the repose of the soul of the mother of Rev. G. T. Nolan, O. M. I., formerly pastor of that parish.

On Saturday a high mass of requiem will be sung for the deceased members of the Rosary society.

The members of the Rosary society have arranged to hold a whist party on Wednesday night in the hall of the Young Men's Catholic Institute. There will be attractive ladies' and gentlemen's prizes and booby prizes, and after the whist, dancing will be enjoyed. At this social the prizes will be awarded to the winners of the different contests which took place on the evening of the parish reunion a short time ago.

St. Columba's

The regular weekly whist party of St. Columba's parish will be held on Thursday evening in the rectory, in charge of Miss Mary O'Hearn and the usual prizes will be awarded. There will be an entertainment consisting of a musical program during the awarding of the prizes.

Sacred Heart Church

The members of the Holy Angels sodality of the Sacred Heart church attended Holy Communion in a body yesterday morning at the 8.30 o'clock mass which was celebrated by Rev. James T. McDermott, O. M. I.

The 10.30 high mass yesterday was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I. and Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I. preached a forceful sermon on "Charity." The choir, under the direction of Mr. John Kelly, rendered hymns and the vested choir sang the responses to the mass.

A big Thanksgiving festival is planned for the adults and children of the parish. The Children of Mary sodality will have charge of the affair.

Y. M. C. I. Events

The members of the Young Men's Catholic Institute held a largely attended meeting in their hall in Stackpole street yesterday morning and transacted considerable routine business, President James Gilligan presided.

The following seven new members were admitted: Joseph McCartin, Edmund Bay, Joseph Pelneault, H. H. Bladeau, Stephen Burke, E. J. Cushing and Edward Shaughnessy. The ranks of the Y. M. C. I. are swelling rapidly as may easily be seen from the above statement and many young men of Lowell have become interested in this flourishing organization and have applied for admittance.

A committee from the institute, consisting of Frederick Leonard, William Berry, Arthur O'Neil, Joseph Stowe and John Cahill will confer with a committee from the Holy Name society of the Immaculate Conception church about the card tournament. This proposed tournament is quite a novel as well as an interesting event and will include the games of whist, forty-fives and pitch. There will be many handsome prizes which will go to the winners.

It is confidently expected that the ladies' night, which will take place at the institute rooms on Tuesday will even surpass the former like event in its attendance. This is the second of a series and thus far the ladies have taken advantage of the hospitality of the members of the Y. M. C. I. for the latter young men enjoy quite a reputation locally as capable hosts. On every occasion when the organization has entertained, those who were fortunate enough to be guests were royally treated and had nothing but words of appreciation for the very enjoyable evenings which they spent. Jos. Mullin will officiate as floor director at the event of tomorrow night and Edward Carney will be his assistant. The pool tables, bowling alleys and other pleasure resources will be wide open to the guests of the evening and no pains or expense will be spared to provide a pleasant evening for all who attend. The dancing, the music for which will be furnished by a popular local orchestra, will form no small feature of the entertainment.

Another interesting event which the energetic association has arranged is a Thanksgiving eve social. President James Gilligan has been elected general manager and James F. Flannagan will act as his assistant. The floor director will be Paul Clark and the assistant floor director, James Cooney. George F. O'Meara has been elected treasurer. This social will be one of the biggest events which the club will hold this season and in the past it has always enjoyed marked success.

At yesterday's meeting of the institute, the Thanksgiving bowling committee reported and they have arranged a novel event to take place on that holiday. There will be a bowling tournament for all the members and to insure an equal chance for success to all, those who are less proficient on the alleys than the others will be given a handicap of a number of pins, which will place them on an equal footing with the experts of which there are many among the members. On the pool tables a like tournament will be contested and for both events there will be cash prizes. The nature of these contests as may be easily seen, involves complicated arrangements and require considerable work on the part of the committee to make them enjoyable as well as successful. They will furnish a fitting entertainment for the Thanksgiving holiday, and a good attendance of the young men is urged.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION

Of the A. F. of L. Resumed Today

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 18.—After a three days' recess the American Federation of Labor resumed its annual convention today with the prospects of an exciting week ahead when the reports of the various committees will be taken up. The fight of the radical wing of the convention on the socialist question may be brought to an issue on the floor during the week and is expected to provoke heated debate. Several cities are making vigorous attempts to capture the 1913 convention of the federation. Seattle, Washington, is said to have the best chance.

SENATORS ARE GUILTY

Were Convicted of Accepting Bribes

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—It was officially announced here last night that the circuit court of Cuyahoga county by a unanimous decision had rendered a verdict of guilty in the cases of State Senators Isaac Huffman of Oxford and Laforest Andrew of Ironton, charged with accepting bribes at the last session of the legislature. Senator Huffman had been previously sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and Senator Andrews to nine months. Attorneys for the accused senators declare that they will take the case to the supreme court.

THE MATHEWS

Held Well Attended Meeting in Their Rooms Yesterday—Arrangements for Song Revue

A well attended meeting of the Mathews was held in the institute rooms in Dutton street yesterday morning. President James J. Gallagher presided and much important business was transacted. The committee in charge of the song revue to be given by the Bachelor Girls in Associate hall, under the auspices of the society, reported that everything was in readiness for the affair. The ticket committee announced that a large number of the admission cards had been disposed of and all expect a large attendance.

In the afternoon the girls held their final rehearsal in the hall with the members of the society as an audience and they all enjoyed the entertainment and report that the show will be the best ever presented by the popular organization.

COOK A TOO ARDENT LOVER

As a Result He Was Landed in a Cell in Market Street Building

The attendance in police court was not as large this morning as it generally is on a Monday, but the number of privileged characters who were seated in the dock paid up for the small attendance in the gallery. The usual Saturday night fights which generally have their sequel in court on Monday morning were not in evidence and the unfortunate ones who fell into the clutch of the law were all victims of alcoholic beverages.

There was quite a number of old-timers on the list and Judge Enright disposed of their cases in a very short time. One of them, John O'Brien, was sent to the state farm.

Walter F. Cook, a young man who makes his home in this city, and who it seems is in love with a Tewksbury young woman, but for some reason or other cannot charm the object of his affections, probably on account of the intended father-in-law, recently became addicted to drink and when in an intoxicated condition, visited the premises of his sweetheart in Tewksbury, but inasmuch as his presence was not wanted there, the result was a row, and the young man landed in the Market street building.

Cook was arrested last night after being escorted to this city by Henry Leith, a neighbor of Albert G. Dana, the latter father of the girl whom Cook classed as his best girl. According to Dana's story, Cook got "full" and when in that condition he went to the Dana home in Tewksbury and annoyed the family by making noise about the premises. He was told several times to keep away from the place, but he never paid attention to the warnings. "Two weeks ago," said Mr. Dana, "Cook opened the blinds and broke a number of windows in my house, and when I remonstrated with him, he threatened to kill me. Henry Leith corroborated in part the testimony of Dana and said last night he was called to the latter's house at 11.30 o'clock. "Cook was there," continued the witness, "and when I drew near he struck me. I then escorted him to the city and turned him over to a police officer. Cook when called to the witness stand denied striking Leith and also the charge of breaking windows. He admitted being in love with the girl, but said he would keep away from the place. The court found him guilty and inasmuch as he has a previous record, sentenced him to five months in jail. He entered an appeal and was bound over in the sum of $200 for the superior court.

A burst of laughter broke out in the court room this morning, when a Polander, neatly dressed in a fine suit of green, responded to the name of Joseph Sullivan. It was with considerable difficulty that the defendant was able to plead guilty as his knowledge of the English language is very limited. As this was this first appearance he was assessed $2. no extra charge being made for the name.

Sunday Drunks.

John J. Osborne was arrested in a room in the Merrimack Corporation yesterday and just because he was drunk he was fined $5. Thomas Ferry, who also indulged too freely yesterday, was assessed the same amount.

Joseph Lamontagne had a very narrow escape from being sent to the state farm for a part of the winter and his escape is due to his wife who told the court she is sick and not able to earn a living for herself and children. It seems that Lamontague has been in the care of the probation officer on several occasions, but the latter says it is of no use, the man is so much addicted to rum that he cannot and will not stop drinking unless he is given a well earned rest at a place where the thirst is quenched with good old reliable well water. When Lamontagne heard this report, which was not too favorable, he asked the court if he would listen to his wife and the favor was granted. After hearing her story Judge Enright told Lamontagne he would give him another chance to make good and also warned him if he did not let rum alone he would send him to the state farm. He then imposed a sentence to Bridgewater and suspended the same and placed the defendant in the care of the probation officer for a term of six months.

Thomas F. Murray was sent to the state farm as were also John Nugent and Daniel Casey. Frank Charles was given a suspended sentence of five months in jail, while the following second offenders were fined $5 each: Michael J. Egan, Michael Doherty, Matthew Garrigan and Fred Totten. Three first offenders were fined $2 each, while four others were released by the probation officer

NEWS OF CHELMSFORD

Notes From Every Part of the Town

"The Moral Equivalent of War" was the subject of the morning sermon at the Central Congregational church yesterday, of which Rev. Earle Allan Roadman is pastor. A special feature was the singing by a choir of nine boys of the parish, consisting of Edward Bailey, William Burg, Henry Burg, Clifford Blaisdell, Gerald Kennedy, Ralph Boyd, Winthrop Stuart, William Scoble and Donald Adams. Miss Small of Lowell was the leader of the choir. During the services Miss Small sang a solo, "Abide With Me." Mr. Readman has organized an order to be called "The Knights of King Arthur," each member to represent one of King Arthur's knights and at each meeting one knight will be discussed and studied. Rev. Mr. Roadman bears the title Sir Percival.

The other sermons preached yesterday were as follows: Central Unitarian, pastor Rev. L. L. Green. Subject at morning service: "Daily Food for Human Nature."

Central Baptist church, pastor, Rev. Charles Ellis; subject at morning service, "Our Country's Debt to Christ." Evening services, "Units in Making Our Country God's Country."

All Saints' church, pastor, Rev. Wilson Waters; subject in morning. "The Good Shepherd and the Door."

The game between the Burnsides of Lowell and the Indians of Chelmsford, played Saturday afternoon in the rear of the Holt farm on the Indians' new football field was won by the Burnsides, the score being 24 to 0. The second period ended with a touchdown for the Indians made by F. Dlail and at the end of the third period the Indians kicked the ball over the goal, while the Burnsides got a touchdown. The fourth period gave the Burnsides another goal. Exceptionally good rushing was made by C. Douglas and exceptionally good tackling by J. Hollis. Although Small, Hollis is one of the team's fastest men and best tacklers.

Mrs. Fred Park of the South village has returned from Ayer, where she went to celebrate with her daughter and son, Charlotte and Philip, the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Hall, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Bixby.

Miss Alma Harris spent Sunday at her home in the Centre.

Mr. Earle Lovely, who departed from this town a few weeks ago for Virginia, has left his friends there and continued to Texas, where he will remain through the winter months. Mr. Lovely, who since his school days has traveled almost constantly has seen a large portion of the United States.

The teacher and the pupils of the ninth grade gladly welcomed to their class room Annie Mullin, a former Chelmsford resident who has for the past few years been living in Lowell but now is to live with her brother James at the farm of Mr. Howard Swift. She is one of the youngest pupils in the ninth grade, having received a double promotion while in Lowell through hard studying.

The Chelmsford schools will close the 28th of November, Thanksgiving day, and will reopen Dec. 2nd.

Two days after the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fay, accompanied by Mr. William Grover, a postal was received from Mrs. Fay, stating that in a few short minutes they would steam away from New York on their way to the land of sunshine and flowers, Cuba.

Miss Florence Kennedy of South Chelmsford visited her parents Saturday in honor of her father's birthday. Mr. Fred Kennedy was the recipient of many gifts.

Mr. Charles Mullin, a former resident of Chelmsford, now residing at Lowell, spent Sunday with his sister and brother James, who lives on the farm of Mr. Howard Swift.

Mrs. Jennie Macomber entertained the Ladies' auxiliary of the Boy Scouts at her home Wednesday.

The next meeting of the Dux Christus will be held in the vestry of the Second Congregational church Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The afternoon's speech will be made by Miss Lee who will talk on "Simple Home Remedies." Mrs. C. H. Crowell will discuss timely topics and Mrs. William C. H. Moe will preside. The musical program is to be in charge of Mrs. Geo. H. Ripley.

The residence of Mr. Edwin Swain on Gay street is undergoing extensive improvements. Three large chambers are to be added to his house.

A new coat of paint has improved the appearance of the residence of Mr. Henry Woods on Middlesex street.

Mr. Philip Vasselin, who is confined to the Lowell General hospital on account of illness, is resting comfortably.

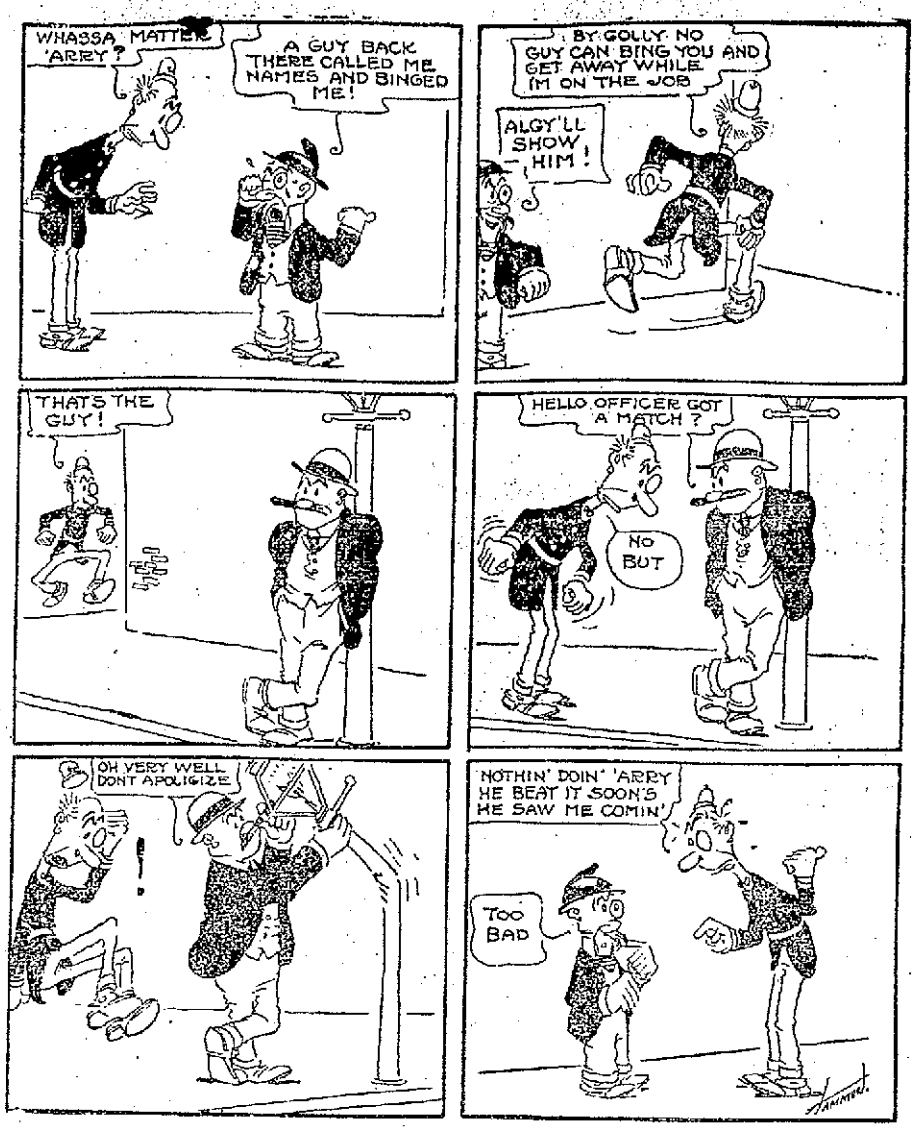

The North Chelmsford Boy Scouts will start holding first-aid-to-the-injured meetings next month at their headquarters. The instructions in the international red cross course will be given by Dr. F. E. Varney, the local physician.

Arrangements are being made by Mr. Alfred Freeze, electrician, to instruct the members of the Boy Scouts in wireless telegraphy; also Mr. Arthur Trubey, principal of the North Chelmsford high and grammar schools, is to give a course in manual training at the headquarters. Scoutmaster Jas. Kiberd had charge of a party of scouts who visited an ocean liner and warships in Boston harbor Saturday. The scouts also made a trip to the immigration department.

The Ladies' Aid will meet Thursday at the Second Congregational church

Jack Dickenson, North Chelmsford's crack shot, returned home the other day with a large brace of partidges.

SCHOONER WENT ASHORE

Unknown Vessel Signals for Help

CHATHAM, Nov. 18.—An unknown three masted schooner was ashore off Nauset at dawn today signalling for help. She reported that she was leaking and had lost several sails. The Nauset lifesaving crew boarded her and the vessel, which was apparently loaded with coal from some southern port, headed back toward Nantucket shoals. The revenue cutter Acushnet was notified and was expected to reach the schooner during the day.

Miss Anna W. Devereaux, the former supervisor of kindergarten work in this city, will commence her work at Wellesley next Monday. Miss Devereaux's work there will be practically the same as it has been here. The kindergarten over which she will have supervision will be opened Tuesday at the Nohoiden club. She has selected as her assistant Miss Linda Chisholm of Marblehead, one of her former pupils, who received her training at the Lowell Normal school. The work of the training class at the Normal school there will be commenced just as soon as it is convenient after the opening of the kindergartens, so that all of the students from the college department of education may get as much experience as possible by actual observation of the kindergarten work.

Rev. W. T. Sumner Ill

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—The condition of the Very Rev. Walter T. Sumner, dean of the cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul, Chicago, who is ill at a Boston hospital, was improved today. The surgeons say that Dean Sumner apparently has appendicitis, but no operation will be performed at this time. The dean will remain at the hosital for ten days or two weeks and rest thoroughly before returning to Chicago.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

Rev. Fr. Schofield officiated at both masses at St. John's church, North Chelmsford, yesterday and after making the customary weekly announcements, he spoke on matters of general interest and also read a letter from Cardinal O'Connell.

At the Second Congregational church Rev. Charles L. Fowler replaced Rev. William C. H. Moe. The topic of the sermon at the morning service was "What Think Ye of Christ?" while at the evening service appropriate selections were rendered by the choir.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House

Sousa, the world's renowned musician and his band were in this city yesterday and they rendered a most pleasing program before a fair sized audience at the Opera House. The program called for nine numbers, but before the musicians could retire from the stage, ten encores had been rendered.

The audience could have been larger, but it seems that the lovers of good music are too busy on Sunday to attend, but however, those present greatly enjoyed the talent displayed by the musicians and the latter were loudly applauded for their work, for the audience was very appreciative and voiced their feelings by the many encores they called for.

FRECKLES

Story plays—those which have been adapted from some popular novel—have been among the most interesting productions the stage has had. Among the successful producers of book plays in America is A. G. Delamater, whose "Quo Vadis" and "Beverly of Graustark" are well remembered by hundreds of theatregoers. Both were most interesting plays and clean ones. Theatre-goers will be pleased to know that he has arranged to produce Gene Stratton-Porter's delightful nature play, "Freckles," which will be seen at the Opera House tonight for three nights and a matinee.

When it is considered "Freckles" was a leader of all best sellers—there have been over a million readers of the first story of this remarkable woman who has lived her life in the Limberlost Swamp country of Indiana.—it will be understood that to secure the playing rights was no small problem. It was Delamater's record for clean plays and his reputation in producing in the most complete and exhaustive manner, everything he undertook, that secured for him these rights over many competitors, among them the most prominent in America.

THE QUESTION

In that fascinating new play, "The Question," which this city is to see for the first time at the Lowell Opera House on Saturday, matinee and night, Nov. 23, theatre-goers are brought face to face with a condition which has of late years become an insidiously threatening problem in the social structure. Forrest Halsey wrote the story which Sherman Dix has made the play. Magazine readers are well acquainted with the keen incisiveness of Mr. Halsey's diction.

P. PAUL-MARCEL

The sale of seats for the engagement at the Opera House next Friday night of P. Paul-Marcel and his excellent company, go on sale at the box office tomorrow morning.

WARD AND VOKES

Ward and Vokes, the well known creators of humorous disturbances, will be seen at the Opera House Thursday, Nov. 21, in their musical comedy success, "A Run on the Bank." This entertainment is said to go with a snap—introducing a large chorus of good-looking girls and a number of tuneful songs. An entirely new production has been made for this show.

One of the features of the performance will be Miss Lucy Daly with her effervescent fun with the Lucy laughs and songs through the major part of the show. "A Run on the Bank" has a safe foundation for a lot of fun in its conception of the Percy and Harold characters, and with this fruitful source for a working basis, Ward and Vokes will be seen to their best advantage.

Keith's

The act superb. Conroy's diving models, will surely draw many thousands of persons to the B. F. Keith theatre this week. The act is one without a peer in the world today, inasmuch as it places as much stress on the scenic embellishments as upon the glories of the well developed human figure. Carl Statzer & Co. have been engaged to give that whimsical affair called "Babies a la Carte," and Harry Breen, the daffydillist, will be present with a bundle of new near-poems and sayings. Breen is one of the funniest men in public today. Bradlee & Martin in "At the Movies," have a distinctly clever little satire on the prevailing craze of the times, and Ross and Lane are singers and talkers in a pleasing medium. Jenkins and Covert offer a bright act, and Jerome and Lewis, the fashion plates, and Nehar and Kappel, roller skaters, complete the big bill. Good seats for all performances during the week may be secured in advance. Phone 28.

The Playhouse

Charles Klein's wonderful drama, "The Third Degree," which is to be given by The Drama Players at The Playhouse (formerly the Hathaway theatre), this week, should prove one of the strongest attractions produced at this popular theatre since the formal opening of the season. The piece is one of Klein's best efforts and ranks with the most successful plays of modern productions. The fact that it ran 100 nights at the Hudson theatre, New York city, should be sufficiently assuring of its real worth. Miss Jackson and Miss Young will appear in roles that will give them greater opportunity than ever before to show their artistic accomplishments, while Mr. Smythe and the other male members of the cast will appear to advantage. Charles Crymble, formerly with the Donald Meek Stock Co., and who has been assistant treasurer of The Playhouse Co. since its opening, will appear in this week's cast. Mr. Crymble has many friends in the city who no doubt will be pleased to learn of his return to the stage. Tonight and Tuesday afternoon photos of Mr. Smythe will be given to all ladies occupying orchestra seats.

Merrimack Square Theatre

For the program at the Merrimack Square theatre this week, Manager Carroll has arranged a bill that he as well as his many patrons will no doubt be more than pleased with. It contains variety as well as quality and heading the list are to be the Niblo lecturers. The subject for the first three days is Russia, while for Thursday, Friday and Saturday Spain will be the topic. Special Friday evening performance of "The Bull Fight." Among others who will assist in making the program a satisfying one are The Merrymakers in "Just Home from College." The Baseball Players' quartet, stars of the diamond, in song, Harris Adams, singer of real songs, and then of course, the pictures, which always are good. 'Phone 2053.

"CASCARETS" BEST BOWEL CLEANSER

Headache, Sour Stomach, Biliousness Gone by Morning

Furred tongue, bad taste indigestion, sallow skin and miserable headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

A WORD TO THE VOTERS

Again it becomes the duty of the voters of Lowell to select municipal officers under the new charter which took effect in January of the present year. The other cities of the country are watching the effect of the change to see whether it has brought an improvement in our city government and if not, to ascertain the reason why. What can we say of the charter thus far?

Has it improved our city government or has it not?

We confess that we cannot see much improvement thus far, yet this is not the fault of the charter but of the people themselves.

Under the charter no political party has control, no political committee dictates nominations, no ward boss controls elections and yet the results are not much. If at all better than the conditions that prevailed under the old charter.

Why is this the case?

Simply, because from one cause or another the voters have not selected the best men available to fill the offices.

They have chosen some men who have mismanaged the city's business, who have proved incompetent by every proper test that can be applied to public officials.

At the primaries tomorrow they will have an opportunity to select men who will give the city better service, who will be more careful of the city's money and who will expend it more fairly and more honestly for the benefit of the public at large.

If as it is alleged, the city's funds are paid out in large amounts to men placed in unnecessary or ornamental positions in lieu of political or other service, it is time the people retired the officials responsible for such extravagance and put others in their places who will spend the appropriations for honest labor rather than for political heelers, bums and loafers.

The solution of the problem of municipal government is simple if the voters only exercise reasonable judgment in the selection of men who can be relied upon to conduct the city's business in every department, not for enriching themselves or their intimate friends and supporters, but wisely and honestly for the benefit of all the people.

Therefore, if any of the officials now seeking re-election have been found incompetent dishonest or negligent of their public duties, if they have made matters worse instead of better while spending large amounts of the city's money, then it is in order to make a change that will instal able, honest, competent and experienced men in office, men who instead of using their office for the demoralization of the public service, will labor intelligently to promote, improve and elevate that service.

The good judgment, the fairness and intelligence of the voters will be tested in the primaries tomorrow and upon the result will largely depend whether good and efficient men or bad and dishonest men shall fill the prospective vacancies at city hall.

BALKAN WAR SLAUGHTER

It is to be regretted that the negotiations for an armistice in the Balkan war have failed and that the fearful slaughter will, therefore, be continued in all probability until Constantinople is taken by the allies. That end is desirable from the Christian standpoint but the slaughter necessary to attain it will be frightful.

No other war of modern times has been attended with such fearful slaughter as the present war against Turkey. The Balkan allies found their armies unprepared but rashly conceited and exhorted by fanatical leaders, the Turks were ready to rush into the cannon's mouth or stand defenseless to be hewn down by the deadly artillery fire. It is estimated that at Kirk-Kilessch and around Adrianople the Turks lost 25,000, Bulgarians 7000, while at Lule Burgas and in succeeding retreats the Turks lost 40,000, the Bulgarians 20,000. In subsequent battles at Kumanova the Turks lost 7000, the Servians 5000, while in a number of other battles with the Bulgarians the Servians, Greeks and Montenegrins, the Turks lost in battle, it is estimated, about 50,000 men, 25,000 of whom, however, were taken as prisoners of war by Greece, the others being slain in battle.

But the actual casualties in battle were not more terrible than the suffering from famine and disease among the army and the refugees who fled before the invading foe expecting to find protection and food, but who finding neither were left to starve and die.

The situation in Turkey today is one of the most appalling that can be imagined despite the stubborn resistance along the forts at Tchatalja. In spite of past atrocities perpetrated by Turkey upon the Christians, her condition today appeals to the Christian world for relief. The Red Cross society is making the best use of the resources at its command but more money and more material assistance are urgently needed.

Should the Bulgarian army enter the Turkish capital it might suffer more from cholera, smallpox and other diseases than from the worse fire of the Turkish forts. The situation calls loudly for remedial measures, and it is to be hoped that the powers of Europe will intervene not only to bring about permanent peace but to check the spread of cholera and smallpox and relieve the famine which is decimating the residents of the Turkish capital at the present hour. Turkey should be driven from Europe but with a minimum loss of life and suffering, not only to her armies but also to the allies who, however, are determined to fight on at all hazards until they plant their flags upon the mosques of Constantinople.

FATALITIES IN COAL MINES

The Bureau of Mines at Washington has issued a pamphlet showing the number of deaths and casualties in the coal mines in the country for the first eight months of 1912. The total number of men killed in the mines during this period was 1463. This is said to be a decrease over the number for the same period of last year although it seems to be unnecessarily large. During the calendar year of 1911 there were 2719 men killed in and about the mines of the United States as compared with 2840 men in 1910. It appears that in 1910 and 1911 there was one death for every 177,000 tons of coal mined. The government bureau of mines seems to take pleasure in announcing a decrease in the number of deaths but there is yet much room for improvement and if the mine inspectors would only insist upon safe methods of work and proper precautions against accidents we believe the death rate could be reduced to less than half what it is at the present time. There is no business in this country in which there are so many fatalities as in coal mining and there is no other country in the world that has nearly so many fatal accidents in its mines in proportion to the work accomplished. What is true of our mines in this respect is equally true of our railroads which have vastly more accidents in proportion to the extent of the traffic than the railroads of Europe. It would appear that the mine operators and the railroad companies care mainly for accumulating dividends and as a result their employes are left without proper protection and hence there is a greater percentage of fatalities than in the same lines of business in any other country of the world.

ANOTHER LAWRENCE PARADE

The city of Lawrence has formed an association to boom the city and support the city government in measures calculated to promote prosperity, peace and order among the people. It has been arranged to have another great parade on Thanksgiving day, this to be another demonstration against the I. W. W. and for industrial peace.

It is likely that at that time the Ettor trial will have been finished and the outcome known so that the effect upon the people whether favorable or otherwise will be felt before Thanksgiving. It is not expected that the I. W. W. leaders will make their headquarters in Lawrence, even though they get out of the meshes of the law. There is certainly a determination in Lawrence not to tolerate any further abuse or disturbance from the I. W. W. and if the leaders attempt to create any disorder the result may be very serious. It is expected, however, that the cool heads who are directing the affairs of government in Lawrence will stand firmly for strict observance of the law not only by the I. W. W. but by those who despise that organization and wish to see it banished from the city.

COMPOSITION LESSONS

It is a mistake to try to teach history and English composition in the same lesson. When pupils get an historical subject on which to write they devote their time to looking up the facts and then they copy the language from books. If given simple topics on which they will have to draw upon their own knowledge or upon their imagination, they must write an original story that will be entirely their own. Such an exercise will be worth a score of the historical kind where the ideas, the facts and the construction are found ready made.

TIME TO COOL OFF

King George did a wise thing in advising the speaker to put off any further sitting of parliament until the belligerents have time to reflect sufficiently upon their foolishness. The Ulster men who threatened to use bullets have come down to use books and papers as missiles aimed at the head of Premier Asquith. They should equip themselves with bean blowers with which they could besiege the opposition. These noisy advocates of old time tyrannies are disgracing themselves and their country in the eyes of the world.

RUBBISH ON STREETS

Some of the streets of this city are so badly littered with rubbish that they are a menace to motorists. All kinds of rubbish, including pieces of wood, ropes, nails, glass and other materials are scattered about on the streets in question. If the street department does not pay proper attention to these public thoroughfares then the abutters should be required to keep them reasonably clean. Some of the street sweepers who have hard work to keep busy on clean streets should be sent for a part of their time to the streets that need their services.

THE GRAND TRUNK

The New England states are greatly disappointed at the sudden change in the plans of the Grand Trunk railroad in its decision not to construct a new line to Boston. It will have a joint traffic arrangement with the New York, New Haven & Hartford and thus the chance of competition will be eliminated. The people are already protesting against the prospective monopoly and every legislature in New England will probably act upon the matter after the first of January.

The Hosfords! Do you remember this well known social organization of a decade ago? Recollections of some of their "doings" came to me the other day when I happened to come across a scrap book with two or three accounts of some of the "times" in which those boys used to indulge. I could not help but laugh when I recalled the famous basketball game between teams captained by John Sligo and Mike Finucan. Since then I have seen many an exhibition of this sport, but never have I been present where such a battle was put up as that between the Sligoites and the Finucans. The celebrated Mike was as graceful a dancer as he was a clever ball player, could cake-walk with any man in the country, and last but not least was the idol of the ladies at all the dances which the Hosfords conducted. Little Johnny Curry, too, was then at the height of his social career and was in great demand at all these entertainments and dances. Street parades, however, were the boys' strong suit. Those were the days when from one end of the country to the other were to be found the "Horribles." And it is safe to say that the Hosfords succeeded in getting together the most grotesque aggregation of "horribles" that the country has ever seen. After cleaning up everything in the prize line around Lowell they invaded Boston and other surrounding cities where, pitted against the cream of the "horribles" of those places, they out-horribled their rivals to a standstill and brought many a side of bacon to the Spindle City. Huskin' bees were another form of amusement which the Hosfords made popular in Lowell. At these "times" everybody appeared in farm costume, everybody danced to the tune of country music, and everybody attempted to imitate the speech and manners of farm folks. That they were unsuccessful in this is of course taken for granted, but that they were successful in making the huskin' bees the most enjoyable kind of entertainment for several seasons there can be no doubt. Many such affairs were given under the direction of the Hosfords and so lively were they that to this day they are remembered with pleasure by those who enjoyed tripping the "light fantastic" a dozen years ago. Being so popular an organization it followed that its finances were always in the best of condition, so once a year or so the members used to gather about the board at one or another of the hotels and enjoy a banquet all by themselves. These were always run off in first class style, were the occasions of delightful after-dinner speeches, clever sallies of wit, and jolly anecdotes, and were looked upon by the boys as milestones in the social events of the season. The Hosfords are now scattered and gone, but where a group of their members now chance to meet it is safe to say that they join in the popular saying, "Those were the happy days."

IN NOVEMBER

Now we hear the dropping drip
Of the chill November rain,
As we watch the dripping drops
Flushing on the window pane.
Leaden skies hang dark and low,
And the trees are gaunt and bare.
And we shiver in the dank,
Murky moisture of the air.

But there's light beyond the clouds'
There are joyous times ahead,
When the bright sky will be blue,
And the sunsets will be red.
Now the rain is beating down,
And the skies are dull and gray,
But in just a little while
It will be Thanksgiving Day!

REV. C. ARTHUR LINCOLN

Preached First Sermon at Kirk St. Church

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln preached his first sermon as pastor of the Kirk street church yesterday morning his subject being "Faith, the Creator of Fact." Rev. Mr. Lincoln stated that faith is accepted unreservedly by the heart and that having once been accepted it appeals to the mind and that it is not primarily a matter of reason.

"We will consider three phases of faith." We will touch upon the field on which creative faith operates, the nature of that faith and the methods through which we may secure results from it.

"Faith operates on the objective nature of man. Once accepted it produces many changes. It is capable of erasing the lines of worry and of care and in some instances of the lines of dissipation. It brings new life into an old body.

"And faith accepted by one has its effects upon the lives of other men. Many a man deep in sin has been affected by the faith of a good woman. Faith creates faith, and wherever it goes there is gladness. Not long ago I heard a young man preaching the power of reason over all things. I would not decry reason. The Christian religion is the most reasonable religion in the world. It was not any process of reasoning which made the disciples call Jesus the Son of God. Their love for this man, Jesus, came from the heart first of all, and after the heart's outburst of faith came the appeal to their heads, and then later men began establishing systems of theology.

"We believe because we wish to believe. Otherwise there is nothing to be said in defense of Jesus. We believe that the better things are the more eternal ones.

"You believe that God is good. You believe that he has the power to fulfil every one of your great desires. But are you permitting him to do this? When your heart goes up in prayer do you feel a little doubt that grips you and seems to throw a wet blanket on your faith? If you do, then your faith is not the perfect faith, you have not surrendered yourself to that condition of heart which allows you to believe in the efficacy of your petition to the Heavenly Father.

"How is it with men who are good, moral men but who are not Christians? Is there not distrust about the things of life, distrust of man present in their thoughts and actions?

"I would not say that a man who is a good, moral man, and who is not a Christian is in absolute darkness, but is it not true that he has not come fully into the light?"

The preacher referred to the late John Watson's story, "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," as an example of faith and hope succeeding fear. He spoke of Flora Campbell, the daughter of the ruggest Lahlan Campbell, going to London and hiding herself away there, nursing the thought of her shame, and fearing to go to her father's home. She had not the hope to send her back to his arms. And then, as if in a dream, she heard the preaching of the minister who spoke of the shepherd missing his lost sheep, and she took counsel for fear, not of hope, and hid herself on a train that was headed homewards. Arriving at night, she crossed the moor, the dogs heard her coming and licked her hands with their warm, kind tongues. And then that stern father, whose heart was so nearly broken, came to the door, clasped her in his arms and gave her the first kiss since she had been a child. Hope then succeeded the fear.

"Hope and love make possible the creation of a new life in men," said the preacher. "Why not take counsel of that hope and have quiet peace in life? We should not put it all on the Lord of life, and expect the cure. Every man must do his share, must come in faith. Faith makes possible every one of the great activities of life, not only the activities of this earth, but the spiritual activities. Briefly, the great English author, has said that the greatest spectacle in the world is that of faith working on a personality.

"We are on the eve of a mighty revival of faith, the synthesis of all life, the explanation of all history, the dawn of an age devoted to humanity.

"In this city are great activities going on, great material changes, but greater than these is the power of faith in this community. Though men develop great inventions, put together vast combinations, all that is truly worth while depends on that faith we exercise on each other and in each other."

Calvary Baptist Church

"Our Country, God's Country," was the subject of a very fine sermon given at the Calvary Baptist church yesterday by Rev. Asa Reed Dills.

The following is a brief account of Rev. Mr. Dills' sermon: He thought that a good proof of the fact of God's ruling the country was shown by the recent happenings in New York city and by the presidential election. He said that for many years he had been a staunch reporter of the republican party but today he thanked God that he had been defeated as the republican party had not been doing right.

He felt that our material wealth in crops and business prosperity was due to God and it was an opportunity given especially for missionary work. He believed that this country is the one chosen by God to evangelize the world. This he claimed could easily be seen as God made this country and put the best of the Anglo-Saxon race into it and so when we see the great evils of today we may be certain that God's judgment will fall upon them if not immediately within the course of a short time.

The services of the day began "Home Mission Week." Mrs. A. B. Upham was the speaker of the evening service. She described in a very interesting talk the work being done by the missionaries among the Cherokee Indians.

Services are to be held Tuesday and Thursday evening. Thursday evening Rev. F. W. Padleford is to give a sterl-opticon lecture on "Alien or American," a lecture which clearly tells just what the immigration of today means to this country.

SCHOOL FARMING

In Alaska Has Proved to Be a Very Successful Operation, According to U. S. Bureau of Education

The school farm movement has penetrated Alaska. From the school at Klukwan, in southern Alaska, comes a basket of potatoes, turnips, carrots and other vegetables consigned to the United States bureau of education. Several of the products are of a size and weight that would be remarkable in a far more propitious climate than that of Alaska.

The school at Klukwan is one of 81 public schools for natives maintained by the bureau of education in Alaska. In a number of these, gardening is carried on with distinct profit to the school and the community. The teacher from Shungnak, within the Arctic circle, reports that he supervised the making of 17 native gardens and four large school gardens. He instructed the school children and adults in soaking seed, planting, cutting potato eyes, spading, hoeing, raking, thinning, weeding, transplanting, watering—in fact, in all the operations necessary for successful gardening. One-third of an acre he set apart as a model garden; on this he experimented with different products and eventually obtained a good supply of vegetables for use in cooking classes. Radishes, turnips, peas, rutabagas, carrots, beets, cabbages, potatoes, lettuce, kohl-rabi, parsnips, and a few other vegetables did well in this Arctic garden; onions, beans and cucumbers were unsuccessful.

At Eagle, Fort Yukon, Unalaska, and Kiawock similar results in gardening are reported. In Unalaska the school farm at first contained only a few plats of rye and wheat, and some kitchen vegetables, but this year a more ambitious experiment was made. The children not only worked a school garden in which each had a patch of his own, but also cultivated a larger farm at some distance from the school.

Although the season is short in these Alaska settlements, the vegetables often attain good growth. In Klukwan the temperature ranges from 81 in summer to 27 below zero in winter. At Klawock the children were able to begin preparing their ground by the first of April, and elsewhere many of the vegetables were in by May.

The work in school gardening illustrates the general principle on which the government is working in the schools of Alaska—that education shall be something more than mere schooling; that it shall be preparation for the life the natives have to lead. Sewing, cooking, and carpentry are prominent subjects in the schools. "The education of the natives of Alaska," says a recent report of the bureau of education, "is conceived as meaning their advancement in civilization. Superintendents, teachers, physicians, and nurses must regard themselves as social workers striving to elevate the native races intellectually, morally and physically."

FUNERAL OF JOHN GRADY

Lowell Boy Who Was Killed Buried Today

DECEASED WAS ELECTROCUTED AT MESSALON, OHIO

Services Were Largely Attended—Interment Took Place in the New Mt. Calvary Cemetery, Boston

The funeral of John W. Grady, the Lowell boy who was killed last Monday morning as a result of being electrocuted while at work on a telephone pole in Messalon, Ohio, took place this morning from the home of his father, William Grady, 22 Maple street, and it was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The cortege left the house of mourning at 8.30 o'clock and wended its way to the Sacred Heart church, where at 8.45 o'clock a requiem high mass was sung by Rev. James McDermott, O. M. I. The choir under the direction of John J. Kelly, rendered the Gregorian funeral mass. The sanctuary choir sustained the solos. The church was well filled with friends and neighbors of the bereaved family, and the profusion of floral offerings in evidence testified to the high esteem in which deceased was held. Deceased, while a young man of but 20 years of age, had made remarkable progress in this world. He left Lowell several years ago, and went to Somerville, where he became an expert lineman. Only a few weeks ago he arrived in Messalon, Ohio, where he immediately secured employment at his chosen work. Last Monday morning, while at his work he came in contact with a live wire and fell to the ground. His body arrived in Lowell Saturday.

After leaving the church this morning the cortege proceeded to the Middlesex street station and the body, with the members of the family and other mourners boarded the 9.45 train for Boston, where interment took place in the New Mt. Calvary cemetery.

END LIVER TROUBLE WITHOUT CALOMEL

Untrustworthy Drug, Thought to Loosen the Teeth, Now Made Absolutely Unnecessary

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are the mildest but surest laxative known, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. Dr. Edwards has been calomel's uncompromising foe. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets, a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil. These pleasant, harmless little tablets do all the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel at all, but to let Olive Tablets take their place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" the clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits.

At 10c and 25c a box. "Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

PAID $579 FOR IDLE POTIONS

Young Girl Had Fortune Teller Arrested When Harvest Moon Failed to Restore Lover

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Love powders and other magical charms cost Mary Jarrin over $500, or practically all her life's savings as a servant girl, before she realized they were powerless to win back a swain who had jilted her.

She told this story to a magistrate in police court yesterday, when Jane Grindle was arraigned as an alleged fortune teller and accused of grand larceny. The girl said she went to the woman with her troubles, told her how she was engaged to be married, quarrelled with her sweetheart and how he disappeared.

The fortune teller prescribed a love powder. The girl had $75 saved then and thought the powder cheap at that But after wearing it for months next to her heart as prescribed she failed to learn anything of the lost lover.

Every little while she would return disconsolate to the fortune teller who suggested further magical charms and charged her more money. In all the girl said she had paid $579 to the woman, the sum representing the entire savings of her life. As a last resort the seeress advised the girl to pin her faith on the harvest moon. When this waxed and waned, but the love did not come, the girl reported her troubles to the police.

The accused woman was held in $1500 bail.

MISUSE OF THE MAILS ALLEGED

Most Important Case Called for Trial in the United States District Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The federal government called for trial in the United States district court here today what it considers one of its most important cases growing out of alleged misuse of the mails. It involves the integrity of the so-called Hawthorne group of mining stocks and brings to the bar as defendants men of national reputation. They are five in number: Julian Hawthorne, son of the novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne; Josiah Quincy, former mayor of Boston and assistant secretary of state in the Cleveland administration; Albert Freeman, a promoter; Dr. W. J. Norton, a nerve specialist, and John McKinnon, secretary-treasurer of the Hawthorne companies. All are engaged, directly or indirectly, in the sale of stock in the Hawthorne Silver & Iron Mines Co. and allied concerns and were indicted in New York last January for alleged use of the mails to defraud.

The action of the government is based on the alleged misrepresentation and false statements contained in the literature sent through the mails concerning mines of the Continental syndicate located near the Cobalt district in Canada. These mines were described as the Temagami Cobalt mines, limited, the Elk lake Cobalt mines, the Montreal Cobalt mines, the Hawthorne Silver & Iron mines, and the Julian Hawthorne Co. The government alleges that these mines are outside of the silver producing belt at Cobalt and that this fact was suppressed in the circulars and letters sent out. Julian Hawthorne, it is alleged, was selected for his ability to write glowing descriptions and because his name on the prospectus and together with that of Josiah Quincy would inspire confidence among investors.

GIBSON ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Lawyer is Accused of Having Caused Death of His Client, Mrs. Rosa M. Szabo

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 18.—One hundred and ninety talesmen, most of them farmers, crowded into the little courtroom here today for the trial of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, charged with first degree murder in causing the death of his client, Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szabo. The attorneys hoped to fill the jurybox today and the prosecution thought that it might be ready to rest its case by Thursday.

Dist. Atty. Rogers will endeavor to prove that Mrs. Szabo's death while boating with Gibson in Greenwood lake July 16, last was due not to drowning but to strangulation and that Gibson hurled her from the rowboat which they occupied, into the water, grappled with her and choked her to death.

Dr. Otto Schultze of New York, the coroner's physician who performed the autopsy, testified at Gibson's examination that Mrs. Szabo died of strangulation by "compression from without."

The defense holds that Mrs. Szabo died of drowning and that her death was accidental. Gibson had not decided this forenoon whether he would take the stand.

As a motive for the alleged murder the state will seek to prove that Gibson coveted his client's $10,000 estate, of which under a will drawn by him for Mrs. Szabo he was named as executor. Mr. Rogers will attempt to show that $7100 of this estate, partially administered by Gibson prior to his arrest, is missing. Jacob Singer, of Gibson's counsel, said today that the $7100 was paid to a woman known to Gibson as Mrs. Petronella Menschik, mother of Mrs. Szabo, and that Gibson had receipts to prove it.

Mrs. Petronella Menschik died in Vienna two years ago. The woman whom Gibson says impersonated her, has vanished.

MATRIMONIAL

A very pretty wedding took place this morning in St. Joseph's church, when Mr. Ernest Bedard, formerly of this city and now of North Cambridge and Miss Marie Louise Roux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roux of 29 White street, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 7 o'clock by Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., pastor. The bride who wore a handsome gown of white satin and the veil of the Notre Dame de Lourdes, sodality, was given away by her father. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridegroom was escorted to the altar by his father, Mr. Pierre Bedard of this city. During the mass appropriate hymns were rendered by the Notre Dame de Lourdes sodality choir of which the bride was a member. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting couple. The couple left on the 10.45 o'clock train for Sherbrooke, Que., where they will spend their honeymoon. They will return to this city on Nov. 27, at which time a reception will be tendered them at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Bedard, who were the recipients of many useful gifts, will make their home in North Cambridge.

BEDARD—PLANTE

Mr. Alfred Bedard and Miss Marie Louise Plante were married this morning, the ceremony being performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock in St. Joseph's church, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Charles Paquette, O. M. I. The young couple were attended by Messrs. Pierre Bedard and Etienne Plante. After the mass a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 160 South street.

DAIGNAULT—HUBERT

Mr. Edouard Daignault and Miss Clara Hubert were married this morning. The ceremony took place at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock in the private chapel of St. Joseph's rectory by Rev. Charles Denizot, O. M. I., D. D. The happy couple were attended by Messrs. Edmond Desaulniers and Octavien Drainville. At the close of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at 182 Riverside street and at 11.30 o'clock the couple left on a brief honeymoon trip.

VISITOR FROM THE WEST

Rev. J. Paille Renewing Acquaintances

HE IS HERE FROM McLEOD, ALBERTA

And Talked Freely on the Conditions and Climate of That Section of the Country

Rev. Joseph Paille, O. M. I., a former Lowell boy, and son of the late Alphonse Paille, now of McLeod, Alberta, Canada, is the guest of the Oblate Fathers of Notre Dame de Lourdes parish. His visit to the east was in order to secure if possible an order of nuns to establish an academy in his parish. Today he is to meet the mother superior of the Sisters of Notre Dame and he feels confident that she will agree and consent to send sisters to Western Canada. During his sojourn in the states Fr. Paille has visited about 20 different communities but so far has not met with success, as no order has any of its members to spare.

Rev. Fr. Paille who received his early education at St. Joseph's college, this city, had been away from Lowell for 20 years. Shortly after he was ordained he was sent in the missions of the west and has remained there ever since. He first preached the gospel in North Battleford, from there going to Prince Albert. Later he went to the Saskatchewan district and three months ago he was transferred to McLeod, Alberta, which is situated about 106 miles south of Calgary. His territory covers about 45 miles and his flock is composed of French and English speaking people, the latter dominating in numbers.

He is pastor of the parish and has one assistant. There is a fine church, a parochial school, and what is now badly needed is an academy and the reverend gentleman hopes to have that established before many moons. In speaking about the climate in McLeod, Fr. Paille said it could not be better. It is especially recommended for the unfortunates suffering from tuberculosis or other incurable diseases. "The climate is dry and we have very little snow," continued Fr. Paille, "and the snow is so scarce that a sleigh or winter wagon of any kind is not known in the district. A snow fall is always followed by what is called the Chinook winds, which is a warm breeze from the Pacific coast, and which melts the snow the minute it is on the ground. "McLeod is a good railroad centre, for at present there are two roads, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern, and before a year two other roads which are now in process of construction will be finished. The place will then be a division point for railroads."

Fr. Paille claims McLeod is a great place for manufacturing purposes, as there is plenty of coal which is sold very cheap, and also good water service. The country is fine for wheat growing, as well as for the culture of grain and hay, while the soil for vegetable growing cannot be excelled. However, the farmers of that district prefer the raising of wheat, and it is claimed if a New England farmer were to go and settle in that district and go into the vegetable growing business he would make a fortune in no time. The wheat is plentiful as there are generally two crops a year, the fall and spring crops. Fr. Paille would be pleased to give information regarding the country to any one who would wish it, by addressing the letters to Rev. Joseph Paille, O. M. I., McLeod, Alberta.

The visitor will leave this evening for Waltham and from there he will go to New York, where he will board a train for Chicago, later returning to his missions. While in this city he was visited by a large number of his former school mates, who were pleased to renew acquaintances.

POLICE MUST KEEP BUSY

Told to be Watchful at the Polls

Mayor O'Donnell today sent the following letter to the superintendent of police.

Office of the Mayor,
Lowell, Mass., Nov. 18, 1912.

Redmond Welch,
Supt. of Police,

Dear Sir:—

I desire that you instruct all police officers who are to be on duty at the polling booths tomorrow that good order is maintained within the booths at all times; to note and report to you whether or not the precinct officers are in attendance and in the performance of their duties and to make a detailed report to you relative to the general proceedings.

Yours very truly,
James E. O'Donnell, Mayor.

FOR THE MIKADO

Rehearsals Being Held by the Children of Mary Sodality of St. Peter's Church

Rehearsals are being held daily for the presentation of the opera, "The Mikado," by the Children of Mary sodality of St. Peter's church, which is to be staged in the Opera House on Wednesday, December 11. A great deal of interested ahs been manifested in this event and as a result of the earnest efforts which are being made in behalf of the production it should prove a marked success. The best talent in the parish will take part in this and not until one considers what a number of well known singers it includes, will the significance of this statement be realized.

The good results of the visit and sermon of Rev. Doctor McGlinchey, diocesan director, a short time ago when he addressed the members of the congregation in regard to the Catholic mission work of foreign climes, are becoming manifest. A general mass meeting of the parishioners has been announced to take place on next Thursday evening when some definite steps will be taken in regard to aiding and promoting the foreign missionary work. The interest of the greater number of the members of St. Peter's parish was attracted to this important phase of religious work and it is quite certain that the missionary work will benefit therefrom.

Rev. W. George Mullin celebrated the high mass at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and the sermon of the day was delivered by Father Heffernan.

SUSPECTED OF MURDER

Body of Boy Was Found in a Sewer

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Police Chief Gilson of Lackawanna in his search of the murderer of Joseph Josephs, the little Syrian boy of that city, whose dismembered body was found in a sewer Saturday, has narrowed his suspicions on one man whose whereabouts are at present unknown The man sought, according to reports, is an educated technical man who goes all over the east in his work.

Chief Gilson said today that he would go to Rochester this afternoon to examine the man arrested there last night. The funeral of the Josephs boy was held this morning. Mrs. Josephs, mother of the slain boy, is lying in a critical condition and physicians hold out little hope for her recovery.

Mrs. H. W. Blanchard of Wilder street is spending a few days in Waltham.

Mr. F. G. Smith of Chelmsford street has just returned from a trip to New Haven.

ONE DEER FOR EACH HUNTER

The Season in Five Western Counties Opened Today and Will Close Saturday

The open season on deer began at sunrise today in the five western counties of Massachusetts, including Berkshire, Hampden, Hampshire, Franklin and Worcester. Until sunset on Saturday the law permits all licensed hunters to pursue the animals, with the restriction that but one deer is to be killed by any one individual.

Rifles are barred, and the game wardens will also watch for any violation of the law that forbids the use of salt licks or dogs in hunting deer. To overcome the problem of killing deer with a shotgun, manufacturers of shooting equipments have placed a shell on the market that practically converts the shotgun into a rifle. The shell has one single shot the size of a big marble, guaranteed to carry several hundred yards with killing effect.

Those who have been out in the woods during the past week in the counties where deer shooting will be permitted have brought stories that salt licks are in evidence despite the watchfulness of game wardens. A deer's passion for salt is known to the hunter, and there are a number of shooters who make it a point to place a salt lick where deer are plentiful and on the morning of the opening day all he has to do is to sit close by and pot the deer as it comes.

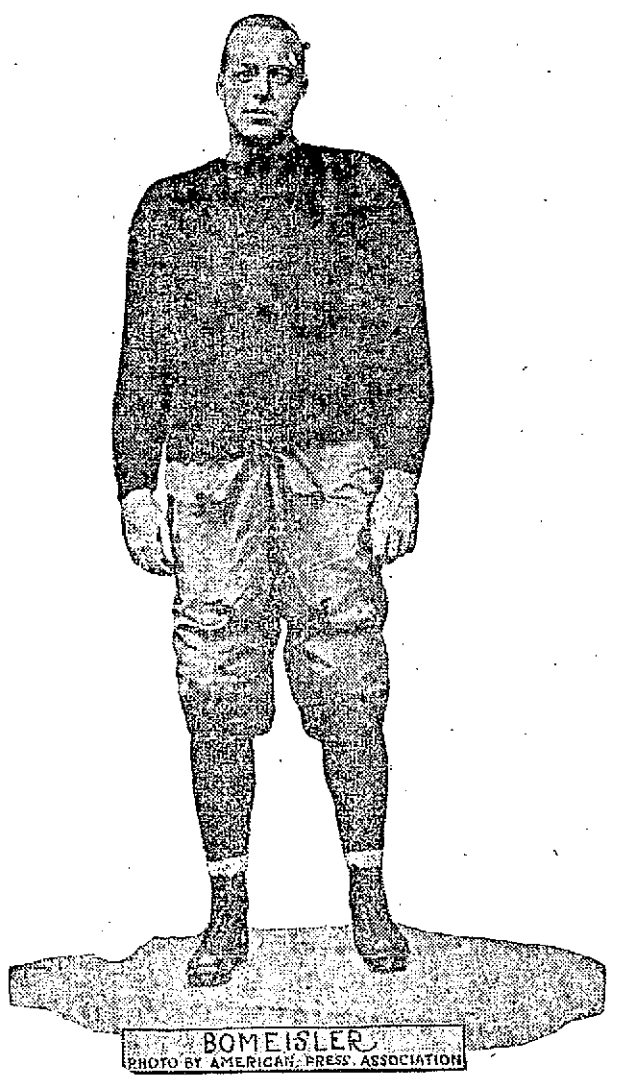

Under the pretense of hunting hare and rabbit other hunters use dogs to run deer. There are all sorts of tricks to land one of the pretty creatures during the week's shooting season. One popular method used by wealthy hunters is to tour the country roads at night in automobiles. Many deer are met on country roads by automobilists, and the glare of auto lamps seems to have a fascination for the animal. A deer will stand spellbound and stupid until an automobile comes within a few yards at night if the auto lamps are especially strong and bright.

Those going into the woods this year for deer are taking extra precautions. They are equipping themselves with red coats and red caps. Hunters are often mistaken for deer and fatalities are frequent where the shooting of deer is permitted. Although few farmers have any sympathy with the deer, because of the damages it is capable of doing in chewing bark off choice fruit trees and destroying gardens, they are spending a very anxious week for fear that over-zealous hunters may shoot carelessly, endangering the lives of their families. One farmer in Worcester county is known to put heavy wooden shutters over his windows during the deer shooting season.

Thousands of men and boys have taken out hunting licenses in this state during the past week. Clerks in the various towns and cities who make out these licenses declare that all records have been broken and that there promises to be more hunters in the woods during this week than ever before in the history of the state.

Deer are plentiful in Massachusetts. The protection that has been given them has multiplied their numbers. It was only last year that the close season was lifted for one week. For over 10 years previous the deer had been protected by law the year round. Over a thousand deer were killed last year during the six days' open season, but even that slaughter has had no effect in cutting down their numbers to any extent.

Douglas Bomeisler, Yale's Star, is King of Hard Luck Players

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—The crown of hard luck king certainly belongs to Douglas Bomeisler, the star Yale end. Injuries kept him out of the majority of games last season, but he recovered in time to make the All American team by spectacular work in the game against Harvard. This season he was still more unfortunate, being laid out in the Holy Cross game and not getting into shape until the Princeton game. Bomeisler is a graduate of the Polytechnic preparatory school of Brooklyn and has played football for several years.

MANY FAMOUS ATHLETES

Are Inclined to Be a Little Superstitious

A great many athletic clubs in holding contests omit the number 13 from their list, as the great majority of athletes will not wear it. There are some, however, who have no fear of it as a hoodoo number.

Alexander Grant some few years ago Pennsylvania's best distance runner, used to request when he sent in an entry for a race that he be given No 13 to wear. His request was always complied with. Grant once won a national championship on Friday the 13th with a competitor's No. 13 on his back.

Field contestants are much more superstitious than trackmen. Jumpers place sticks, handkerchiefs, shoes, etc., all over the field and move a little faster or slower as the case may be as they come across their own marks, but, as a rule, there are so many articles on the field that the contestant can hardly tell which is his.

Many of the best athletes of the world are superstitious, although few of them are affected by the same things. Some high jumpers will not make an effort to jump unless there is a handkerchief over the crosspiece; others will not jump if the handkerchief is on the bar. Some athletes will not have their running togs washed while they are training.

Melvin Sheppard is superstitious about only one thing—the washing of his clothes. He will not have any articles he uses washed while he is in training or running. Only when he retires for a month or so will he have anything cleaned. He says that washing may take his strength away. Sounds ridiculous, but there isn't a chance to clean any of his outfit while he is going well.

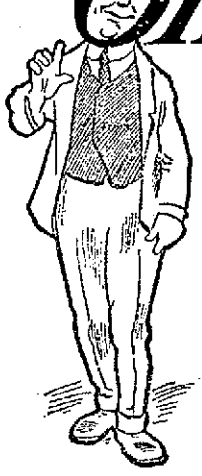

MASS MEETING

Of Celtic Associates Addressed by Several Local Speakers Yesterday Afternoon

Yesterday a mass meeting of the Celtic Associates was held in their hall in Middle street, a large representation being present.

The session was called to order by Dennis J. Crowley and James O'Sullivan was chosen chairman. The speakers were Supt. Molloy, Drs. Bagley and O'Connor of the school board, James J. Gallagher, candidate for the municipal council, and a few others. There were songs and recitations. Refreshments were served.

THE UNCLES AND AUNTS

And What They Mean to Childhood

A child is certainly unfortunate in the extreme if it does not possess uncles and aunts or does not possess the right kind of uncles and aunts, for those of the wrong kind are worse than none. There are aunts and aunts and uncles and uncles, and children, who are the shrewdest judges of human nature in the world, are quick to realize it. A name may mislead them until an aunt comes along, but half an hour in her company is quite enough to convince them whether she is of the right sort or merely an "auntie" they have to put up with.

In the old days, a name was almost enough—Aunt Letitia meant a dragon, Aunt Letty a dear, Aunt Gwendolin meant a "good-gracious-what-dirty-hands" sort of a person; Aunt Wendy, some one who would tell them stories when they went to bed.

But names have changed, though the characteristics of aunts remain the same. Aunt Bessie, in spite of her name, proves to be the mother of a lot of uncomfortable cousins of whose superiority she is always boasting and whose part she is always taking when they come to the house.

When aunts such as these have come and gone cherished dolls are subjected to a lot of rechristening, and small boys begin to think that aunts are rather an unnecessary invention. When Aunt Katherine pays a visit joy is rampant. They love Aunt Katherine because she is worthy of their affections. They obey her slightest wish, they are anxious to go with her everywhere, the girls struggle desperately to sit on her knee, the boys hug her until she is half choked. Altogether she is an ideal aunt, but the secret of her sway over the juvenile mind is, really simplicity itself. She is a woman with a child's heart, that is all. She can look at things from the viewpoint of her nieces and nephews. Her long frocks and smartly coiffured hair are mere accidents of time. She is "nice" because she has not forgotten her own childhood or entirely parted with it.

Uncle Dick

Among uncles her counterpart is Uncle John may be dignified and standoffish; Uncle Henry may be interested only in the conversation of mothers and fathers and turn an unheeding ear to the overtures of the children, but Uncle Dick is the children's chum.

Mothers and fathers may think he has come to see them, but the children know better. They capture him on the doorstep with whoops of triumph, they monopolize him until bedtime, and jolly dreams of him come to the little heads when they are laid on the pillow.

The ideal uncle may be fat or thin. He may be tall or short, but he is the children's ideal. He bites the baby's fingers, he surrenders his clean collar to grubby hands, he pig-a-backs and crawls and climbs, he barks like a dog and mews like a cat and spins a top like a genius—in short, does everything that is demanded of him and a whole lot that isn't.

He is a big boy, a Peter Pan who has grown up in spite of himself. All the girls intend to marry him when they are old enough, just as all the boys are sworn ultimately to marry Aunt Katherine, and in each case their instincts are entirely justified.

The perfect uncle and aunt are simply splendid cousins on a large scale. Their hair may be tinged with gray and uncle may have lots of scrubby whiskers, but memory has kept their childhood fresh and fragrant and in the presence of children younger in years than themselves it simply bubbles over.

Never Has the Saying of

Ralph Waldo Emerson

Been Better Illustrated than here

"If you can preach a better sermon or make a better mouse trap than has been made before, though you build your house in the forest, the people will make a beaten path to your door."

While we haven't built our house exactly in the forest, it was off the beaten path of commerce. And the crowd followed, and are fast wearing a path to our door. A brand new stock of FURNITURE and CARPETINGS. The latest of everything in HOUSEKEEPING GOODS is drawing the people here. Exclusive agency for the CRAWFORD RANGES and PARLOR STOVES is drawing them here. No rent to pay, therefore less expense and lower prices are drawing them here. Larger store, larger stock, better light, better elevator service. Store well heated on every floor. More room. Better display of every piece of furniture. More liberal terms of credit, etc. All these advantages are making the people in ever-increasing numbers bent a path to our door. And they are not disappointed when they enter.

MAN MURDERED IN WATERTOWN

Another Man Dying as Result of Fight Between Factions of the Rubber Strikers

WATERTOWN, Nov. 18.—One man was shot to death and another was slashed in the face and neck so badly that physicians say he has little chance of living, in a fight between employes of the Hood Rubber company, within a short distance of the company's plant last night.

The police stated late last night that the murderous assaults resulted from friction between I. W. W. sympathizers and non-members of that organization.

The dead man, whose body was found with a bullet in the neck, lying at full length at Arlington street, was Frank Cirillo, aged 26, who lived at 847 Mt. Auburn street.

Frank Falzo, aged 30, of 85 Arlington street, who was attacked twice and part of his face cut almost to ribbons in the second alteration, was in such a condition in the Cambridge hospital that practically no hope of his recovery was held out.

Body Found in Street

Up to midnight efforts to find any of those concerned in the killing of Cirillo, or any of the gang that was seen to attack Falzo, had been unsuccessful. Luigi Ligano, aged 26, who also lives at the same house as Falzo, is locked up in the Watertown police station as a witness.

Police found the body of Cirillo in Arlington street, a quarter of a mile from the factory, while hurrying to the Cambridge hospital with Falzo in a patrol wagon.

It was with great difficulty that the local authorities succeeded in worming any particulars of the murder, or what led up to it out of the members of the colony, whom they rigidly questioned.

The theory of the police is that Falzo, who declares that he is not a member of the I. W. W., was attacked first in front of his home by sympathizers of the organization, of whom Cirillo was one.

When Falzo retreated to his home to summon aid, it is believed some of his friends rushed up from the vicinity of the factory and gave battle, finally shooting down Cirillo and then disappearing as quickly as they had appeared.

Falzo had announced his intention of returning to work in the rubber factory this morning, after having been out since a week ago last Friday.

This, it is declared, aroused great anger among some of the former employes whom the company is said to be determined against returning to their former places.

Throughout yesterday and during most of the evening policemen and a number of employes detailed as special watchmen had been on duty about the gates of the factory.

While employes known to be hostile to the company had remained about the vicinity for hours, walking back and forth in twos and threes most of the time, there was not the slightest indication of trouble until late last evening.

Police Do Not See Fight

Whether the murder of Cirillo and the slashing of Falzo were deliberately planned or were the outcome of a fight between hostile gangs that developed as quickly as it ended, it was all done without interference or even knowledge of the police until Falzo was found staggering in Arlington street, a quarter of an hour afterward.

Pausing to rest as he reached the Arlington and Elm streets corner, in patroling his beat, Patrolman Arthur Howard's attention was arrested by faint moaning. The groaning became gradually louder.

Out of the darkness, in a few more moments, appeared two men, one of them assisting the other, who was laboring in intense pain.

One of the men was Falzo, with blood trickling from great slashes in his face and neck, barely able to keep on his feet at all. Assisting him was Ligano, now held as a witness. They were "going for help," Ligano said, but where they did not know.

Cirillo's Body in Street

The policeman was the first man they met. As they came face to face with Howard, Falzo practically collapsed. The patrol wagon was summoned, and was lifted, half conscious, into it.

Patrolman Bailey and Driver Holmes started the wagon off at top speed for the hospital. They had gone only a short distance when the horse shied at something in the road.

As they were about to force the horse past the spot, Bailey and Holmes saw that it was a human form lying in the roadway. The man, who was not identified as Cirillo until sometime later, was beyond human aid when found, although the body was still warm. There was a bullet hole in the neck. He had been killed, evidently, by one shot.

Less than 100 yards from the spot where the body was found there was lying in the roadway a broken razor, its blade bloodstained.

Ligano Does Not Tell All

The razor had not been used on Cirillo, but it is the weapon with which Falzo was probably fatally slashed, the police believe. It is one of the few scant clues on which the authorities are working in an effort to unravel the Sunday night crime.

Ligano was able to throw more light on the mystery than any of the many others who were closely questioned in the next few hours.

He said he was peaceably passing the evening in his home, when, shortly before 9.30, Falzo burst through the door and shouted that there was a "crowd outside waiting to kill me."

With three others, whose names he stubbornly declined to divulge, Ligano said he ran outside, but hesitated when he saw a gang of several men in Arlington street. Falzo pitched into the crowd, he said, and four men beat and cut him.

Seek Aid for Falzo

Then, he declared, those who had done the attacking, as well as the three friends of Falzo who had come out of the dwelling, ran through Arlington street in the direction of where Cirillo's body was later found.

Realizing that Falzo would expire unless given prompt medical attention, Ligano got him up from the ground and started off in the direction of Elm street, literally pulling him along in an effort to find aid.

It was while Falzo was being assisted toward Elm street by his companion the police believe that other friends, including the three who had come from his home, gave chase in the other direction and shot down Cirillo.

All Rubber Workers

Ligano told the police that all the men he saw in the fight in front of his home were employes of the rubber factory. He declined to gave any further particulars of the trouble between the gangs, which the police believe had been brewing for more than a week.

"He knows a great deal more than he is willing to tell," was the declaration of the police, after questioning Ligano for more than an hour.

He got a job as section hand on the Boston & Maine railroad when the rubber factory closed a week ago Friday. This, and the fact that he had announced that he would go back to work today, stirred up a great deal of ill feeling against Ligano and his companions.

Trouble Came as Surprise

Cirillo and some of his companions are said to have taken more or less active part in the riot at the gates of the factory last Wednesday morning, when many persons were hurt, although few were injured seriously.

The trouble started when about 300 employes returned to work.

During the greater part of last evening, it is declared, Cirillo and some of his friends remained in the vicinity of the factory, where some of the employes were scheduled to return to work at midnight, preparatory to the reopening on practically full time today.

Last night's trouble came as a complete surprise.

"JACK THE SNIPPER"

Cut Tresses of Three Lynn Girls

LYNN, Nov. 18.—Search for a "Jack the Snipper," who in two days has cut the tresses of three Lynn girls in the presence of many persons, yet successfully escaped each time, is being made by the police. The only description of the man that his victims are able to give is that he "resembles a dark-skinned foreigner."

His first victim was Miss Therma Waitt, aged 11, of 96 Ontario street. As she entered a Market street store Saturday afternoon she felt a slight tug at her braid, but thought little of the incident. When she reached home she discovered that eight inches of her hair had been cut off.

Only a short time later Miss Lizzie Stone, 14, of Cliftondale, was standing in front of a Union street store when a man deliberately walked up and cut off a 10-inch length of her braid and then as quietly walked away.

Miss Carrie Colby, 14, of Ridgway street, was standing in the entrance of a Union street store yesterday afternoon when a stranger stepped up in front of her. She moved to one side, believing he wished to enter the building, and he turned and snipped eight inches of her tresses. A policeman was standing only a short distance away, but the Colby girl was so frightened that she was unable to make an outcry for several moments. By that time the snipper had walked down Union street and disappeared in the crowd.

SAVED BY NEIGHBORS

Mother and Children Overcome by Gas

HAVERHILL, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Victoria C. St. Pierre, her 7-year-old son and 9-year-old daughter were found suffering from inhaling coal gas at their home on Grove street yesterday afternoon by neighbors, the discovery averting a probable triple fatality.

The children were playing about the house when they became ill, the girl falling in a faint on the floor. The boy next complained of severe headache, and in attending to her two children Mrs. St. Pierre was also overcome.

When the neighbors were attracted to the house and a physician was summoned, the woman and her two children were found lying on a couch, and as soon as the physician entered he discovered the cause of the illness, the coal gas escaping from a stove also nearly overcoming him.

Windows were opened, and last night the three patients were declared out of danger. An investigation showed that the chimney was blocked, and as the stove had been used all day the gas from the coal had escaped into the room, Mrs. St. Pierre having failed to detect it.

HE COMMITTED SUICIDE

Clerk Daniel Lost Cash in Stock

CHICAGO Nov. 18.—Inside information on movements of a stock on the New York Exchange has brought about the suicide of John A. Daniel, chief clerk in the Chicago branch of the American Smelting and Refining company.

When the price of copper went soaring to more than 17 cents a pound young Daniel received a tip that Smelter was going above par. He knew that Smelter usually followed copper shares. It was 87 then. He bought and the stock declined.

Then he took $8500 from the Smelters company and bought some more. The stock continued to decline in a strong market until he lost all.

Then he told his uncle, A. D. Morrison. The latter mortgaged his home to pay back the money. Daniel fled to Germany. A pitiful farewell note asked burial in the potter's field. Instead his body is being brought back to this country for burial with that of his father.

"Everything considered, we would not think of prosecuting," said Fred S. Holbrook, manager of the company's Chicago office. "I regret extremely the cause of the suicide has become known, for I knew and liked young Daniel. The company is thoroughly protected, and it is to our interest to say nothing about the affair."

WIDE DISTRIBUTION

Of American Manufactures Shown by Figures of Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce

The wide distribution of American manufactures is illustrated by some recent figures of the statistical division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce showing the variety of articles exported and the numerous countries to which they are distributed. Barbed wire, fly paper, telephones, boots and shoes, automobiles, wire nails, motion picture films, flying machines, telegraph instruments, locks, hinges, razors, bath tubs, traction engines operated by steam, traction engines operated by gasoline, stationary engines operated by steam, stationary engines operated by gasoline, stationary engines operated by gas, electric locomotives, elevators, cotton gins, cash registers, and cream separators—these are a few of the numerous products of American ingenuity distributed literally over the entire civilized world.

Take wire nails as an example. They went last year to no less than 60 countries scattered over the entire inhabited portions of the globe—Siam, the Canary Islands, the Dutch East Indies, the British East Indies, Russia in Europe, Russia in Asia, Hongkong, Egypt, the French West Indies; and practically every country of experience, since they as well as many other communities are included in the list of 60 counties and colonies to which the 140 million pounds of wire nails exported last year were sent.

American telephones and telegraph instruments went to such distant places as British Africa, Egypt, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Java, Brazil, Korea, and the Canary Islands. The value of scientific instruments and apparatus, including telephones, telegraph instruments, etc., exported last year was over $13,000,000 and the countries to which they were sent approximately 90 in number, distributed to all parts of the civilized world, practically one million dollars worth to Cuba, 4 1-4 million dollars' worth to Canada, and 1 1-2 million dollars' worth to the United Kingdom, while among the other countries and communities to which they were distributed are Siam, Portuguese Africa, Ecuador, the Straits Settlements, Egypt Trinidad and Tobago, Peru, Asiatic Russia and Bolivia.

Even such a comparatively unimportant article of commerce as fly paper went to approximately 75 countries and colonies, including Tripoli, Uruguay, Santo Domingo, Turkey in Europe, the Danish West Indies, Malta, Finland, China, Egypt, Roumania, and Gibraltar. American barbed wire serves the agriculturist in every grand division of the world. Adding machines, printing presses, aeroplanes, automobiles, clocks and watches, celluloid manufactures, binder twine, dynamite, gunpowder, locomotives, ice-making machinery, jewelry, kitchen utensils, phonographs, car wheels, cotton cloth, printers' ink, and hundreds of other manufactures which might be enumerated passed out of the United States last year to the value of more than a billion dollars and were distributed not merely to every grand division, but to practically every country in the inhabited world.

Frank A. Ricard Has a Plan for Construction of Boulevard From Textile School to Connect With Lawrence Boulevard

SKETCH OF ROUTE OF BOULEVARD PROPOSED BY FRANK RICARD

Mr. Frank Ricard of the Lowell board of trade has a plan for the construction of a riverside boulevard from the Textile school down-river, connecting with the new Lawrence boulevard. At a recent meeting of the directors of the board, Mr. Ricard presented his plan with map and general explanation and it was voted to refer the matter to a special committee for further investigation. In submitting his plan to the directors Mr. Ricard read the following paper and it explains the proposition in detail:

"I have a proposition which I desire to submit to you, for your consideration. A proposition to which I have devoted considerable time, study and thought as to its possibilities: a proposition, that, in a word, consists in extending the Pawtucketville boulevard, from its present ending at the Textile school, along the river bank to the Dracut line, to what is known as the car barn, and connecting with the state road which continues to Lawrence.

I feel you will agree with me that this is a very good proposition.

It is a proposition which cannot be successfully carried out in a short space of time but I firmly believe that if this project was started and a portion of the work done each year it would be only a few years when we would have something of which we could feel proud.

I would start the boulevard about fifty feet wide, and would build it along the river bank, taking in one portion of Aiken street bridge, and going in a direct line taking in Front street, a part of Bridge street bridge, then going along in almost a straight line to what is known as Hunt's falls. There we meet with quite a sharp bend, the river at the present time curves, as is shown on the map and here we have a couple of good sized islands which divide the river almost opposite the car barn. I would extend the boulevard over there and then continue to the state road.

I do not want to claim that this plan should be strictly followed out, there may be room for improvements and a chance for alterations.

The boulevard running along the banks of the Merrimack river and connecting with the state road would be a connecting link which would give us a boulevard beginning at the sea and continuing through Haverhill and Lawrence to Lowell, Nashua and on to the White mountains. This one feature alone will make it a very interesting matter to consider. But it does not begin to be of as much importance as are the benefits to be derived by our city. I will show you what I mean by that.

You will see that the Moody, Aiken and Bridge street bridges bring this boulevard right into the city, so that all the sections of the city will derive the most material benefits from it. Here at the very beginning is a large bend in the river which, owing to its shape and because of the fact that the river is shallow makes it a natural bathing or swimming pool in the summer time and in winter it could be used as a skating rink, and along the bank here you will have a good park.

From Aiken street to Bridge street bridge would be boulevard; though there is a large piece of land along Lakeview avenue which could be used for park purposes. As we pass along down we come to a large tract of waste land at First street which has been filled in and is in such shape that it could easily be made into a large sized park.

Owing to the fact that First street ascends the hill here, it makes a natural amphitheatre. Going along we come to the so-called Indian orchard, which also could be made into a big park.

Now, gentlemen, I have shown you that we have a boulevard in the vicinity of 2 1-2 miles long adjacent to the city, easily reached by three bridges, and very convenient to Pawtuckerville and Centralville, and I firmly believe that this proposition will present to the city a grand boulevard and a series of parks that will equal anything we have in New England, not even excepting Boston, because the whole boulevard in itself would be a park.

Should you stand on Aiken street bridge you will have a view that will be equal to the brush of David Neal. Extending on the southerly side of the river you will have a view of our mile long mills. From here and down along this boulevard you will have scenery that is worthy of the art of a Whistler or of a Hornby, two men the city may well feel proud of.

This boulevard admits of the most wonderful improvements for years and years to come. With the lights along it lighted at night, and the lights of the mills on the opposite side, it would be a most attractive sight.

That such a proposition was ever before suggested to the citizens of Lowell is very doubtful.

Another question of vast importance to the people of our city is the question of health. You can see these parks would give breathing spaces for the whole city, hundreds, yes thousands of people could come here and they need not over exert themselves—because they could reach the electric cars at any point along the boulevard.

I have spoken to you as regards the beauty and the health of this important proposition and I feel that no one can dispute me when I say that it is of the greatest importance to the people of Lowell.

The practicability of its being built and the probable cost is next to be considered. Swinging out in a long curve where the bank is low a wall could be built four or five feet high and this would give plenty of protection against the high water in the spring of the year caused by the freshets.

This wall would narrow the channel some but we would experience no trouble here in regard to back water entering into our mills as the bed of the river is very low. By having the channel deepened all the surplus water would be taken care of and also would prevent any overflow on private land.

The question of the possible cost of filling in and building the retaining walls is of vital importance of course. I would propose that all along would be built a wall of reinforced cement—I am not a civil engineer—that is not in my line—perhaps a wall of granite, would be more practicable.

In some places on account of the height of the wall a large amount of filling would be required. You will understand that in years gone by this proposition could not be carried out as well as at the present time. There has been a large amount of filling in in years past. When Aiken street bridge was built all of that part between Lakeview avenue and the entrance to the bridge was filled in, and on the southerly side of the river in Belvidere, a retaining wall was built and all of that section down Stackpole street was filled in. A certain corporation of our city has derived the greatest amount of benefits from this new land.

The Locks and Canals is receiving great benefit by the filling in of waste land along the banks of the river. In fact I am going to say I would expect the Locks and Canals to help the city in developing this scheme.

Their best argument from a business standpoint is that of increasing the horsepower of the river, and it would prove a great benefit to them to go as far as in their power lies to help out this proposition. Their strongest argument for filling in this land is to increase the horsepower and the mechanical force of the river. Then surely this boulevard would be a decided help to the Locks and Canals and also to the other mill powers located in our city.

Now besides this fact of increasing the horsepower of the river you will have to admit that this will greatly increase the valuation of the vast amount of territory in Centralville and Pawtucketville. It would tend to build up all this portion wonderfully and increase the tax rate in these sections. Whether the cost is large or small I am firmly convinced that in the increased valuation in these sections that in ten years' time the cost will be returned to the city of Lowell. While talking about the cost and arguing that it should not cost so very much if this boulevard is 40 or 50 feet wide, say 50 feet extending along the river bank we come to Beaver brook, where a bridge would have to be built, which perhaps would cost a few thousand dollars. Going down along we pass Aiken street and down farther we come to the street known as Front street and on until we strike Bridge street bridge. You who are acquainted with that section know that the land value cannot be but very small, so that there is nothing at all to interfere and nothing to obstruct the boulevard at the present time until we get to the Bridge street bridge.

I understand the buildings belong to Mr. Parker—I am going to speak plainly. I claim that Mr. Parker should be willing to give to the city of Lowell at least at a small cost a portion of his buildings. There are no large buildings on First street but there are small pieces of private property but these would not interfere as the boulevard would take in their back yards and the land could be secured at a small cost to the city because it would increase the valuation of the remaining property.

Now we come along to where the Locks and Canals has filled in all this waste land along First street until we come to this triangle in the river near the Dracut line. The river here is divided in two branches by two good sized islands. I have extended this boulevard so as to take in these islands. You will see by cutting off this branch of the river it would increase the depth of the river over Hunt's falls and by so doing we have increased the depth and flow of the river the whole distance so that we will have a river from Lawrence more navigable than at present which would also add to the valuation of the boulevard.

On the southerly side of the river we have the Lawrence, Merrimack, Boott and Massachusetts mills, St. John's hospital and a number of excellent residences which extend down through Tewksbury and just below the Dracut line the river presents a fine place for boating, swimming and canoeing.

Figuring the cost upon the same basis as that of boulevards which have been built near our city I feel satisfied that $75,000 would be a great help to building this boulevard. You want to understand gentlemen that all the land need not be filled up to the height of Aiken street bridge it could be raised up as we approach the bridge.

I have been a member of the board of trade for some few years. I share the spirit that animates each and every member and that is an eager and honest desire to advance the best interest of our city in every way and this proposition that I have submitted to you I firmly believe is one of the best we could consider.

I thank you for your kindness and hope you will give it careful consideration.

MAN SHOT BY WOMAN

Jaskilainen Only Slightly Injured in Arm

WOMAN THEN TRIED TO END HER LIFE

She Was Angered Because Man Had Refused to Marry Her—She is Not Seriously Wounded

GARDNER, Nov. 18.—David Jaskilainen, aged 23, of 15 Oriole street, was shot in the right arm at 1 o'clock yesterday morning with a revolver in the hands, it is alleged, of Miss Hilma Lumme, who then turned the weapon upon herself, inflicting a wound in her breast over her heart.

The shooting occurred in front of a tenement house at 73 Ash street, the home of Miss Ida Tolvainen, who, accompanied by Jaskilainen, was returning home from a dance in the Finnish Workingmen's hall. As Jaskilainen and Miss Tolvainen arrived in front of the house Miss Lumme, whom it is claimed was jealous, appeared and fired three shots, the first of which struck Jaskilainen, who fled with Miss Tolvainen to a place of safety.

Firing a fourth time Miss Lumme turned the weapon on herself, it is said.

Police Officers William H. Moran and Wilhelm Waxlax hurried to the scene of the shooting. They found Miss Lumme in an unconscious condition with a 32-caliber revolver lying on the ground by her side. Two chambers were loaded and four empty shells were found in the cylinder.

A taxicab was called and Miss Lumme was taken to the Henry Heywood Memorial hospital, where it was found that the bullet was lodged beneath the left shoulder blade. A bottle of creolin with part of the contents gone was found in Miss Lumme's handbag. No evidence was found, however, that she had swallowed any of the liquid.

Dr. John B. Donnelly and Dr. A. P. Lachance of the hospital staff gave first aid. Later Miss Lumme rallied from the effects of the bullet wound. Her condition was somewhat improved yesterday afternoon. The injury to Jaskilainen was slight and he returned to his home after the bullet had been removed.

Jaskilainen told the police that Miss Lumme was infatuated with him and had threatened to commit suicide on three different occasions because he had refused to marry her.

FIRE DAMAGE $25,000

Hotel at Essex Junction, Vermont, Burned

ESSEX JUNCTION, Vt., Nov. 18—Johnson's hotel, owned by Walter B. Johnson, was destroyed by fire last night at a loss of about $25,000.

The Johnson garage adjoining containing a number of new automobiles, and the Central Vermont passenger station opposite, across a narrow roadway, were saved by the prompt response of the automobile fire truck from Burlington to the call for aid. The truck crew made the run of seven miles in eight minutes.

The fire in the hotel originated around a chimney and an attempt was made to extinguish the blaze with a hand chemical. The fire gained headway rapidly and low pressure in the mains of the village made it impossible to save the building. Mr. Johnson could not state last night just how much of his loss is covered by insurance.

Lines of hose were laid across the main line tracks of the Central Vermont, delaying through trains each way about two hours.

HARD EARNED DOLLARS MUST NOT BE THROWN AWAY

DON'T PAY BIG PRICES FOR ANY MAKE PIANO

I have been telling the people for years that it is not necessary to pay luxury prices for PIANOS. A PIANO is no longer a luxury. I have taken it out of that class. I have made it as easy to secure a PIANO by reducing the price and making the terms of purchase as liberal as it is to secure any other household necessity.

I have educated the public in PIANO values to such an extent that the intelligent man or woman, who knows how to go about it, can now buy a PIANO for much less than it could be bought for five years ago. I am in receipt of letters daily from all over New England, praising me for my stand against the high-priced dealer, and I am selling more PIANOS at lower prices than ever before. It pays to protect the public.

Don't buy any make PIANO till you see me. Truthfully,

GOVERNMENT OF TODAY

Expresses the Eighteenth Century Man

AND NOT THE TWENTIETH CENTURY MAN

Says Pastor of Grace Church—He Would Set a Standard for the 20th Century

Rev. Clarence R. Skinner was the speaker in the Grace church social forum meeting last night. His subject was: "A Maximum Government and a Minimum Citizen."

"The fundamental fault with government today," he said, "is that it expresses the 18th century man, and not the 20th century man. It is a protest against the over-churched, over-governed, over-taxed, over-lorded, overburdened condition. In the 18th century government, every man's individuality was absolutely wiped away. He was over-institutionalized. As a result there came the French revolution, and men set up their individual rights. Now, the modern government, especially of the United States, is moulded as a protest against that overgoverned, over-churched, over-taxed, condition of the 18th century.

For instance: We say that government shall not interfere with business, because, in business, a man is seeking his own right. Anything like paternalism must not be tolerated. Whenever a man finds a coal mine in the side of a mountain, it is his right to develop it to the utmost of his ability. The employer says it is no business of the government whom he shall employ, or how many hours he shall employ that man, woman or child. Up to a few years ago, that has been absolutely the condition of affairs—a minimum government, in order that men may obtain their maximum right. The great fault with this system is that only a few attain their highest good. We are at the mercy of people who are driving others for the sake of what they can get out of them. So this philosophy has resulted in a maximum man here and there, but a vast majority of minimum citizens. Natural resources have been devastated, under the philosophy of minimum government and maximum citizenship.

There should be a maximum government, enabled to condemn a tuberculous, germ-laden tenement, or to take hold of the coal situation, and provide coal for all people.

It was not long after the establishment of this government, before men found that this philosophy was absolutely wrong. Then, when it was said that government should undertake the function of education, there was a storm of protest. But gradually men began to learn that it was necessary, for the protection of all, that there should be a minimum standard of education; and now we accept it. Gradually we came likewise to understand that there must be a minimum standard of health. We have developed the power of government to such an extent that we can take away the liberty of a smallpox patient.

It is not paternalism, for all men to decide what shall be done for the common good. It is fraternalism; and there can be no harm in fraternalism. We ought to have a still higher maximized government. We must have a stronger government. We must have a stronger centralized power, in order to enforce a minimum standard of education for 20th century conditions, and a standard of work efficiency which shall be best for all men.

Also, we must have a minimum standard of wage, for the protection of the present generation and of the future race, and in order to uphold the standard of the home. A maximum government, a minimum citizen, a minimum standard—in order that we may have the highest good of all.

HARVARD DEFEATED DARTMOUTH

Brickley Again Showed Himself a Star By Kicking a Goal From the Field

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 18.—The largest football crowd in the east gathered in the stadium Saturday to see Harvard and Dartmouth in their annual contest of the Americanized Rugby game. It was the final match of the season for Dartmouth and the semi-final for Harvard. The weather was ideal. The night had not been sufficiently cool to freeze the turf, while a bright sky and a comparatively little breeze made playing conditions perfect. The seating capacity of the stadium had been extended to the limit of slightly more than 40,000 places and the top of the colonnade was reserved for the newspaper contingent, 500 strong, and 200 chauffeurs. The demand for tickets was so great that the few that reached the speculators were held by them at high prices.

The lineup:

Harvard		Dartmouth
Felton, le		le, Hogsett
Storer, lt		lt, Englehorn
Pennock, lg		lg, Dunbar
Parmenter, c		c, Gibson
Driscoll, rg		rg, Bennett
Hitchcock, rt		rt, Estop
O'Brien, re		re, Louden
Gardner, qb		qb Llewlyn
Hardwick, lhb		lhb, Whitney
Brickley, rhb		rhb, Morey
Wendell, fb		fb, Snow

Referee: A. E. Whiting, Cornell. Umpire: W. G. Crowell, Swarthmore. Linesman: F. W. Burleigh, Exeter Time: 15 minute periods.

Crowd Late in Arriving

The crowd was unusually late in reaching the stadium and 20 minutes before the time set for the game two-thirds of the seats remained to be occupied. The Dartmouth cheering section went into action a few minutes before the team reached the field with the help of a large band. Cheering did not begin however, until the two teams ran onto the field When the game began the wind had reached a velocity of 15 or 20 miles an hour, but was blowing directly across the gridiron, so that there was no material difference in the choice of sides. Both teams trooped onto the field shortly before two o'clock and each was soon ready for the fray.

Harvard Won Toss

Harvard won the toss and Englehorn started the game by kicking off to Charley Brickley on Harvard's five-yard line. The ball was run back 35 yards. In the first scrimmage Gardner fumbled the ball and Hogsett recovered it for Dartmouth on Harvard's 45-yard line. Four rushes gained eight yards for Dartmouth. Englehorn then started a goal from placement but the kick was blocked and went outside on Harvard's 20-yard line, where it went to Harvard. Felton immediately punted to Dartmouth's 25-yard line and Llewelyn ran it back 25 yards. Neither Whitney nor Snow could gain through the Harvard center. Morey was also thrown back without gain and then Morey kicked to Hardwick on Harvard's 11-yard line. Felton kicked on the second down to Llewelyn to the middle of the field and the ball was run back to Harvard's 32-yard line. Dartmouth was discovered tripping and was penalized 20 yards. This placed the ball back in Dartmouth's territory but still in possession of the Green. After three ineffectual plunges into the Harvard line, Morey kicked out of bounds on Harvard's 30-yard line. The ball was partially blocked. Wendell made three yards through center but Harvard immediately lost 15 yards for holding. Felton then kicked to Llewelyn on Dartmouth's 40-yard line. The ball was muffed but recovered. On the first rush Harvard was penalized five yards for offside play

Whitney made two rushes of two and three yards each. Morey then kicked over the Harvard goal line and the ball was brought to Harvard's 20-yard line in the Crimson's possession. Felton kicked to Llewellyn and the ball was run back 15 yards. Three Dartmouth rushes gained eight yards and then Englehorn punted out of bounds on Harvard's 20 yard line. Harvard tried the Dartmouth line without gain and then Felton punted to Llewellyn on his 45-yard line. Dartmouth then gained two yards on a delayed pass. Whitney made three more through right tackles, but Snow was thrown without gain. Morey then kicked to Harvard's one-yard line, the ball refusing to roll over the goal line. The scrimmage was in the extreme corner of the field. Brickley made a yard and then time was called for the first period.

Dartmouth Did More Rushing

In the first period both Harvard and Dartmouth tried out their opponents' offense without either goal being in danger. Dartmouth did more rushing than Harvard and was once on the Crimson's 32 yard line. An attempted field goal was blocked by the Crimson forwards. Dartmouth rushed 22 times, but the gains were not sufficient for a first down and kicking always followed. Morey's punts lacked distance and direction except in a few instances. The play throughout the period was almost wholly on the Harvard side of the field.

Second Period

Harvard started the second period by kicking on the second down to the Crimson 45-yard line. Llewllyn muffed the ball and O'Brien recovered it. Then Harvard tried a long end run without gain. Wendell made a yard through center. The Dartmouth defense was very strong against the Crimson line plunges.

Felton then tried a long end run for a yard gain and then kicked to Dartmouth's 15-yard line. Llewellyn ran it back 10 yards. Dartmouth tried a variation of wing shifts but could make only a yard. Morey failed to gain but Dartmouth gained five yards on a Crimson penalty for holding. Harvard's line strength was almost as firm and strong as Dartmouth's. Morey then kicked out of bounds in Harvard's 45-yard line. The Crimson started rushing again with Brickley squirming through right tackle for three yards. On the next play Brickley made four more and then made a first down on Dartmouth's 42-yard line. It was the first down so far of the game. Ghee took Llewllyn's place at quarterback. Wendell made eight yards through left tackle and then five more for another first down, placing the ball on Dartmouth's 35-yard line. Brickley tried the center without gain but on the next rush Wendell made a yard. The ball was on Dartmouth's 27-yard line. Wendell dived through to the 25-yard line on the fourth down. Brickley tried a goal from the field standing on the 35-yard line but missed the post by less than a yard. The ball was brought out. On the first rush Morey made 24 yards in a dash through the Harvard left side. It was Dartmouth's first down of the game on her 45-yard line. After short rushes by Whitney and Snow Dartmouth tried a forward pass, which went outside and the ball went to Harvard on the Crimson's 33-yard line. After Brickley and Wendell made short rushes, Felton kicked to Ghee on Dartmouth's 35-yard line. The ball was run back four yards. Dartmouth attempted to punt, but the pass was high and Morey recovered it on his 12-yard line. There was a five-yard penalty by Harvard on the first rush and on the next play Dartmouth again fumbled the ball, but recovered it. N. M. Rogers took Bennett's place. On the next play Morey kicked to Hardwick, who muffed the ball in the centre of the field, where it went to Dartmouth. Morey made three yards through center and then gathered in two more yards on another plunge into the line. On the next play Snow made four yards more and it was Dartmouth's ball on Harvard's 42-yard line with a yard to go. There was a five-yard penalty for Harvard on the next play for offside playing, but Dartmouth scored a first down. The ball was in possession of the Green on Harvard's 36-yard line. Hinman took Dunbar's place at left guard. Morey made a yard through center, but Whitney could not gain. Englehorn then dropped back for a goal from placement, standing on Harvard's 45-yard line. The ball was partially blocked and went over the Harvard goal line wide o fthe goal-posts. Harvard put the ball in play on their 20-yard line. On the first down Brickley made a yard and time was called.

The Third Period

The third period started with no changes, except Bennett, who went back at right guard for Dartmouth. Brickley kicked off to Dartmouth's 25 yard line and after three rushes Dartmouth kicked to Gardner on Harvard's 25 yard line. Wendell made three yards and then on a fake forward pass O'Brien made 17 yards for a first down on Dartmouth's 40 yard line. Wendell struggled through for eight yards on the first play and the ball was on Dartmouth's 32 yard line. Brickley made five yards through center for a first down on Dartmouth's 28 yard line. The Harvard offense had speeded up fifty per cent. Brickley made three yards more through center and then Wendell four, placing the ball on Dartmouth's 21 yard line. There was offside play by Dartmouth on the next play and as Wendell made the distance it was Harvard's ball for a first down on Dartmouth's 15 yard line. Brickley made a yard through right tackle. Near the Dartmouth line the Dartmouth team held firm. Brickley failed at a goal from the field. The ball was brought out and Dartmouth put it in play on the 20 yard line. On the first rush Ghee made 32 yards on a quarterback run from a fake forward pass formation. He had a clear field when the Harvard team overhauled him, Brickley nailing him on the Crimson 18 yard line. The Dartmouth line was too anxious and was put back five yards for offside play. Dartmouth then tried a wing shift without gain. Morey then kicked over Harvard's goal line. The ball was brought out and put in play by Harvard on their 20 yard line.

Brickley and Wendell made 4 yards. Dartmouth was penalized 15 yards for roughing. On the next play Dartmouth was penalized 10 yards more for holding and the ball was Harvard's in the middle of the field. Hardwick tried Dartmouth's left end and was thrown for a loss of two yards. The two heavy penalties inflicted on Dartmouth in the third period were for unnecessary delays instead of holding. With the ball in the centre of the field O'Brien made 20 yards around Dartmouth's left end for a first down. Hardwick on a fake kick formation went to Dartmouth's 21 yard line for a first down. Again the Harvard offense proved too much for Dartmouth. Brickley made six yards through centre and followed it by another rush in the Dartmouth line, placing the ball on Dartmouth's eight yard line for a first down. On the next play Hardwick could not gain. Wendell made two yards and the ball was on Dartmouth's six yard line, directly in front of the goal post. On the kickoff the ball went to Gardner on the open yard line. The ball was run back to Harvard's 38-yard line. Wendell made three yards through center and one yard on the next rush on a delayed pass. After another rush into the line without gain Felton punted to Dartmouth's 35-yard line, where there was no gain.

Brickley Kicked Goal

Harvard outplayed Dartmouth in the third period and scored a goal from the field, which Brickley kicked from the 15-yard line. The Harvard offense was 50 per cent. stronger than in the first or second period and twice there were marches down the field of 47 yards without loss of the ball. The Dartmouth defense stiffened in front of the goal post and on the second attempt Brickley shot the ball through the goal-posts. The Crimson goal was never in danger.

Fourth Period

The fourth period started with Dartmouth rushing from their 35 yard line. On the first play there was a five yard penalty for offside play. Dartmouth tried a fake forward pass for a loss of five yards. Morey then punted out of bounds on Harvard's 40 yard line. Harvard started rushing and Felton kicked to Dartmouth's 24 yard line. There was a muff but Dartmouth kept the ball. Bradley took Captain Wendell's place in the Harvard back-field. Neither Whitney nor Morey could gain. Beer went in at Dartmouth's right guard.

Dartmouth tried a forward pass, which was uncompleted. On the next play Morey kicked to Hardwick on Harvard's 38-yard line. Felton kicked immediately to Dartmouth's 17-yard line. The ball was not run back. Whitney made a yard on a shift play. Dartmouth then tried a trick play, but Morey was thrown without gain. Dartmouth was offside again and lost five yards. Whitney and Snow made short gains through the Harvard line. Then Morey punted to Harvard's 28-yard line. Hardwick let the ball roll, thinking it would go outside, but the pigskin refused so he fell on the ball.

On a fake kick formation Hardwick made half a yard in a long run across the field. Brickley ploughed through for three yards and then kicked to Dartmouth's 22 yard line. The ball was run back to the 30 yard line. On the second play Dartmouth spread out her team for a long run but there was no gain. Harvard was penalized five yards for offside play. On a double pass Morey made eight yards. Morey made two yards on the next play. It was Dartmouth's ball on their 46 yard line.

Dartmouth again spread out their team for a trick play, but Morey was thrown for a loss of two yards. Morey then punted to Gardner on Harvard's 32-yard line, where he made a fair catch. Felton immediately kicked to Dartmouth's yard line and there was no gain on the runback. Three plunges into the Harvard line were without gain. Morey punted out of bounds on Dartmouth's 45-yard line, where the ball went to Harvard. On a delayed pass Dana could not gain. Brickley made five yards in a smash through right tackle and then plowed in for two yards more, placing the ball on Dartmouth's 38-yard line.

Brickley attempted a field goal from the center of the field but the ball was blocked. Dartmouth fumbled it however and it was still Dartmouth's ball.

Felton made five yards round Dartmouth's left end. Brickley went through Dartmouth's 33 yard line. The ball lacked a foot of being a first down. On the next play Brickley made a first down on Dartmouth's 28 yard line. There was another penalty for Dartmouth for roughness. Brickley on the next play carried the ball across the goal line but there was holding by the Harvard line and the touchdown was not allowed. The ball was brought back to Dartmouth's 39 yard line still in Harvard's possession. Harvard tried a forward pass which was uncoupled.

Harvard used every method to delay the game, continually shifting the line back and forth. Felton finally kicked over the Dartmouth goal line. Dartmouth put the ball in play on their 20-yard line. Only a minute remained to play and Dartmouth held a council of war. Dartmouth tried a forward pass but the ball was smothered. On the next play Felton caught a Dartmouth forward pass and carried the ball to Dartmouth's six-yard line. On the first rush Brickley carried it to the five-yard line. Hardwick made three more and the ball was on the Dartmouth's two-yard line Hardwick made three more and the ball was on the Dartmouth's two-yard line. On the next play Brickley put the ball on the one-yard line. Just as Harvard was about to push the ball over for a touchdown, time was called.

Score: Harvard 3, Dartmouth 0.

LEONARD MAY GET FALL RIVER

Makes $4000 Offer to Men Who Went to the Rescue—Bidder Favors Manchester

Frank J. Leonard's bid for $4000 for the Fall River franchise which must be shifted from that city, is likely to secure the property. So said President Eugene Fraser, who is one of the four men who went to the rescue of the Fall River players by digging up something like $2200 to save the franchise from being dissolved by the national commission.

Leonard's bid is the only one that has been received by Messrs. Fraser, Roache, Gray and Pieper up to date and Leonard will probably own the club if he desires to become identified with the game as a magnate. He has succeeded in interesting Alcck Ferson, the old pitcher, who was a member of the Manchester club when Leonard was at the helm over 15 years ago.

Ferson went to Washington in the National league and has had considerable experience in baseball. Ferson is now carrying on negotiations at Manchester for placing the franchise, though some opposition is offered by a mill league which controls Varrick park.

In Manchester, Leonard has always stood ace high with the public and baseball fans. He thinks that the city is again ripe for the New England brand of baseball but is proceeding cautiously before venturing into a more game of chance. At Fall River it is understood that the newspapers are endeavoring to stir up some enthusiasm among languid business men in the hope of keeping the franchise in that burg.

If Leonard gets the club and decides to remain in Manchester he will probably put it up to the populace as to the manager. Alcck Ferson will probably be the man, and this would mean that Little Jawn O'Brien, a prominent figure in baseball, would depart forever from the New England league.

NESS AND PRUITT

Are Mentioned as Successors to Frank Connaughton, Manager of the Whalers

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 18.—That no manager for the 1913 Whalers will be chosen by the local baseball directors until the club has its annual meeting in January, is now certain.

Manager Frank Connaughton will probably not be at the helm. His play in the diamond around second base last season did not satisfy the directors, although they hand him verbal bouquets for his financial management of the team.

The directors want a young second sacker.

It is probable that either Ness, the big first sacker, or Charlie Pruitt, the box man, will be chosen to lead the club in 1913 and $50 or so will be added to their 1912 salary. Either man would be a fine leader for the Whalers.

Griffith declares he will play the outfield in 1913, but is more likely to be found hurling them over from the slab by the time July 4 rolls around.

Bradley on the Market

Hugh F. Bradley will be playing first base for William E. Bransfield, manager of the Montreal team of the International league, next season, if the Red Sox don't set too high a price on him. James R. McAleer, president, has asked waivers on Bradley. He asks $2500 for him.

PIEPER GETS BUSY

Secures Outfielder O'Connell from New Bedford in Exchange for Kennedy, and Cash

The first step to strengthen his baseball team has been made by Manager Louis P. Pieper of the Lawrence team. He has secured Outfielder Dan O'Connell from the New Bedford club and to go through with the deal, the Lawrence manager had to come across with Outfielder Maurice Kennedy and money to boot.

Kennedy hit better than O'Connell did last season, although he was not so fast on the bases. Kennedy fielded every bit as well as the New Bedford player, but it was O'Connell's first year in the league. O'Connell improved wonderfully as the year advanced. Eliminating his first month, O'Connell was easily a .300 hitter. A draft was put in for O'Connell, but it wasn't allowed, as Hogg was drafted. O'Connell is a promising youngster and Manager Pieper got the better of the deal.

Manager for Lynn

It is certain that the Lynn club will have a new manager and one of the major league calibre is favored, says the Lynn Item. Fred Lake, at the meeting of the league last week, had a long talk with President Eugene B. Fraser, and can be secured if the directors are willing to come to his terms. The managerial berth is yet unsettled, and a meeting is to be called this week to consider the matter, as the club owners want to get a manager right away, so as to give him an opportunity to have the winter months to select a team for next season.

Donovan and Haverhill

HAVERHILL, Nov. 18.—Local gossip has it that Patsy Donovan, former manager of St. Louis, Brooklyn and Boston major league teams, will buy an interest in the Haverhill club of the New England league and direct all its affairs, including the active management of the team on the field. Local backing has been promised him if he will take hold. Settlement of the club's debts, amounting to something over $13,000, must be arranged for first.

Dubuc Received Offer

Dubuc, the star pitcher of the Detroits during the past season, admits that he has received an offer from a representative of the Paris club in the French Union Baseball league to coach that nine for a period of five years, the sum offered being $3000 more than he has asked the Detroit club to give him next season.

Making Room Team Trounces the Stock Room Five in Shoe Shop Bowling League

The First Swedish M. E. church bowling team won three of the four points from the Highland M. E. church team in a game in the Baraca league on the Crescent alleys Saturday night. H. Johnson of the winning team was high man, having a single of 115 and a triple of 284, while Swanson of the same team was a close second, being but two points behind in both single and triple. The Swedish church team got a poor start and lost the first string, but after that got into the running and walked away from its opponent.

The Making Room and Stock Room teams of the Mears, Feeley & Adams bowling league, met on the alleys Saturday night, the former team winning with ease. H. Scobie of the winning team was high man. The scores:

The game started by Princeton taking the kickoff. Twice the ball went out of bounds and it was put in play by Yale, the last time with a kick of 45 yards. Flynn kicked over the goal line to Dewitt, who touched it for a touchback and the ball was put in play by Princeton on her own 20-yard line. The first scrimmage resulted in a Princeton gain of five yards by S. Baker. Offside play by Yale gave Princeton five yards more and then S. Baker punched a hole in the Yale left end for seven ends. On a fake formation the ball was again given to S. Baker and this time he failed to gain. The ball was then given to Dewitt, who put five more yards and then Waller broke through the Yale line for three more. The next play failed to gain and the ball was in midfield. Waller tried the Blue's right end and gained one yard. Dewitt kicked to Yale's 13-yard line, where Wheeler got it Yale's first scrimmage resulted in a three yard gain through center, the ball being carried by Flynn. Spalding failed to gain and Flynn punted to Princeton's 40 yard line. Waller hit Yale's left tackle for a three-yard gain. Stew Baker shot through the same hole in Yale's line for three yards. Dewitt punted to Yale's 30-yard line, where Wheeler fumbled and Logan of Princeton fell onto the ball. Waller crashed through center for three yards and on the next play Princeton put the ball on Yale's 35-yard line. On a shift play to the left side of the line Waller added three yards. At this point H. Baker tried a field goal from the 30 yard line but the ball went wide to the west of the goal posts. Flynn kicked out from Yale's 10-yard line and H. Baker was downed on the Tigers' 25-yard mark. Stew Baker made five yards. Two failures to gain were followed by a punt to Yale's 39-yard line. In two plunges through the line Spalding made nine yards. On a fake kick formation Spalding was again given the ball and made but a yard against the right side of Princeton's line. Measurements showed that Yale had gained her first down. Flynn immediately punted and S. Baker fumbled the ball and Avery of Yale recovered it on Princeton's 15-yard line.

Yale Scores

Score: Yale 3, Princeton 0.

H. Baker kicked off to Flynn, who was downed on his 20-yard line. In the next lineup the Yale fullback punted to the Princeton's 35-yard line where H. Baker made five yards before he was downed. S. Baker made five yards through Yale's left tackle and on another fake kick formation Waller added two more yards. Dewitt punted out of bounds on Yale's 41-yard line. The period ended with the ball on Yale's 41-yard line.

Second Period

The second period opened by Yale failing to gain on a line plunge and Flynn punted to Princeton's 20-yard line. Wheeler fumbled Waller's punt and Andrews of Princeton recovered the ball on Yale's 35-yard line. S. Baker made four yards through Yale's left tackle. On the next play H. Baker kicked a field goal from the 25-yard line, tieing the score. After the kickoff an exchange of punts gave Princeton the ball on her 25-yard line.

On the third down Flynn punted to H. Baker on Princeton's 37 yard line. Waller punted to Wheeler on Yale's 10 yard line and the little quarter back made five yards before he was downed by Penfield. Philbin and Spalding each made five yards. Flynn gained four yards around the Tigers' right end and Flynn then punted to Baker on his own 10 yard line and he ran 28 yards before he was brought to earth. Waller punted to Yale's 30 yard line and Wheeler made eight yards before he was thrown by Captain Pendleton. Wheeler then was given the ball for a buck through the line and made four yards. An exchange of kicks gave Yale the ball on her own 20 yard line. Spalding made two yards. Reid takes Pendleton's place at right guard for Yale. Flynn kicked to midfield and Waller punted over Yale's goal line for a touchback. The ball was put in play on Yale's 20 yard line and after two attacks on center Flynn punted to Yale's 38 yard line. Dewitt here brought the crowd to its feet by going through the Yale line for 20 yards. Dewitt on another line plunge against right tackle planted the ball on Yale's 10 yard line. A mass play put the ball on Yale's three yard line. Dewitt and H. Baker failed to gain.

Princeton Leads

With one down to go, Princeton decided to take a chance on a field goal and H. Baker again pulled off the trick from the 15 yard mark. Score, Princeton 6, Yale 3. Flynn kicked off to Waller, who was downed on his own 20 yard line and he immediately punted back to Yale's 35 yard line. Philbin made three yards around the Princeton center and Flynn crashed his way through the right side of the Tiger line and when he was downed the ball was on the Tigers' 42 yard line. Waller was disqualified for rough playing and Princeton was penalized half the distance to her goal line, the ball being put in play on Princeton's 21 yard line. Trenman took Waller's place; Cornell went in for Wheeler. Yale failed to gain in two scrimmages and was penalized for a foul play and the ball was put down on Princeton's 30 yard line in Princeton's possession. Pumpelly here took Flynn's place and failed at a field goal. Time was then called for the second period.

Third Period

When the teams resumed play the Yale lineup was the same as at the beginning of the game. There was no change in the Princeton lineup from that at the end of the second quarter. Flynn kicked out of bounds and on kicking off again the ball fell into the arms of Dewitt on the 10 yard line and he ran 30 yards before he was downed. Dewitt punted to the Blue's 25 yard line and on the first scrimmage Spalding made one yard on a play against Princeton's center. Flynn was then entrusted with the ball and advanced it to Yale's 30 yard line. The New Haven full back then punted to H. Baker on Princeton's 35 yard line. On the left wing shift Dewitt jammed through Yale's line for three yards and Dewitt then kicked to Yale's 25 yard line. Spalding bucked the line for two yards. Flynn on a fake formation tried to go around Princeton's left end but he ran clear across the field and out of bounds without gaining an inch.

The big fullback then punted to Princeton's 20 yard line, when H. Baker fumbled and Avery fell on the ball. On the next play Yale fumbled but Cooney of Yale recovered it on Princeton's 36 yard line. Spalding on two rushes made nine yards. Philbin added one yard, giving Yale first down. Two unsuccessful attempts at a forward pass were made by Yale. On the next play Flynn attempted a goal from placement on the 31 yard line but failed. It was Princeton's ball on her 10 yard line. Dewitt immediately punted to Yale's 35 yard liene. Yale failed to gain in three downs and Flynn punted to H. Baker on the Tigers' 30 yard line.

The Tigers did not try the Yale line but immediately punted and it was Yale's ball on her own 33-yard line. Gallauer went in for Avery. Philbin plugged the Princeton center for five yards and on the next play a Yale man shot through the Tiger line to the Blue's 42-yard line. Spalding put the ball on the 45-yard line, giving Yale on a first down. On the next play Spalding crashed through Princeton's five-yard line and the little speedy back made ten yards in the broken field before he was downed as he was going out of bounds. Dewitt punted to Philbin on Princeton's 38-yard line.

Philbin made three yards on a straight buck through the center and Spalding gained two yards. Markle took Philbin's place. Flynn then tried a placement goal from the 40-yard line, but his kick was short. The ball was put on the 20-yard line and Princeton was about to try a line plunge when the ball was interfered with by the Yale center. Dewitt punted, Wheeler getting the ball. Spalding made two yards through the Tigers' left side. Princeton's defense stood up solidly against Spalding's assault on the next play and then Yale was penalized 15 yards for holding. Flynn punted to Princeton's 43-yard line, H. Baker taking the punt. Dewitt immediately punted back and the ball went out of bounds. The quarter ended with the ball in Yale's possession on Yale's own 25-yard line.

Markle's Fine Run

Pumpelly went in the game again, this time supplanting Markle. Flynn sent up a high spiral punt which H. Baker took and carried the ball back to Yale's 47-yard line before he was brought down. The Princeton fullback punted to Wheeler on Yale's 28-yard line. Spalding failed to gain and Flynn punted to S. Baker on Princeton's 38-yard line but the ball was returned because of offside play on Princeton's part. Flynn then made a magnificent punt of 60 yards which H. Baker got and ran 15 yards before the Yale men were able to down him.

With the ball on the 28 yard line Stew Baker broke through the Yale team and planted the ball on the Tigers' 43 yard line. A right wing shift play gave Princeton five yards, Trenkman carrying the ball. Stew Baker added three more yards. A punt was made to the Yale 20 yard line. Flynn kicked to Baker on the Tigers' 40 yard line. Dewitt plunged through the Yale stalwart line for four yards.

Yale was penalized five yards for offside play. Dewitt made a great plunge through the Yale line and in the next scrimmage the fighting Tigers gained one more yard. On a fake formation Stew Baker gained one yard. Sheldon went in for Bomeisler. Dewitt kicked over the goal line for a touchback and the ball was put in play on Yale's 20 yard line. On the first scrimmage Wheeler gained four yards. Flynn punted to Princeton's 35 yard line and H. Baker ran the ball back 12 yards.

Spalding shot around the Princeton end for 15 yards. On the next play Flynn failed to gain and the ball was given to Pumpelly for a try, but the Princeton line held like a brick. Flynn punted to the Tigers' 25-yard line. Loftus took Wheeler's place for Yale. S. Baker made five yards on a line plunge and on the next lineup the same player failed to gain. Arnold took Pendleton's place in the Yale line. Dewitt punted to Yale's 46 yard line. Here the third forward pass was made but it proved to be a success. It was made, Flynn to Sheldon, putting the ball on the Tigers' 40-yard line.

The very play was another forward pass, Flynn to Pumpelly, but it failed to gain. Another forward pass was attempted by Flynn but this one hit the ground and the ball was put in play on Princeton's 40 yard line. H. Baker went in for Flynn. On the next lineup Pumpelly made a field goal from the 50 yard line, tying the score, which now stood 6 to 6. There was no more scoring.

LEGAL NOTICES

Under authority of Section 40, Chapter 590, of the Acts of 1908, I, Walter P. Wiley of Lowell, Mass., do hereby give notice that I have made written application to the Lowell Institution for Savings, Lowell, Mass., for a duplicate deposit book of Account No. 104629, standing in the name of Walter P. Wiley in trust for Mary J. Wiley, and which said deposit book is lost or destroyed.

WALTER P. WILEY.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 15, 1912.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

To all persons interested in the estate of John J. Sheehan, late of Westford, in said County, deceased:

Whereas Thomas J. Enright, the administrator of the estate of said deceased, has presented for allowance, the account of his administration upon the estate of said deceased:

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Lowell, in said County, on the nineteenth day of November, A. D. 1912, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.

And said administrator is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this fourth day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Catherine A. Mooring, of Malden, in said County, that she was lawfully married to William F. Mooring, now of Londonderry, Nova Scotia, at Londonderry, Nova Scotia, on the eighteenth day of May, A. D. 1904, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said William F., never lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth; that your libellant has lived at said Malden for more than five years last preceding the filing of this libel; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said William F., being wholly regardless of the same, at said Londonderry, on or about April 21, 1905, utterly deserted your libellant, and has continued such desertion to the date hereof, being for a period of more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. That said William F. has contracted gross and confirmed habits of intoxication from the voluntary and excessive use of intoxicating liquor.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said William F., and that she may be allowed to resume her maiden name of Catherine A. McLaughlin.

Dated this fifth day of November, A. D. 1912.

CATHERINE A. MOORING.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, November 5, A. D. 1912.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all devisees and legatees named in said will, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this ninth day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents James B. Knowlton, of Everett, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Marie L. Knowlton, now of Milwaukee, in the State of Wisconsin, at Janesville, in said State of Wisconsin, on the sixth day of October, A. D. 1904, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Marie L. Knowlton lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Chelsea, in the County of Suffolk; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Marie L. Knowlton, being wholly regardless of the same, has been guilty of cruel and abusive treatment of your libellant.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Marie L. Knowlton.

Dated this fifth day of November, A. D. 1912.

JAMES B. KNOWLTON.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, November 6, A. D. 1912.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

Attest,

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

OUTLOOK FOR TURKEYS

Indications Point to a Shortage of Supply

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Every indication points toward a shortage in the supply of Thanksgiving turkeys and high prices are expected to prevail. A late spring and a warm fall delaying the growth of turkeys are assigned as the cause but an accurate line on the quality and quantity of the birds that grace every New Englander's Thanksgiving table cannot be determined until later in the week.

Dealers, however, are unanimous in predicting that turkeys will be much cheaper at Christmas than at Thanksgiving. At present, a good Vermont or other northern turkey fetches from 33 to 35 cents a pound, while his western brother brings from 28 to 30 cents.

A canvass by a reporter through the market district brought out that while the dealers are not pessimistic they all fear the supply of turkeys will be short and that their general quality will not be up to the average. If their fears are borne out this means that turkeys will bring fancy prices. Northern turkeys, headed and drawn, will sell for from 38 to 40 cents, and western turkeys will retail at 33 cents.

The fears of a short market and a poorer quality of bird are directly resultant from the knowledge of the influence of bad weather in general on market fowl. Turkeys had a retarded start in the late spring with its bad weather. Had cold weather predominated to any extent during the past month this would have been offset. Warm weather prevailed, giving the birds the opportunity to race around, thus preventing them from taking on the weight necessary for the holiday market.

This means that the plump and heavy-weight birds are apt to be very scarce, and that while the market may be well supplied with turkeys, the chances of their being lightweights are very good. Dealers say that if Thanksgiving were only three weeks farther off, giving the birds time to obtain their full maturity, every one would have good turkeys at less than the present prices.

But this has been the wailing prophecy of every year with the advent of the holiday season. The turkeys will not start to pour into the market for a few days as yet. Even then, when the dealers have their fingers on the pulse of the market a warm spell would send their calculations awry by western turkeys arriving in poor condition.

Anniversary mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock at St. Patrick's church tomorrow morning for the repose of the soul of the late Mary A. Shanley. AD WAR

WILSON IS IN BERMUDA

Pres.-Elect Was Given Great Welcome

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 18.—President-elect Wilson and his family on board the steamer Bermudian arrived off the coast of Bermuda this morning and are now proceeding to Grassy Bay. Alderman Black, representing the corporation of the city of Hamilton, went out on board a private steamer to invite Mr. Wilson and his party to accompany him to Hamilton, where an address of welcome will be presented. Large crowds of people lined the streets and wharves awaiting the arrival of the president-elect and all public and private buildings are decorated with flags and bunting.

Hurstbelme, the winter residence of Mrs. Bordon Harriman has been offered to Mr. Wilson during his stay here. The weather is charming.

TYPHOID FEVER CASES

Six cases of typhoid fever have been reported at the office of the board of health within a week. All of these cases, it was stated today, are being treated at the Corporation hospital on Merrimack and Pawtucket streets. It was stated at the hospital today that none of the cases is very serious. The origin of the disease at this particular time is not known. A year ago this month there were five cases of typhoid fever in Lowell. The fact that the six cases now under treatment developed within a day or two of each other has alarmed the health authorities and they are making every effort to get at the root of the trouble. It was reported that at the Corporation hospital nurses were sick with typhoid fever, but this report was denied by the hospital superintendent, Dr. Clark, today.

Scarlet Fever Disappearing

The number of cases of scarlet fever is decreasing rapidly. During the month of August there were 30 cases reported. Fifty-five cases were reported in September and 115 cases in October. During the first half of this month only 37 cases have been reported.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Observed By Mr. and Mrs. Farrell

Mr. and Mrs. William Farrell of Kenwood celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary at Kenwood yesterday. Many relatives and friends were present and a good old-fashioned dinner was prepared by Mrs. Farrell and served to her guests. The real date of the anniversary was Wednesday, the 13th.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrell are well known in Kenwood, as they have lived there for 13 years. Mrs. Farrell was born in Maine, April 30, 1841. Her maiden name was Theresa Luella Bridges and she is a descendant of one of the early settlers who made America their home in pioneer days, being a direct descendant of John Clarke, who was the first settler in Campbello, Me., going there in 1760." When the Farrels first moved to Kenwood the place was a desolate one; there were no other inhabitants and the life was that of the typical pioneer. Since that time, however, a large number of cottages have been established and several people remain there throughout the year. The name of the Farrell home is "Penaquon," which is an old Indian name, meaning "Rest in Peace," this being the name of a lake in Maine. Mrs. Farrell is one of the few women who remain who are able to skillfully do the work of a man. She is able to plow and manage horses. In fact she is as capable as any farmer of today.

Mr. Farrell is a veteran of the Civil war, having served throughout the war on the northern side, and he has several scars on his arm today which were received at that time. Mr. Farrell was born in Maine in 1844, and he married Mrs. Farrell Nov. 13, 1867, and after their marriage they moved to Princton, Me., moving to North Andover in 1886 and from there moved to Kenwood just 13 years ago.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Farrell are the picture of health and their only regret is that Kenwood will soon be built up so that the outdoor life that they are now leading will be impossible.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF WIFE

Angus Steele Held By the East Boston Police Denies He Killed Woman

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Angus Steele, aged 18, of 18 Bremen street, East Boston, was charged with the murder of his wife, Jennie, at the East Boston police station about 6 o'clock last night, following the report of Medical Examiner Magrath, who had performed an autopsy.

The medical examiner discovered that the woman, who was 33 years old, had sustained a broken rib, a ruptured liver and evidence of an internal hemorrhage from injuries which Dr. Magrath thought could have been caused by a kick. Steele had been detained at Division 7 since yesterday morning awaiting the results of the examiners' inquiry.

When the medical examiner's report reached the station house Steele was being put through a rigid examination in Capt. Brickley's private office by Lieut. Clark and Sergt. Sweeney. Upon receiving the report from Dr. Magrath the officers preferred a charge of murder.

About 11 o'clock Saturday morning Steele reported to the police that he had found his wife dead in bed at their home. Steele told the police that about 7 o'clock Friday afternoon his wife went to Hyde Park to visit an aunt, Mrs. Jane Brady, who lives on Delaware street. His wife arrived home about 10 o'clock and Steele said she was under the influence of liquor. Steele says he spoke to her about coming home and a condition.

Steele said that he went to bed after talking to her, she going to bed about an hour after him. In the bed with Steele and his wife were their two children. Steele said he awoke about 11 o'clock Saturday and found his wife dead.

A Mrs. Fosberg, who lives in the neighborhood, heard screams coming from the direction of the Steele home about 8 o'clock Friday night, according to the police.

Steele and his wife have been living at 18 Bremen street about five months. They lived in the rear, having a bedroom and a kitchen. Mrs. Steele's maiden name was O'Malley. She was born in County Cork, Ire., about 33 years ago.

They have a boy, 2 years old, and a daughter, 3 years old. Both children were turned over to Steele's brother, who lives on Border street near Lexington street, East Boston. Steele has no permanent occupation, doing odd jobs at moving and longshore. For the past few weeks Steele has not done much of any work.

DALY FOR Alderman

The fairest and most intelligent way of judging the future is by the past.

The fairest and most intelligent test of what a man will do as Alderman is what he has done in the public positions he has held before.

John W. Daly has served five years in the City Council. His service there was marked by faithfulness and efficiency, by honesty of intention and fidelity to principle.

By this service he has gained the knowledge and experience of municipal affairs, which a man should have to intelligently and successfully perform the duties of Alderman.

He has never sought office for the emoluments and he has never yet held an office to which was attached a salary.

"In aspiring to the position of Alderman," says John W. Daly, "It seems to me that it is necessary and essential that a man should have such practical knowledge of municipal affairs and such conception of municipal problems as shall enable him to serve the city well and be a credit to the people who place their trust in him."

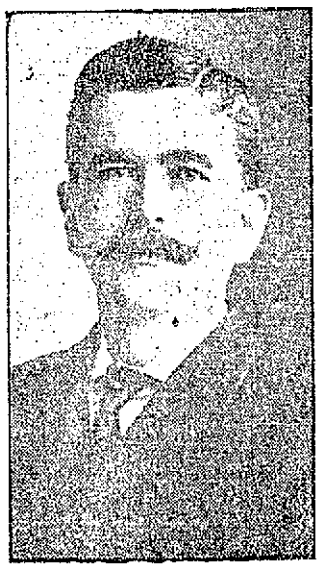

JOHN R. KIGGINS,
121 Agawam Street.

EX-ALDERMAN

James J. Gallagher

CANDIDATE FOR

Alderman

A practical and successful business man. A man, who, when in office conducted the city business in a clean, honest, straightforward manner with ability.

A man who by thorough application to his duties, acquired a very practical knowledge of the management of the several departments thereby fitting himself for the proper administration of any department in the city.

A man whose ability and fairness in the conduct of business, as chairman of the Board of Aldermen, won many favorable comments from those who had business before the Board of Aldermen in 1911. We therefore have confidence in presenting the name of JAMES J. GALLAGHER as a Candidate for Alderman because we know his ability, fairness and honesty properly fit him to make a competent member of the municipal council and hence we urge you to vote for him.

Yours for clean, progressive government,

James J. Gallagher Campaign Com.,

New York Attorney Seeking Relatives of Henry D. Winters, Who Died in the West

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Nelson K. Tunnicliff, a lawyer at 26 Liberty street, is searching for the heirs of Henry D. Winters, who died in the west June 20, 1911, leaving an estate of $100,000. As Winters died intestate, unless some of his relatives claim his property, mostly real estate, it will revert to the state.

A woman who was employed as Winters' housekeeper, and is a creditor of his estate, filed an application and was appointed administratrix. Mr. Tunnicliff learned from some of Winters' acquaintances that he had told them he was born near Albany and had been twice married, his first wife having died in New York many years ago, and that he had a daughter and grandchildren there.

It was said that Winters took as his second wife Alida E. Shufelt, who was born in New York state, and that one daughter, Alice, was born of this marriage. With his wife and child Winters visited New York in 1881 and remained for one night with Ernest E. Shufelt, his wife's brother, and about the same time he visited a cousin of his wife in Albany.

CRASH!

CHARLES J. MORSE stands upon his platform—he does not waver—HE BELIEVES IN THE ESTABLISHMENT BY LAW OF A MUNICIPAL COAL YARD—For he knows that the city CAN SAVE money by such an institution. He knows that if the City has its own coal pocket—and purchases coal direct from the mines, that the City will be free from any combination—and that also in times such as we are now encountering, the City can put itself in such a position that its people shall not have to beg the combination to sell them coal—He knows it Mr. Voter—and you know it, too.

ASK THE BOARD OF TRADE!

ASK MR. LAJOIE, who tried to sell coal to the people of Lowell at a fair price, but was stopped by the combination!

ASK MR. BRADY, who tried to do likewise!

THINK FOR YOURSELF MR. VOTER.

Mr. Voter, do you think that if the City establishes its own coal pocket, dealers outside of the combination will have a chance to sell coal in Lowell—under a fair competition?

MR. MORSE believes in the establishment of a permanent force of City Employees, so does any man who believes in good service.

MR. MORSE believes in Good Roads—Good Streets and Good Sewers—The best that the city can afford.

Ephraim Reed Had Narrow Escape From Being Killed This Morning

Ephraim Reed, residing in Southboro, had a narrow escape from being killed while attempting to board a moving train at the Middlesex street station about 7 o'clock this morning. The man escaped with a broken left leg.

Just as the outward bound Ayer train was pulling out of the station Reed ran through the street and made a jump for one of the cars but he came in contact with one of the gate posts and was thrown to the ground. People who anticipated an accident shouted as they saw the man running and the engineer succeeded in bringing the train to a standstill before it had gone one car length.

Several of the employes rushed to the assistance of Reed, who at this time had one of his legs across one of the rails. The ambulance was summoned and the man was taken to St. John's hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a broken left leg.

THE CITY PRIMARIES TOMORROW

Voters Should Make it a Point to Turn Out and Vote for Most Competent Candidates

The city primaries or preliminary city election will be held tomorrow and it is very important that each and every voter should know how to vote without rendering his ballot invalid. The polls will open at 12 m. and will close at 8 p. m. You can vote for only two candidates for the municipal council and three for the school board. If you vote for any more you simply spoil your ballot. So many queries have been received at this office and also at the city clerk's office relative to this matter that it seems necessary to make it very plain as to how many candidates one can vote for.

Because of the bungling count made in precinct 3 of ward 2 at the state election the following notice signed by the city clerk and approved by the commissioner of finance has been sent out to the wardens and clerks:

"Dear Sir:—I am directed by the commissioner of finance to request that in the absence of any of the precinct officers, particularly the clerk or warden, at the opening of the polls at the preliminary election to be held on Tuesday, November 19, that due care be used in the selection of men to perform the duties of precinct officers to the end that a true and proper return of votes may be made to the city clerk.

"Respectfully,

"Stephen Flynn, City Clerk."

There are 14 candidates for aldermen and 11 for school committee. Their names have been published and republished in these columns. A great many seem to have the impression that candidates for aldermen are running for certain departments. An alderman cannot be assigned to a department except by vote of a majority of the municipal council.

School Board Meeting

The school board will hold a regular meeting tomorrow night. The board has adopted the policy of meeting twice a month and the meetings are held on the first and third Tuesdays of the month. It is not believed that there will be business on hand for all of these meetings and some will be called perhaps only to adjourn.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS

They Met This Afternoon and Transferred the License of D. E. McQuade from Middle to Central Street

The license commissioners held a special meeting this afternoon and transferred the license of Daniel E. McQuade from 27-31 Middle street to 157 Central street. The commissioners viewed the premises and later granted the transfer. The license is a fourth class one and the new premises will be in the Bradley building.

An Official Denial

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—An official statement denying that the accident to the Merchants limited express at Greens Farms on Saturday night was due to poor condition of the tracks or that any cross over movement was involved in it was issued from the offices of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad today. The statement says that the train was running on a straight track, and was on its regular schedule, being only about three minutes late.

Could Hardly Hear

Senses of Taste and Smell Were Also Greatly Impaired

"I was afflicted with catarrh," writes Eugene Forbey, Lebanon, Kansas. "I took several different medicines, giving each a fair trial, but grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I was about to give up in despair, but concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking three bottles of this medicine I was cured, and have not had any return of the disease."

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects radical and permanent cures of catarrh.

THE TURKS DRIVEN FROM MONASTIR

City Has Been Bombarded by the Armies of the Allies for Several Weeks

BELGRADE, Servia, Nov. 18.—According to a despatch received in this city today the Turks have been driven from the city of Monastir. This city had been bombarded by the armies of the allies for several weeks but the Turkish soldiers who garrisoned it had put up a stubborn resistance, successfully repulsing the attacks of the allies. The news of the large Turkish losses which had been suffered during the past several weeks tended to dishearten the garrison, however, and today it gave up the fight.

Monastir occupied a capital position for defense. It is the marked center for the entire district and has a population of 45,000, composed of Servians, Bulgarians, Armenians, Greeks and Turks. The Christians number about half of the inhabitants.

BULGARIAN ATTACK PROVED A FAILURE

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The first Bulgarian attack on the Turkish line of fortifications defending Constantinople at Tchatalja has failed. The whole of the Bulgarian army was engaged. Every available man was moved to the front from the Bulgarian forces investing Adrianople and these were relieved by Servian troops. The Bulgarians with all their artillery began their advance on Tchatalja on Saturday and continued the bombardment of the works throughout Sunday. They, however, found the Turkish positions so strong that they could not make any impression on them and for the moment at least have been compelled to give up the attempt, the firing, according to a despatch from Constantinople, having ceased this morning. Observers who have been to the Turkish front agree that the capture of the Tchatalja lines must prove a task of tremendous difficulty. The days the Bulgarian troops were compelled to use for the bringing up of guns, ammunition and reinforcements were taken advantage of by the Turks to place themselves into entrenchments and to place their guns in position, giving them a distinct advantage over the attackers. The Turkish soldiers, too, who have been so shaken by their previous defeats appear to have been steadied and thus far have made a most determined stand. The Bulgarian troops made their main attack to the east of Tchatalja, their object being to break through at the point where the railway to Constantinople makes a loop. The strong forts, the marshes and the guns of the Turkish warships had evidently discouraged them from making an attempt to turn either flank of the Turkish lines.

Should the Bulgarians be succeeded in their effort to break through the Turkish left center, Nazim Pasha's Ottoman army will be pushed back to the northeast and its retirement upon their capital cut off.

The Turks seem to have no hope of rolling back the Bulgarian forces but if they succeed in holding the lines of Tchatalja both the military and diplomatic situation will undergo a marked change, for a long defense of the front will probably compel the Bulgarians to enter into negotiations without capturing the Turkish capital.

In Albania, on the other side of European Turkey, the opposing armies have again come to grips and, as the Turkish commander had predicted, another battle is in progress today in the vicinity of the fortress of Monastir.

FIERCE FIGHT FOR THE POSSESSION OF THE TURKISH FORTRESS OF MONASTIR

BELGRADE, Nov. 18.—A fierce fight for the possession of the Turkish fortress of Monastir continues between the Servians and Greeks on the one side and the Turkish garrison on the other. The defenders of the city knowing that their line of communication with Ochrida on which they would naturali-

THE CAMPBELL CASE

Was On Trial in Court Again Today

The case of Abel R. Campbell vs. Mrs. Sarah B. Cates, an action of contract in the sum of $300, in which the plaintiff seeks to recover a commission of $100 which he claims is due him for work performed in trying to sell property for her, she later refusing to sell the said property which is situated in Gates street.

Mrs. Cates was recalled to the witness stand and in cross examination said the land on which the house was built was purchased by her through Mr. Campbell's agency. She later said she bargained for the land which was purchased by her daughter. She said her daughter did not own any other piece of property.

Witness was questioned relative to bills on the construction of the house, and which were sent to her. She admitted some of the bills were made out to her, but gave for reason that her daughter had no experience in house building and therefore she was acting for her.

Mrs. Cates then went along and related her direct testimony to the effect that she never asked Mr. Campbell to sell the property, inasmuch as she was not the owner of it. She told of meeting the perspective buyer, Mr. Frank Emerson and his wife, at the said property, but never told Mr. Campbell to sell it. She denied ever asking $5500 for the property and said there was never any price mentioned for the property, although Mr. Campbell had volunteered to sell the place. She said she knew Mr. Campbell was trying to sell the house, but she claimed she told the latter at the time she was not ready to sell as the property was not finished. She said at one time Mr. Campbell entered the house which was locked, he using his own key. She admitted Mr. Campbell told her he had an offer of $5500 for the property, but she said she did not pay any attention to it. She denied telling Mrs. Emerson that the house would be completed by Oct. 15. She, however, admitted telling Mrs. Emerson she could select her own wall paper, and that the china closet and other changes could be made.

Witness was asked how much money her daughter had and she replied this was her own business.

Miss Maude V. Cates was the next witness called and she said she told Mr. Campbell not to make any bargain for the house, for the property was hers, and she did not want to dispose of it at that time, for the building was not finished. She also stated that she told him her price was $5500 net.

Witness said she bought the lot for $850 and she built the house with her own money and some her mother gave her.

WAHLE ARGUES FOR GUNMEN

Attacks Evidence of Witnesses for State—Says Defendants Did Not Know Becker

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Today promised to be the next to the last, if not the last day of the trial of the four gunmen charged with shooting down Herman Rosenthal under orders from Charles Becker. The morning session of court was given over to the closing address of Charles Wahle, counsel for the defense. The afternoon was allotted to Frank Moss summing up for the state.

Mr. Wahle began his plea for the lives of his four clients promptly at 10.30 o'clock.

"The hand of Jack Rose," he said, "was the guiding hand that put the shots in Herman Rosenthal; Rose, a criminal for 20 years and never caught; Webber, a polluter of mind and body; Vallon, a brute from childhood; Schepps, the unspeakable, each of them bad, each of them wicked.

"These four are confessed murderers, but the four defendants come into court presumed to be innocent—an innocence which must be torn from them by the people when they can be convicted.

"You must have weighed beneath the depths of the calm demeanor of Jack Rose, the degradation and criminality of his character. His was the brain that directed the plot which Webber, Vallon and Schepps carried into execution."

Reviewing the evidence, Mr. Wahle said it proved that Rose feared the gunmen; that he sought them out to prove that he had nothing to do with the framing up of "Jack" Zelig, their gang leader.

"Rose's desire to prove his innocence—that's the shibboleth of the entire case," declared Mr. Wahle.

It was not credible, argued the attorney, that the defendants had agreed to kill for Becker, whom they did not know—and kill Rosenthal, whom they did know.

"If you are going to send the boys to the electric chair on such testimony as that, the best thing for the people of this community to do is to stick to the business of Rose, Webber, Vallon and Schepps—the hiring of assassins.

"Remember that on June 2 Rose said the men were total strangers to him and that it was not until the night of June 20 that he met Frank and Gyp.

Coming down to the events just before the murder, Mr. Wahle declared that Rose "immune for 20 years" feared trouble from the exposures Rosenthal was making, which was brought home to him when he got a subpoena to appear before the grand jury.

Mr. Wahle attacked the credibility of the testimony of the state's eye witnesses, declaring that "there is nothing so subtle and unreliable as identifications.

"The witness Stanish was at least 100 feet away from the scene of the shooting, he said.

"I want to show you how wantonly, wickedly and despicably false was that man's identification when he left the witness stand and placed his hand on Whitey Lewis."

Mr. Wahle went over the testimony of the witness as to where he stood and what he said.

The witness Krause, who identified all but "Dago Frank," was not at the scene until after the murder, declared the lawyer.

He read from Krause's testimony at the coroner's inquest in which he said as quoted by Mr. Wahle.

"I went there to se what had happened."

Of the eye witness Luban, who identified all four, Mr. Wahle said he was a perjurer, who testified to escape from a jail sentence.

Taking up the testimony of Shapiro, the driver of the "murder car," who swore his passengers were the gunmen, Mr. Wahle said:

"Shapiro, indicted for murder, has every reason to lie in this case. He has every interest to please the district attorney, who is prosecuting him for his life."

DECREE FOR PETITIONER

Judge Lawton Finds in Favor of Miss Curran

LATTER ASKED FOR ADOPTION OF NEPHEW

Hearing Held Here Oct. 15, and Adoption Was Contested by Boy's Father—Decree Handed Down Today

George F. Lawton, judge of the probate court, handed down an important decree today, when he reported in favor of the petitioner for the adoption of a child in which the respondent in the case was the father of the boy. The decree was received this afternoon by Attorney Benjamin J. Moloney, counsel for the petitioner.

The petitioner in the case was Miss Annie Curran, aunt of Peter Heslin, aged ten years. Through her attorney she filed a petition for the adoption of the boy on Sept. 5 of this year, and the case was heard in this city on Oct. 15. The boy's father, James Heslin contested the case and he was represented by Lawyer Johnson of Waltham.

At the hearing of the case, the petitioner testified that she has supported and educated the child since his mother died, three years ago, claiming that in that time the father did not contribute to his support. At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Lawton took the case under consideration and mailed the following decree to Lawyer Moloney today:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

IN RE-PETITION FOR ADOPTION of PETER HESLIN.

After consideration, I conclude that the allegations of the petition were fairly established. Had a petition for guardianship been presented I should have been in no doubt whatsoever that it should be granted with custody by the guardian against any opposition which might have been made by the father of Peter Heslin. A decree upon such a petition would leave the father under obligation to support the ward. A decree for adoption transfers the duty of support to the adoptive parent and the natural parent is hereby relieved from that responsibility. Nevertheless on the whole, taking into account the history of the case for the last two years and having finally been satisfied that the neglect described by the statute has been proved, it seems to me that the court is justified in finding that it will be best for Peter Heslin that he should be adopted by the petitioner and that the decree should be entered as prayed for.

George F. Lawton,
Judge of Probate Court.

Thomas Brady Met With Painful Accident

Thomas Brady, aged 14 years, a pupil of the Butler grammar school, met with a painful accident while at play during recess this afternoon. He, in company with several other boys, was engaged in playing tag, when young Brady tripped and fell, fracturing his left arm. He was taken to the Emergency hospital, where the bone was set, and the injured boy was later removed to his home at 535 Lawrence street.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall Married 50 Years Ago

The milestones which mark the journey of husband and wife through life should be the occasion for no other sentiment except that of joy, but the golden wedding anniversary which Mr. and Mrs. John Hall prepared to observe yesterday resulted in an unhappy ending. The observance was to have been held at the home of their son, John P. Hall, 54 Seventh street. Fifty years ago it was that Mr. and Mrs. Hall stood before the altar and interchanged those words that had bound them together for life. Yesterday it was their intention to again kneel at the altar, and at the communion rail, and return thanks to God for all the blessings He had bestowed upon them during their long and happy married life. At an early hour they arose and prepared to go to mass, and on turning to the stairs leading to the front hall Mr. Hall's foot caught in the carpet and he was thrown headlong down the stairs. His son rushed to his assistance and a physician was summoned. It was quickly determined that Mr. Hall had sustained a fracture of the leg. When the old man was told that the injury was a serious one he smiled bravely and remarked to his wife that while it was unfortunate that he had suffered the accident, yet he and she should be thankful because of their safe passage through a half-century of married life, and that they should return thanks to God for the innumerable blessings He had bestowed upon them.

FAVOR GENERAL TARIFF BILL

Democrats So Express Themselves—Others Want Revision Schedule By Schedule

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The form that tariff revision is to take before the special session of congress next spring has become a matter of strong individual opinion among democratic senators and congressmen now here.

Representative Underwood, democratic house leader, who will reach Washington this week, has given no indication as yet of his own plans and it is expected that democratic leaders will confer at length over the situation before advising President-elect Wilson of the tentative arrangements.

Many members now favor a general bill, covering many or all schedules of the tariff law, to be framed as a partial or complete substitute for the Payne-Aldrich law. Those who advance this plan claim it would be the speediest way of fulfilling tariff pledges.

Others favor combining in a single bill those measures passed during the last two years, but vetoed by President Taft; and the preparation of other single schedule bills to follow this measure. Unless the plan to revise the entire tariff law in a single bill should be adopted, it is believed democratic leaders will urge the calling of the special session before April 15. That date was set by President-elect Wilson as the latest upon which he would assemble the new congress.

Democrats now here believe the new house can begin work in March, soon after the present administration retires from power, and be organized ready for tariff legislation early in April.

It is expected that short hearings will be given by the house ways and means committee to industries vitally affected by proposed tariff changes. The extent of these hearings, according to democratic members of the house who favor them, will not be such as to interfere with early action on the tariff bills.

The plan of distributing the various tariff schedules among sub-committees of the ways and means committee, which was resorted to last year, was found to operate satisfactorily both in saving time and in obtaining the information necessary to the work of the committee, and it is expected that this expedient will be adopted again.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma yesterday expressed the opinion that the entire tariff revision should be concluded before next July, permitting the inauguration of the new schedules with the beginning of the fiscal year July 1. To secure perfect co-operation between house and senate, Senator Gore said he probably would suggest a joint steering committee of members of the two houses to act together during the approaching short session in the formulation of a tariff measure for the extra session.

"In that way," he said, "we could insure the drawing of a bill that would receive the support of both houses from the start, saving the loss of much time in subsequent conferences."

It is not the purpose of the republicans to allow the democratic program to be put through without remonstrance. They will ask hearings on many of the schedules, and republican senate leaders expect to be able to make effective opposition in many instances.

"The democrats cannot get a free sugar bill through the senate," said Sen. Smoot of the finance committee yesterday. He based his prediction on the understanding that the Louisiana senators are sure to oppose such a measure and he said there were other democrats who would stand out against that and many other contemplated measures.

The Darrach Recitals

A series of recitals on the works of Shakespeare will be opened at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in Colonial hall when Marshall Darrach, who has been engaged by the playground committee, will give the "Merchant of Venice," which is considered by many as the greatest work of the author. Mr. Darrach comes to this city not as a stranger for the success of his recitals last fall was not in a small way due to the able and thorough readings of the works which he gave.

Few people realize the work which can be done with the amount of money made on these recitals; the proceeds of which are devoted to the propaganda of playground work. The money made on the recitals held last year was sufficient to pay all the expenses accruing from the installation of baths for the boys and girls; the salaries of the attendants present at the baths; the cost of maintining the playground in Paige street, and also an amount slightly over $40 which was expended for material used in the industrial department of the playgrounds. It can be readily seen that while the person attending the recitals receives good, wholesome and mentally elevating entertainment, he or she, is also contributing to a fund which during the summer months will give a good measure of pure air and muscle building exercise to the young.

Pageant Mass Meeting

A pageant mass meeting was held Sunday afternoon in the Paige Street church and was attended by a large number. Miss Harriet Taylor, one of the national secretaries of the organization, was the principal speaker and she told of the work in China. The mass meeting was in the interest of the foreign work of the association. The song of appeal and response used in the final scene of the pageant was sung by the pageant chorus. Miss Ola Sargent was organist, and the soloist was Mrs. J. J. Kerwin.

OUTLOOK FOR PEACE IN CUBA

Opposition to Menocal Not Serious—Days of Uprisings Are Thought to Be Past

HAVANA, Nov. 18.—Within a few weeks the popular feeling toward the political situation has risen from something bordering on despair to one of confidence. The outlook for the republic of Cuba appears brighter than for many years.

The presidential election looked forward to with apprehension passed without violence, and there is a growing disposition in all quarters to accept the verdict as the honest expression of the majority. Those most disappointed have vented their feelings in threats that were never taken very seriously and now seem inclined to accept the new order of things philosophically.

The attitude of the liberals has simmered down to a proposition to attack the legality of the elections on the ground of fraud, upon the convening of the national liberal assembly on Nov. 22.

When that date is reached, it is probable that the question will be quietly shelved and that Dr. Alfredo Zayas will find himself engaged in a fight with Gen. Jose Miguel Gomez for the leadership of the liberal party, the president having let it be understood that he has no intention of retiring from active political life on the expiration of his term of office and that it is his ambition to lead the liberals to victory in the presidential campaign of 1916.

There has been fear felt in the six months intervening before the close of his administration Gen. Gomez would spare no effort to obtain legislation tending to embarrass his successor. But though the conservative leaders have no faith in Gen. Gomez they are not especially anxious on this score, and in fact the president has already manifested a desire to smooth the path of his successor by communicating to him the provisional estimates of the budget for the fiscal year beginning next June, with the assurance that he will be pleased to act on any suggestion that Gen Menocal may make.

In taking office Gen. Menocal will have the inestimable advantage of a friendly senate and house. In the senate he is assured of the support of 14 of the 24 members and in the house there is a strong working majority. He will have the support of the good element throughout the island and the personal counsel of such distinguished Cubans as Gen. Pedero de Andrade, Col. Ernesto Fonts Sterling, both members of President Palma's last cabinet; Dr. Verona Sierez, the new vice-president and one of the foremost "intellectuals" in Cuba; Col. Charles Hernandez, master-general under Provisional Gov. Magoon, and that veteran campaigner in war and politics, Col. Hevia.

He will also have the loyal support of an army organized, uniformed, equipped and armed like American regulars and drilled by American officers, and which has so won the respect of the people that many are convinced that the days of armed uprisings in Cuba are past forever.

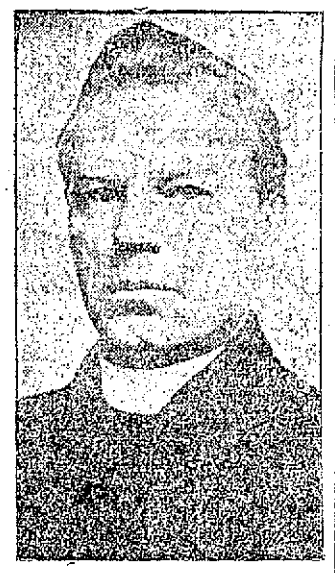

THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Of Fr. Mathews of North Billerica Observed

Silver Loving Cup Presented to Edward F. Slattery, the "Father of the Society"

The Father Mathew Total Abstinence society celebrated its silver jubilee Saturday night in Thomas Talbot Memorial hall, No. Billerica, and it was without exception the greatest observance in the history of the society. About every member of the society attended with a friend and a great number of guests were present. Each of the 23 past presidents received an invitation to attend and with few exceptions all were present to endorse by their appearance the work begun here twenty-five years ago, and carried on so successfully up to the present time. The past presidents are as follows: Richard T. Conway, John Conway, Lawrence Buckley, Edward L. McMahon, Robert Crawford, John H. Mahoney, John G. Mahoney, Thomas Mullen, Michael Coughlin, Joseph Hannon, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Charles Fairbrother, John Welch, Daniel Twomey, James Campbell, Edward Morris, Thomas Twomey, John F. Gannon, Edward Riley, Timothy McCarthy, Joseph P. Meaney, Charles Cowdrey and John Mahoney.

REV. E. J. CORNELL, O. M. I.

EDWARD F. SLATTERY

At 8.30 o'clock a concert opened in the upper hall. Richard T. Noonan gave several piano selections that were very pleasing to the audience. John J. Dalton and Frank Maguire sang with their usual success and were loudly applauded. Maurice O'Donnell gave several recitations and James E. Donnelly sang some of his famous Scotch songs. John Devlin concluded the entertainment by singing several songs.

The gathering then marched to the banquet hall to enjoy the spread that had been prepared by the ladies' auxiliary corps. The banquet hall was beautifully decorated the American flag being strung all around the hall with the Mathews' banner in the center.

After the banquet President William Taylor, after a brief address of welcome introduced Rev. Fr. Cornell, O. M. I. who congratulated the society for its splendid work and spoke at some length on the history of Father Mathew. Mr. Frederic S. Clark and Rev. C. H. Williams each spoke briefly and complimented the society for the great work it had done for the town of Billerica. Mr. James O'Sullivan also spoke on the work that temperance organizations have done in the past and were doing at the present time.

Edward F. Slattery was then introduced as the "father of the society," and it was mentioned that Mr. Slattery has not missed an anniversary since the organization of the society a quarter of a century ago. Mr. Slattery spoke on the value of temperance societies in this and other towns.

In opening he referred to the time the Fr. Mathews was organized 25 years ago and how some 32 men signed the pledge and willingly came forth with help and purse to organize a temperance society in North Billerica and how pleased he was to see some of those same men present.

The speaker mentioned the great work of the Ladies' auxiliary, who worked so faithfully when the Mathews were organized and now were mothers and wives of members of the organization.

Mr. Slattery said he had probably seen as many men under the influence of liquor as any one man in Massachusetts, and he could say for the praise of Billerica, that probably not one dozen of them came from that town. This same thing was true in other towns where temperance organizations were encouraged. He told how Mr. O'Sullivan deserves a great deal of praise for the work he has done to make this organization a success. He spoke of several men who had worked to make the society a success and especially mentioned the great work of the Talbot mills.

Mr. Slattery again told how pleased he was to be with the Mathews on this anniversary and how fortunate he was to be one who had helped to make it a success, and thanked the president and all members for the privilege they had given him to help them in their work.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Slattery by Fr. Cornell, in behalf of the Mathews, of a beautiful silver loving cup as a token of the high esteem and regard in which he is held by the Mathew organization. Fr. Cornell said it was silver without, to memorize the silver jubilee, and gold within for the golden work he had done for the organization. Mr. Slattery thanked the members from the bottom of his heart and said he could never repay his friends in North Billerica for the beautiful token and loving cup.

JUMPED FROM ELECTRIC CAR

Lawrence Man Received Several Minor Scalp Wounds and Had a Narrow Escape From Serious Injury

John G. Dougherty of Essex street, Lawrence, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured last night as a result of stepping off a car backwards while the car was in motion.

Dougherty had been visiting friends in this city and about 7 o'clock last night he started back for Lawrence. When near the corner of Bridge and First streets he evidently thought that he had made a flying trip to Spicketville or else he forgot something and intended to return to the square, for without even stopping to wait for the conductor to signal the motorman to stop the car, Dougherty stepped off backwards. When his feet struck the pavement the momentum of the car threw him down and he rolled over and over, receiving minor wounds about the scalp.

The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to St. John's hospital, where he received treatment.

MILL STRIKERS DISPERSED

Police Had No Trouble With Them

WATERTOWN, Nov. 18.—The police dispersed without trouble 1000 strikers and sympathizers who gathered about the gates of the Good Rubber Co.'s mill today when several departments of the plant were reopened. About 2000 workers were taken back by the company and 500 others who had expected to return were turned away and told there was no work for them at this time. Other departments of the mill are expected to reopen during the week. Trouble was anticipated at the opening hour because of claims of some of the employes, many of whom are members of the Industrial Workers of the World, that they were being discriminated against when there was a selection of operatives who were to return. The closing of the factory, a little over a week ago, was declared by operatives to be a move on the part of the company to forestall action on the part of the members of the Industrial Workers of the World, but the management claimed that it was to allow necessary repairs to be made. As fast as these repairs can be completed the various departments will be reopened, officials state. Serious rioting developed last week when the first attempt was made to reopen the factory. Last night one man was killed and another injured in an outbreak in which the strikers were said to have been concerned.

BY BOYHOOD ENEMY

Man Was Shot and Seriously Injured

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 18.—M. A. Root, member of a Denver tobacco firm, was shot and seriously wounded at his home Saturday night by a man he says he recognized as a boyhood enemy at Ripon, Wis. Root was taken to the County hospital, where it was said there was a chance for his recovery.

Root said the trouble started in 1870, shortly after he left school in Wisconsin, when his home was robbed. He said he recognized the burglar as Jas. Divinney. He had him arrested and he was sentenced to prison.

At that time, Root declares, Divinney swore vengeance. Several times in the last 15 years since he has lived in Denver, Root has been attacked, shot and once locked in his safe and nearly suffocated. On each occasion Root declares, he recognized his assailant as Divinney.

SERGT. CARNEY RETURNS

To Lowell After Enjoying Month's Furlough

WAS ACCOMPANIED ON TRIP BY MRS. CARNEY

They Left Lowell on Oct. 17 and Visited Boston, New York, Buffalo, Chicago and Places in Nova Scotia

"Business is great," said Sergt. Robert J. Carney, who is in charge of the local recruiting station in Middlesex street, and who just returned to his office this morning after a one month's furlough. At the time that the writer happened into the office this morning, the sergeant was examining two applicants for enlistment, and both of the young men were accepted.

The sergeant in company with Mrs. Carney, left Lowell on Oct. 17, and was away from Lowell until yesterday, during which time he enjoyed an excellent vacation. Upon leaving Lowell Mr. and Mrs. Carney went to Boston, where they remained for a few days. They then went to New York city and later visited Buffalo, taking in the sights at Niagara Falls. Upon leaving Niagara the Lowell couple went to Chicago, Illinois, where a reunion of the Carney family was held. At the meeting were members of Sergt. Carney's family from many sections of the country. The exercises lasted two days, and after visiting several other cities in the vicinity, Mr. and Mrs. Carney left for Nova Scotia, where they were the guests of Mrs. Carney's parents.

Sergt. Carney's furlough expired on Saturday, Nov. 16, and while he returned home on that day, he did not take over his office until this morning. During his absence the local office was in charge of Sergt. Koch, and the latter left Lowell Saturday evening for Boston, where he, too, resumed activities at the Washington street recruiting station this morning.

In speaking of his trip the sergeant said that he had the best time in his life and talked enthusiastically about Niagara Falls.

He said that at the time he went there the falls were very heavy and as the water dropped it presented a most picturesque sight, a sight that he will ever remember. In Chicago, where the reunion was held, the Lowell man met a brother, who is also a military man, after a separation of a number of years. Sisters from the coast were in attendance and the meeting proved a most enjoyable one for all concerned.

In Nova Scotia, too, the Lowell couple had a great time, and the sergeant was given a great reception by the town folk in the section he visited. A short time ago an account of the sergeant's travels appeared in The Sun, and a copy of the paper was sent by Mr. Carney to his parents. The story was read with great interest by all the neighbors and upon the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Carney, all the villagers were anxious to see the "man who traveled the world." Many receptions in honor of Sergt. Carney were held and he was kept busy explaining the many different sections of the globe that he visited.

The sergeant expects a prosperous season and said that the way the first morning opened with two accepted applicants augurs well for the success of at least this month.

FUNERALS

GRAHAMS—The funeral of Peter Grahams, infant son of Peter and Sarah Grahams, took place this morning at 10.30 o'clock from the home of his parents, No. 70 Rock street. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery in charge of Undertakers J. F. O'Connell & Sons.

BAYLEY—The funeral of Miss Margaret Bayley took place on Saturday afternoon from the undertaking rooms C. M. Young on Prescott street. Rev. N. T. Whitaker, D. D., conducted the funeral services. Appropriate selections were sung by Mrs. John D. Peacock. The body was sent to Church Hill, New Brunswick, for burial, under the direction of Undertaker C. M. Young.

BRUNET—The funeral of Francois Xavier Brunet took place this morning from his home in Dalton street. High mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Louis' church at 8 o'clock, Rev. H. A. Fortier officiating. The choir was under the direction of Mr. Oliver L. David, Miss Ida Mongrain presiding at the organ. The bearers were Arthur Payette, Frank Brunet, Edek and Octave Collins, Henry Betty and Henry Collins. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Amedee Archambault.

COBURN—The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Coburn took place from her home in Chelmsford street, Chelmsford, on Sunday afternoon and was very largely attended. There were many flowers received from friends and relatives. The services were conducted by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, former pastor of the Eliot Congregational church. The following selections were sung by Miss Etta Thompson: "Abide With Me" and "The Homeland." The bearers were Messrs. C. M. Forrest, Royal K. Dexter, George B. Holden and Amos F. Hill. The committal service was read at the grave by Rev. Mr. Bigelow. Mr. Walter Coburn had charge of the arrangements, and the burial was in the family lot in the Lowell cemetery, under the direction of Undertakers J. B. Currier Co.

WALSH—The funeral of Mrs. Mary Walsh took place this morning at 8.30 o'clock from her late home, 230 Fayette street, and was largely attended. A funeral high mass was celebrated in the Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Dennis Sullivan, O. M. I. The Gregorian chant was sung by the choir, the soloists being Mrs. Hugh Walker and Charles P. Smith. Mrs. Hugh Walker was the organist. The burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery where Rev. Fr. Sullivan, O. M. I., read the burial service. The bearers were Michael Walsh, James Walsh, Michael Walsh, Jr., John Walsh, John Brett and Thomas Brett. There were many floral offerings. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Charles H. Molloy.

McILROY—The funeral of Miss Melissa McIlroy was held at the residence of John A. Whitney of 6 Herne street on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. A. Frederick Daniels, pastor of the Highland Congregational church. Mrs. Edith Freeman Muzzey sang "Abide With Me," "Gathering Home," and "The Christian's Goodnight." The burial took place in the Edson cemetery, in charge of Undertaker John A. Weinbeck. Among the senders of the flowers were the following: The O'Heir and Morrison families; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dows and family; Mrs. Richburg, Mr. F. A. Bowen and family, Mr. Allan Greenough, Mr. James Stanley and family, Mr. J. A. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. William Nason, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Greenough; the women of the Kirk Street church; Mr. and Mrs. David Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Champney, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis.

SMART—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret A. Smart took place Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from her home, 110 Warwick street, just three weeks after the funeral of her husband, Chas. E. Smart. The services were conducted by Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D. D., pastor of the First Universalist church. Appropriate selections were sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. Fred L. Roberts, Mrs. H. Edward Symonds, Osmond Long and Harry Needham. The floral offerings were as follows: Bank of flowers, "Mother," from children; pillow, "At Rest," from her grandmother, Mrs. Smart; pillow, "Sister," Mrs. W. O. Tuttle and Mrs. E. W. TRADING QUIET

There Was Some Weakness in Active Stocks—Outside of That Prices Were Not Essentially Changed

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—On a small volume of business prices of the leading stocks declined at the opening today. The heaviest trading was in Reading, which fell back ¾ on sales of 6600 shares in the first few minutes.

Trading in stocks was dull and hesitating through the morning. The lethargy of the market was due largely to the possibility that decisions might be rendered by the United States supreme court in some of the long standing cases affecting Wall street.

Announcement at midday that the supreme court will adjourn for a fortnight after today's session without taking action in some of the more important cases before it, caused some irregularity in stocks particularly Reading.

Prices shaded further in the later dealings, steel losing practically all its gain in the spurt of the preceding hour, with general heaviness in other respective issues.

The market closed heavy. Trading was practically at a standstill in the closing hour and except for some weakness in active stocks prices were not essentially changed.

Boston Market

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Interest in local stocks in the local trading centred in American Woolen which dropped a point by noon. Coppers were neglected, although some shares of Mayflower changed hands.

Money Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Prime mercantile paper 6. Sterling exchange steady at 481 for sixty day bills and at 485.15 for demand. Commercial bills 480½. Bar silver 62⅞. Mexican dollars 48¾. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular.

Exchanges and Balances

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Exchanges $21,934,968; balances, $1,251,944.

CLEMENS AND LAVIGNE, LOWELL PLAYERS ARE SOLD

OUTFIELDER PETE CLEMENS

Manager James Gray of the Lowell baseball team has returned from Milwaukee, where he attended the annual meeting of the minor leagues of America, and he announces that he has sold "Pete" Clemens and Arthur Lavigne, two of the star players on last year's team. Both players were purchased outright by the Milwaukee team for $3000. The sale is conditional upon the players making good. Should the players prove too slow for the higher league they revert to Lowell. Mr. Gray also traded Jake Boultes, captain of last year's team, to the Bridgeport team of the Connecticut league for Howard Baker, an outfielder. To play third base, the Lowell manager purchased Alva Holt, who was utility infielder for the Milwaukee team last season. The latter is highly recommended and Manager Gray expects that he will cover the hot corner in a satisfactory manner. Baker, secured in trade for Boultes, will be played in centre field, in place of Clemens.

The manager has his lines out for two catchers, who are reputed to be very clever performers, and as Monahan will return to the team, all places will be well filled when the 1913 bell rings.

The departure of Clemens and Lavigne from Lowell will be regretted by the fans for both were clever players and "good fellows," but as the American association is a higher league, all will be glad that the fast players have received a promotion.

Clemens is a fast fielder, speedy on the bases and a good hitter while Lavigne was without doubt the best mit artist in the league. He, too, could hit the pill in fine style and the fans feel confident that both will make good in faster company.

Capt. Boultes has played in Lowell for several years, and during that time has made a number of friends, who will regret his transfer. Boultes is a good player, and has many years of good baseball left in him yet. The reason for his transfer is due to the fact that he grew stale in Lowell and a change of scenery will do him good.

Manager Gray wanted some new life in the team, and from the trades made and the new players on the list to be tried out, he expects to open the season of 1913 with one of the best teams that has started in the New England league. He will have one of the strongest pitching departments ever assembled, having Zeiser, Mayhohn, Blum, Weaver and Smith, all under contract.

MRS. HELEN J. SCOTT

First Woman Chosen a Presidential Elector

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Helen J. Scott of this city has the distinction of being the first woman ever nominated for presidential elector in the history of the United States. She will cast her vote for Theodore Roosevelt at the meeting of the electoral college. Mrs. Scott has been an active worker in the progressive ranks, but her chief interest, nevertheless, centers in her home and her children. By all her Tacoma friends she is known as a "home woman." She is the wife of Horace G. Scott, a lawyer. She was born in Michigan, but has been a resident of Tacoma since 18[illegible]. She is the mother of two children, a boy and girl. Mrs. Scott is president of the Monday Civic club, member of the Tacoma Day Nursery's executive board and the board of the Interstate Federation of Women's Clubs.

THE MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE

Many Scrappers Lay Claim to It

What is probably the most open question in prize ring affairs at this time is just who should wear the middleweight crown. Claimants have been many, as have been elimination contests, but still the title cannot be brought to rest between two men. It is the hope of all interested in pugilistic affairs that the field can be narrowed down and the matter settled. A number of aspirants for the crown will clash in a series of bouts, and when the smoke of battle is cleared away there may be some one who can rightfully set himself up as the champion.

Eddie McGoorty is one of the foremost middleweights, and many think that he deserves the crown, but Mike Gibbons, Jimmy Clabby, Chicago "Knockout" Brown, "Cyclone" Johnny Thompson, Billy Papke, the "Illinois Thunderbolt," and a few others at once raised a hue and cry when Edward announced that he was about to tuck the title under his arm for keeps, and of course the Oshkosh man could not get away with his little game.

The foreign scrappers are not taken into consideration. Georges Carpentier, with his terrible knockout record, was given a severe beating in Paris recently by Billy Papke. Jack Harrison, who boasted possession of the Lord Lonsdale belt and the championship of Great Britain, sallied over to the United States to do battle and met his Waterloo at the hands of McGoorty in New York. Harrison was floored for the count in the initial round.

Billy Papke, who was the logical successor of Stanley Ketchel after the great little champion was killed, has not framed up to championship proportions, despite the fact that he at one time defeated Ketchel. Papke, especially since he defeated Carpentier, is extremely anxious to convince fight fans, however, that he is still the "Illinois Thunderbolt."

INJURIES PUZZLE POLICE

Brockton Boy Not Expected to Recover

BROCKTON, Nov. 18.—Brockton police spent all day yesterday investigating a mysterious accident at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at Brockton Heights, which resulted in Charles Hunter, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hunter, 525 Oak street, being taken to the Goddard hospital with a fractured skull, which, it is feared, will result in death.

Indications are, the police say, that the boy was struck by an unknown autoist, who succeeded in covering his tracks, although they say it is possible the lad hid a bit, fell in the road and was run over by a car owned by Mrs. Elizabeth N. Atwood of Norwood, wife of Horace D. Atwood. Mrs. Atwood was driving along Pleasant street when she saw something in the road. She says her auto did not strike the object but straddled it. Her story is corroborated by Motorman Timothy J. Cotter of the Stoughton line of the Bay State Street Railway company.

When it was found the boy was badly hurt he was put in the Atwood auto and rushed to the Goddard hospital in this city, where an operation was performed by experts. A part of the skull bone was removed and last night it was said there was a bare chance to save the lad's life.

FUNERAL NOTICES

McLAUGHLIN—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin will take place tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock from the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Dowling, 30 Adams street. At 9 o'clock a high mass of requiem will be sung at St. Patrick's church. Burial in St. Mary's cemetery, Dover, N. H. J. F. O'Donnell & Sons in charge.

SAVAGE—The funeral of the late John Savage will take place on Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock from his home, No. 172 Fayette street. High mass of requiem will be sung at the Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock. The interment will be in St. Patrick's cemetery. Undertaker James H. McDermett in charge.

Keep Out The Money Changers

This Is a Direct Message To You Men Who Regard Honesty In Public Officials of Paramount Importance.

IF YOU DESIRE OFFICIALS WHO WEAR COATS OF MANY COLORS do not read any further—this message is not for you.

IF YOU DESIRE OFFICIALS WHO ATTEMPT TO SERVE TWO MASTERS and who are purchaseable—regard this appeal as of no consequence to you and your families.

DO YOU WANT TO GO ON RECORD IN FAVOR OF CANDIDATES WHOSE PAST RECORDS SHOW THEM TO BE THE TOOLS AND INSTRUMENTS OF CORRUPT MEN?

REMEMBER THIS!

Former Alderman Jeremiah Connors HAS BEEN THE ONLY MAN IN THIS CAMPAIGN WHO HAS HAD THE COURAGE TO EXPOSE THE REAL DANGERS AT CITY HALL—

Realize, then, what it means to elect him—FOR HE HAS ASKED YOU TO JUDGE HIM ON HIS RECORD ALONE AND HE HAS DISCLOSED THE METHODS IN VOGUE TO WHICH HE STANDS OPPOSED.

A Vote For Connors Is a Protest against the contemptible methods of the MONEY CHANGERS, the men who are not seen but who are behind the CASH TRANSACTIONS which finance the corrupt election of corrupt officials.

Are YOU WITH US OR AGAINST US?

A MAN CANNOT SERVE TWO MASTERS!

In Connection With Murder of Frank Cirillo at Watertown, Last Night

WATERTOWN, Nov. 18.—Three foreigners were arrested at the point of revolvers in Auburndale early today charged with the murder of Frank Cirillo, who was killed last night near the Head mill, where labor disturbances have occurred during the past week. The trio under arrest, Tomasso Fillardi, Gabrial Lapera and Zenzo Rizzotono, were captured on the Boston & Albany railroad tracks near the Auburndale depot and brought to the Watertown police station. They were to appear in the Waltham district court later in the day to answer to the charge of murder. The victim who was 26, was shot through the neck. His body was discovered by ambulance officers on Arlington street while on their way to the Cambridge hospital with Frank Falzo, aged 30, who was set upon and stabbed by a crowd of men. Falzo was alive at the Cambridge hospital early today, although it was said he could not survive his injuries.

Allens Refused New Trial

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 18.—A new trial was today refused Floyd Allen and his son, Claude Allen by the supreme court of Virginia. The men are condemned to die in the electric chair next Friday for the murder of officials of the Carroll court house last March.

Photograph of Chinese Women Voting Will Be Campaign Issue

"If Chinese women may vote, why not American women enjoy the privilege?" That is to be the slogan of the women of the country in their campaign for suffrage in the different states. The photograph of a Chinese woman voting in California at the recent election will be a prominent exhibit in the campaign.

Fr. Kerrigan Preaches Splendid Sermon

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

The Y. M. C. I. Arranges for a Ladies' Night and Other Social Events, Also for the Bowling Season

The feature of yesterday's services was the sermon by Rev. James J. Kerrigan, who was recently assigned to fill the vacancy left by the departure of Rev. John J. McHugh. Fr. Kerrigan chose for his subject "The Sorrows of Life," and his words were very impressive. He mentioned some of the chief sorrows which must be experienced by everyone in this life, and dwelt on their relation to our spiritual life hereafter, employing beautiful language and figures, and giving ample evidence of the true eloquence which he possesses. The high mass was celebrated by Rev. Timothy P. Callahan.

There will be sung an anniversary mass of requiem tomorrow morning for Mary A. Shanley.

On next Thursday, which is the feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the ceremony of the blessing of the infants will take place at St. Patrick's church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Immaculate Conception

A high mass of requiem was sung this morning at the Immaculate Conception church for the repose of the soul of the mother of Rev. C. I. Nolan, O. M. I., formerly pastor of that parish.

On Saturday a high mass of requiem will be sung for the deceased members of the Rosary society.

The members of the Rosary society have arranged to hold a whist party on Wednesday night in the hall of the Young Men's Catholic Institute. There will be attractive ladies' and gentlemen's prizes and booby prizes, and after the whist, dancing will be enjoyed. At this social the prizes will be awarded to the winners of the different contests which took place on the evening of the parish reunion a short time ago.

St. Columba's

The regular weekly whist party of St. Columba's parish will be held on Thursday evening in the rectory, in charge of Miss Mary O'Hearn and the usual prizes will be awarded. There will be an entertainment consisting of a musical program during the awarding of the prizes.

Sacred Heart Church

The members of the Holy Angels sodality of the Sacred Heart church attended Holy Communion in a body yesterday morning at the 8.30 o'clock mass which was celebrated by Rev. James T. McDermott, O. M. I.

The 10.30 high mass yesterday was celebrated by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I. and Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I. preached a forceful sermon on "Charity." The choir, under the direction of Mr. John Kelty, rendered hymns and the vested choir sang the responses to the mass.

A big Thanksgiving festival is planned for the adults and children of the parish. The Children of Mary sodality will have charge of the affair.

Y. M. C. I. Events

The members of the Young Men's Catholic Institute held a largely attended meeting in their hall in Stackpole street yesterday morning and transacted considerable routine business. President James Gilligan presided.

The following seven new members were admitted: Joseph McCartin, Edmund Ray, Joseph Pelneault, H. H. Biladeau, Stephen Burke, E. J. Cushing and Edward Shaughnessy. The ranks of the Y. M. C. I. are swelling rapidly as may easily be seen from the above statement and many young men of Lowell have become interested in this flourishing organization and have applied for admittance.

A committee from the institute, consisting of Frederick Leonard, William Berry, Arthur O'Neil, Joseph Stowe and John Cahill will confer with a committee from the Holy Name society of the Immaculate Conception church about the card tournament. This proposed tournament is quite a novel as well as an interesting event and will include the games of whist, forty-fives and pitch. There will be many handsome prizes which will go to the winners.

It is confidently expected that the ladies' night, which will take place at the Institute rooms on Tuesday will even surpass the former like event in its attendance. This is the second of a series and thus far the ladies have taken advantage of the hospitality of the members of the Y. M. C. I. for the latter young men enjoy quite a reputation locally as capable hosts. On every occasion when the organization has entertained, those who were fortunate enough to be guests were royally treated and had nothing but words of appreciation for the very enjoyable evenings which they spent. Jos. Mullin will officiate as floor director at the event of tomorrow night and Edward Carney will be his assistant. The pool tables, bowling alleys and other pleasure resources will be wide open to the guests of the evening and no pains or expense will be spared to provide a pleasant evening for all who attend. The dancing, the music for which will be furnished by a popular local orchestra, will form no small feature of the entertainment.

Another interesting event which the energetic association has arranged is a Thanksgiving eve social. President James Gilligan has been elected general manager and James F. Flannagan will act as his assistant. The floor director will be Paul Clark and the assistant floor director, James Cooney. George F. O'Meara has been elected treasurer. This social will be one of the biggest events which the club will hold this season and in the past it has always enjoyed marked success.

At yesterday's meeting of the institute, the Thanksgiving bowling committee reported and they have arranged a novel event to take place on that holiday. There will be a bowling tournament for all the members and to insure an equal chance for success to all, those who are less proficient on the alleys than the others will be given a handicap of a number of pins, which will place them on an equal footing with the experts of which there are many among the members. On the pool tables a like tournament will be contested and for both events there will be cash prizes. The nature of these contests as may be easily seen, involves complicated arrangements and require considerable work on the part of the committee to make them enjoyable as well as successful. They will furnish a fitting entertainment for the Thanksgiving holiday, and a good attendance of the young men is urged.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION

Of the A. F. of L. Resumed Today

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 18.—After a three days' recess the American Federation of Labor resumed its annual convention today with the prospects of an exciting week ahead when the reports of the various committees will be taken up. The fight of the radical wing of the convention on the socialist question may be brought to an issue on the floor during the week and is expected to provoke heated debate. Several cities are making vigorous attempts to capture the 1913 convention of the federation. Seattle, Washington, is said to have the best chance.

SENATORS ARE GUILTY

Were Convicted of Accepting Bribes

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—It was officially announced here last night that the circuit court of Cuyahoga county by a unanimous decision had rendered a verdict of guilty in the cases of State Senators Isaac Huffman of Oxford and Laforest Andrew of Ironton, charged with accepting bribes at the last session of the legislature. Senator Huffman had been previously sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and Senator Andrews to nine months. Attorneys for the accused senators declare that they will take the case to the supreme court.

THE MATHEWS

Held Well Attended Meeting in Their Rooms Yesterday—Arrangements for Song Revue

A well attended meeting of the Mathews was held in the institute rooms in Dutton street yesterday morning. President James J. Gallagher presided and much important business was transacted. The committee in charge of the song revue to be given by the Bachelor Girls in Associate hall, under the auspices of the society, reported that everything was in readiness for the affair. The ticket committee announced that a large number of the admission cards had been disposed of and all expect a large attendance.

In the afternoon the girls held their final rehearsal in the hall with the members of the society as an audience and they all enjoyed the entertainment and report that the show will be the best ever presented by the popular organization.

COOK A TOO ARDENT LOVER

As a Result He Was Landed in a Cell in Market Street Building

The attendance in police court was not as large this morning as it generally is on a Monday, but the number of privileged characters who were seated in the dock paid up for the small attendance in the gallery. The usual Saturday night fights which generally have their sequel in court on Monday morning were not in evidence and the unfortunate ones who fell into the clutch of the law were all victims of alcoholic beverages.

There was quite a number of old-timers on the list and Judge Enright disposed of their cases in a very short time. One of them, John O'Brien, was sent to the state farm.

Walter F. Cook, a young man who makes his home in this city, and who it seems is in love with a Tewksbury young woman, but for some reason or other cannot charm the object of his affections, probably on account of the intended father-in-law, recently became addicted to drink and when in an intoxicated condition, visited the premises of his sweetheart in Tewksbury, but inasmuch as his presence was not wanted there, the result was a row, and the young man landed in the Market street building.

Cook was arrested last night after being escorted to this city by Henry Leith, a neighbor of Albert G. Dana, the latter father of the girl whom Cook classed as his best girl. According to Dana's story, Cook got "full" and when in that condition he went to the Dana home in, Tewksbury and annoyed the family by making noise about the premises. He was told several times to keep away from the place, but he never paid attention to the warnings. "Two weeks ago," said Mr. Dana, "Cook opened the blinds and broke a number of windows in my house, and when I remonstrated with him, he threatened to kill me. Henry Leith corroborated in part the testimony of Dana and said last night he was called to the latter's house at 11.30 o'clock. "Cook was there," continued the witness, "and when I drew near he struck me. I then escorted him to the city and turned him over to a police officer. Cook when called to the witness stand denied striking Leith and also the charge of breaking windows. He admitted being in love with the girl, but said he would keep away from the place. The court found him guilty and inasmuch as he has a previous record, sentenced him to five months in jail. He entered an appeal and was bound over in the sum of $200 for the superior court.

A burst of laughter broke out in the court room this morning, when a Polander, neatly dressed in a fine suit of green, responded to the name of Joseph Sullivan. It was with considerable difficulty that the defendant was able to plead guilty as his knowledge of the English language is very limited. As this was this first appearance he was assessed $2, no extra charge being made for the name.

Sunday Drunks

John J. Osborne was arrested in a room in the Merrimack Corporation yesterday and just because he was drunk he was fined $5. Thomas Perry, who also indulged too freely yesterday, was assessed the same amount.

Joseph Lamontagne had a very narrow escape from being sent to the state farm for a part of the winter and his escape is due to his wife who told the court she is sick and not able to earn a living for herself and children. It seems that Lamontague has been in the care of the probation officer on several occasions, but the latter says it is of no use, the man is so much addicted to rum that he cannot and will not stop drinking unless he is given a well earned rest at a place where the thirst is quenched with good old reliable well water. When Lamontagne heard this report, which was not too favorable, he asked the court if he would listen to his wife and the favor was granted. After hearing her story Judge Enright told Lamontagne he would give him another chance to make good and also warned him if he did not let rum alone he would send him to the state farm. He then imposed a sentence to Bridgewater and suspended the same and placed the defendant in the care of the probation officer for a term of six months.

Thomas F. Murray was sent to the state farm as were also John Nugent and Daniel Casey. Frank Charles was given a suspended sentence of five months in jail, while the following second offenders were fined $5 each: Michael J. Egan, Michael Doherty, Matthew Garrigan and Fred Totten. Three first offenders were fined $2 each, while four others were released by the probation officer.

NEWS OF CHELMSFORD

Notes From Every Part of the Town

"The Moral Equivalent of War" was the subject of the morning sermon at the Central Congregational church yesterday, of which Rev. Earle Allan Roadman is pastor. A special feature was the singing by a choir of nine boys of the parish, consisting of Edward Bailey, William Burg, Henry Burg, Clifford Blaisdell, Gerald Kennedy, Ralph Boyd, Winthrop Stuart, William Scoble and Donald Adams. Miss Small of Lowell was the leader of the choir. During the services Miss Small sang a solo, "Abide With Me." Mr. Roadman has organized an order to be called "The Knights of King Arthur," each member to represent one of King Arthur's knights and at each meeting one knight will be discussed and studied. Rev. Mr. Roadman bears the title Sir Percival.

The other sermons preached yesterday were as follows: Central Unitarian, pastor Rev. L. L. Green. Subject at morning service: "Our Country's Debt to Christ." Evening services, "Units in Making Our Country God's Country."

All Saints' church, pastor, Rev. Wilson Waters; subject in morning, "The Good Shepherd and the Door."

The game between the Burnsides of Lowell and the Indians of Chelmsford, played Saturday afternoon in the rear of the Holt farm on the Indians' new football field was won by the Burnsides, the score being 24 to 9. The second period ended with a touchdown for the Indians made by F. Diall and at the end of the third period the Indians kicked the ball over the goal, while the Burnsides got a touchdown. The fourth period gave the Burnsides another goal. Exceptionally good rushing was made by C. Douglas and exceptionally good tackling by J. Hollis. Although Small, Hollis is one of the team's fastest men and best tacklers.

Mrs. Fred Park of the South village has returned from Ayer, where she went to celebrate with her daughter and son, Charlotte and Philip, the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Hall, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Bixby.

Miss Alma Harris spent Sunday at her home in the Centre.

Mr. Earle Lovely, who departed from this town a few weeks ago for Virginia, has left his friends there and continued to Texas, where he will remain through the winter months. Mr. Lovely, who since his school days has traveled almost constantly has seen a large portion of the United States.

The teacher and the pupils of the ninth grade gladly welcomed to their class room Annie Mullin, a former Chelmsford resident who has for the past few years been living in Lowell but now is to live with her brother James at the farm of Mr. Howard Swift. She is one of the youngest pupils in the ninth grade, having received a double promotion while in Lowell through hard studying.

The Chelmsford schools will close the 28th of November, Thanksgiving day, and will reopen Dec. 2nd.

Two days after the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fay, accompanied by Mr. William Grover, a postal was received from Mrs. Fay, stating that in a few short minutes they would steam away from New York on their way to the land of sunshine and flowers, Cuba.

Miss Florence Kennedy of South Chelmsford visited her parents Saturday in honor of her father's birthday. Mr. Fred Kennedy was the recipient of many gifts.

Mr. Charles Mullin, a former resident of Chelmsford, now residing at Lowell, spent Sunday with his sister and brother James, who lives on the farm of Mr. Howard Swift.

Mrs. Jennie Marcombs entertained the Ladies' auxiliary of the Boy Scouts at her home Wednesday.

The next meeting of the Dux Christus will be held in the vestry of the Second Congregational church Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The afternoon's speech will be made by Miss Lee who will talk on "Simple Home Remedies." Mrs. C. H. Crowell will discuss timely topics and Mrs. William C. H. Moe will preside. The musical program is to be in charge of Mrs. Geo. H. Ripley.

The residence of Mr. Edwin Swain on Gay street is undergoing extensive improvements. Three large chambers are to be added to his house.

A new coat of paint has improved the appearance of the residence of Mr. Henry Woods on Middlesex street.

Mr. Philip Vassellin, who is confined to the Lowell General hospital on account of illness, is resting comfortably.

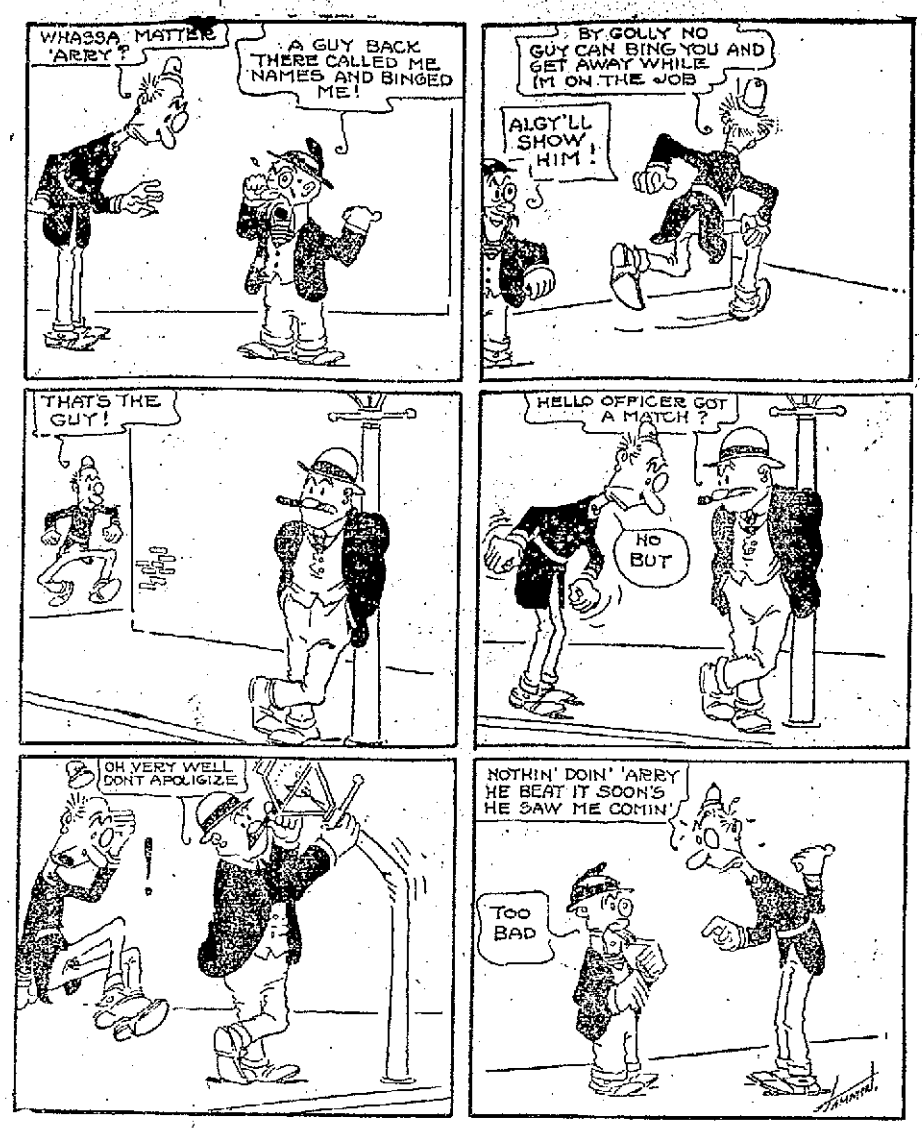

The North Chelmsford Boy Scouts will start holding first-aid-to-the-injured meetings next month at their headquarters. The instructions in the international red cross course will be given by Dr. F. E. Varney, the local physician.

Arrangements are being made by Mr. Alfred Freeze, electrician, to instruct the members of the Boy Scouts in wireless telegraphy; also Mr. Arthur Trubey, principal of the North Chelmsford high and grammar schools, is to give a course in manual training at the headquarters. Scoutmaster Jas. Kiberd had charge of a party of scouts who visited an ocean liner and warships in Boston harbor Saturday. The scouts also made a trip to the immigration department.

The Ladies' Aid will meet Thursday at the Second Congregational church.

Unknown Vessel Signals for Help

CHATHAM, Nov. 18.—An unknown three masted schooner was ashore off Nauset at dawn today signalling for help. She reported that she was leaking and had lost several sails. The Nauset lifesaving crew boarded her and the vessel, which was apparently loaded with coal from some southern port, headed back toward Nantucket shoals. The revenue cutter Acushnet was notified and was expected to reach the schooner during the day.

Miss Anna W. Devereaux, the former supervisor of kindergarten work in this city, will commence her work at Wellesley next Monday. Miss Devereaux's work there will be practically the same as it has been here. The kindergarten over which she will have supervision will be opened Tuesday at the Noluiden club. She has selected as her assistant Miss Linda Chisholm of Marblehead, one of her former pupils, who received her training at the Lowell Normal school. The work of the training class at the Normal school there will be commenced just as soon as it is convenient after the opening of the kindergartens, so that all of the students from the college department of education may get as much experience as possible by actual observation of the kindergarten work.

Rev. W. T. Sumner Ill

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—The condition of the Very Rev. Walter T. Sumner, dean of the cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul, Chicago, who is ill at a Boston hospital, was improved today. The surgeons say that Dean Sumner apparently has appendicitis, but no operation will be performed at this time. The dean will remain at the hosital for ten days or two weeks and rest thoroughly before returning to Chicago.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

Rev. Fr. Schofield officiated at both masses at St. John's church, North Chelmsford, yesterday and after making the customary weekly announcements, he spoke on matters of general interest and also read a letter from Cardinal O'Connell.

At the Second Congregational church Rev. Charles L. Fowler replaced Rev. William C. H. Moe. The topic of the sermon at the morning service was "What Think Ye of Christ?", while at the evening service appropriate selections were rendered by the choir.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House

Sousa, the world's renowned musician and his band were in this city yesterday and they rendered a most pleasing program before a fair sized audience at the Opera House. The program called for nine numbers, but before the musicians could retire from the stage, ten encores had been rendered.

The audience could have been larger, but it seems that the lovers of good music are too busy on Sunday to attend, but however, those present greatly enjoyed the talent displayed by the musicians and the latter were loudly applauded for their work, for the audience was very appreciative and voiced their feelings by the many encores they called for.

FRECKLES

Story plays—those which have been adapted from some popular novel—have been among the most interesting productions the stage has had. Among the successful producers of book plays in America is A. G. Delamater, whose "Quo Vadis" and "Beverly of Graustark" are well remembered by hundreds at theatregoers. Both were most interesting plays and clean ones. Theatre-goers will be pleased to know that he has arranged to produce Gene Stratton-Porter's delightful nature play, "Freckles," which will be seen at the Opera House tonight for three nights and a matinee.

When it is considered "Freckles" was a leader of all best sellers—there have been over a million readers of the first story of this remarkable woman who has lived her life in the Limberlost Swamp country of Indiana,—it will be understood that to secure the playing rights was no small problem. It was Delamater's record for clean plays and his reputation in producing in the most complete and exhaustive manner, everything he undertook, that secured for him these rights over many competitors, among them the most prominent in America.

THE QUESTION

In that fascinating new play, "The Question," which this city is to see for the first time at the Lowell Opera House on Saturday, matinee and night, Nov. 23, theatre-goers are brought face to face with a condition which has of late years become an insidiously threatening problem in the social structure. Forrest Halsey wrote the story which Sherman Dix has made the play. Magazine readers are well acquainted with the keen incisiveness of Mr. Halsey's diction.

P. PAUL-MARCEL

The sale of seats for the engagement at the Opera House next Friday night of P. Paul-Marcel and his excellent company, go on sale at the box office tomorrow morning.

WARD AND VOKES

Ward and Vokes, the well known creators of humorous disturbances, will be seen at the Opera House Thursday, Nov. 21, in their musical comedy success, "A Run on the Bank." This entertainment is said to go with a snap, introducing a large chorus of good-looking girls and a number of tuneful songs. An entirely new production has been made for this show.

One of the features of the performance will be Miss Lucy Daly with her effervescent fun with the Lucy laughs and songs through the major part of the show. "A Run on the Bank" has a safe foundation for a lot of fun in its conception of the Perez and Harold characters, and with this fruitful source for a working basis, Ward and Vokes will be seen to their best advantage.

Keith's

The act superb, Conroy's diving models, will surely draw many thousands of persons to the B. F. Keith theatre, this week. The act is one without a peer in the world today, inasmuch as it places as much stress on the scenic embellishments as upon the glories of the well developed human figure. Carl Statzer & Co. have been engaged to give that whimsical affair called "Babies a la Carte," and Harry Breen, the daffydillist, will be present with a bundle of new near-poems and sayings. Breen is one of the funniest men in public today. Bradlee & Martin in "At the Movies," have a distinctly clever little satire on the prevailing craze of the times, and Ross and Lane are singers and talkers in a pleasing medium. Jenkins and Covert offer a bright act, and Jerome and Lewis, the fashion plates, and Nehar and Kappel, roller skaters, complete the big bill. Good seats for all performances during the week may be secured in advance. Phone 28.

The Playhouse

Charles Klein's wonderful drama, "The Third Degree," which is to be given by The Drama Players at The Playhouse (formerly the Hathaway theatre), this week, should prove one of the strongest attractions produced at this popular theatre since the formal opening of the season. The piece is one of Klein's best efforts and ranks with the most successful plays of modern productions. The fact that it ran 400 nights at the Hudson theatre, New York city, should be sufficiently assuring of its real worth. Miss Jackson and Miss Young will appear in roles that will give them greater opportunity than ever before to show their artistic accomplishments, while Mr. Smythe and the other male members of the cast will appear to advantage. Charles Crymble, formerly with the Donald Meek Stock Co., and who has been assistant treasurer of The Playhouse Co. since its opening, will appear in this week's cast. Mr. Crymble has many friends in the city who no doubt will be pleased to learn of his return to the stage. Tonight and Tuesday afternoon photos of Mr. Smythe will be given to all ladies occupying orchestra seats.

Merrimack Square Theatre

For the program at the Merrimack Square theatre this week Manager Carroll has arranged a bill that he as well as his many patrons will no doubt be more than pleased with. It contains variety as well as quality and heading the list are to be the Niblo lectures. The subject for the first three days is Russia, while for Thursday, Friday and Saturday Spain will be the topic. Special Friday evening performance of "The Bull Fight." Among others who will assist in making the program a satisfying one are The Merrymakers in "Just Home from College." The Baseball Players' quartet, stars of the diamond, in song, Harris Adams, singer of real songs, and then of course, the pictures, which always are good. 'Phone 2053.

"CASCARETS" BEST BOWEL CLEANSER

Headache, Sour Stomach, Biliousness Gone by Morning

Furred tongue, bad taste indigestion, sallow skin and miserable headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Here's a Smoke Secret Worth Knowing

Your hot, dry mouth and burning tongue comes from smoking dry, fast burning, granulated tobacco. The only way to take all the bite out of tobacco is to keep all the natural moisture and flavor in the tobacco.

The only way to keep moisture in the tobacco is to compress it into plug form and further protect it from the drying air with a natural leaf wrapper.

If you have been smoking dry, granulated or shredded tobaccos for convenience, you've been smoking tobacco with a flavor as far from the real tobacco flavor as winter hay is from fresh grass.

A WORD TO THE VOTERS

Again it becomes the duty of the voters of Lowell to select municipal officers under the new charter which took effect in January of the present year. The other cities of the country are watching the effect of the change to see whether it has brought an improvement in our city government and if not, to ascertain the reason why. What can we say of the charter thus far?

Has it improved our city government or has it not?

We confess that we cannot see much improvement thus far, yet this is not the fault of the charter but of the people themselves.

Under the charter no political party has control, no political committee dictates nominations, no ward boss controls elections and yet the results are not much, if at all better than the conditions that prevailed under the old charter.

Why is this the case?

Simply, because from one cause or another the voters have not selected the best men available to fill the offices.

They have chosen some men who have mismanaged the city's business, who have proved incompetent by every proper test that can be applied to public officials.

At the primaries tomorrow they will have an opportunity to select men who will give the city better service, who will be more careful of the city's money and who will expend it more fairly and more honestly for the benefit of the public at large.

If as it is alleged, the city's funds are paid out in large amounts to men placed in unnecessary or ornamental positions in lieu of political or other service, it is time the people retired the officials responsible for such extravagance and put others in their places who will spend the appropriations for honest labor rather than for political heelers, bums and loafers.

The solution of the problem of municipal government is simple if the voters only exercise reasonable judgment in the selection of men who can be relied upon to conduct the city's business in every department, not for enriching themselves or their intimate friends and supporters, but wisely and honestly for the benefit of all the people.

Therefore, if any of the officials now seeking re-election have been found incompetent, dishonest or negligent of their public duties, if they have made matters worse instead of better while spending large amounts of the city's money, then it is in order to make a change that will instal able, honest, competent and experienced men in office, men who instead of using their office for the demoralization of the public service, will labor intelligently to promote, improve and elevate that service.

The good judgment, the fairness and intelligence of the voters will be tested in the primaries tomorrow and upon the result will largely depend whether good and efficient men or bad and dishonest men shall fill the prospective vacancies at city hall.

BALKAN WAR SLAUGHTER

It is to be regretted that the negotiations for an armistice in the Balkan war have failed and that the fearful slaughter will, therefore, be continued in all probability until Constantinople is taken by the allies. That end is desirable from the Christian standpoint but the slaughter necessary to attain it will be frightful.

No other war of modern times has been attended with such fearful slaughter as the present war against Turkey. The Balkan allies found their foe unprepared but foolishly conceited; and exhorted by fanatical leaders, the Turks were ready to rush into the cannon's mouth or stand defenseless to be hewn down by the deadly artillery fire. It is estimated that at Kirk-Kilessch and around Adrianople the Turks lost 25,000, Bulgarians 7000, while at Lule Burgas and in succeeding retreats the Turks lost 40,000, the Bulgarians 25,000. In subsequent battles at Kumanova the Turks lost 7000, the Servians 5000, while in a number of other battles with the Bulgarians the Servians, Greeks and Montenegrins, the Turks lost in battle, it is estimated, about 50,000 men, 27,000 of whom, however, were taken as prisoners of war by Greece, the others being slain in battle.

But the actual casualties in battle were not more terrible than the suffering from famine and disease among the army and the refugees who fled before the invading foe expecting to find protection and food, but who finding neither were left to starve and die.

The situation in Turkey today is one of the most appalling that can be imagined despite the stubborn resistance along the forts at Tchatalja. In spite of past atrocities perpetrated by Turkey upon the Christians, her condition today appeals to the Christian world for relief. The Red Cross society is making the best use of the resources at its command but more money and more material assistance are urgently needed.

Should the Bulgarian army enter the Turkish capital it might suffer more from cholera, smallpox and other diseases than from the worse fire of the Turkish forts. The situation calls loudly for remedial measures, and it is to be hoped that the powers of Europe will intervene not only to bring about permanent peace but to check the spread of cholera and smallpox and relieve the famine which is decimating the residents of the Turkish capital at the present hour. Turkey should be driven from Europe but with a minimum loss of life and suffering, not only to her armies but also to the allies who, however, are determined to fight on at all hazards until they plant their flags upon the mosques of Constantinople.

FATALITIES IN COAL MINES

The Bureau of Mines at Washington has issued a pamphlet showing the number of deaths and casualties in the coal mines in the country for the first eight months of 1912. The total number of men killed in the mines during this period was 1453. This is said to be a decrease over the number for the same period of last year although it seems to be unnecessarily large. During the calendar year of 1911 there were 2719 men killed in and about the mines of the United States as compared with 2840 men in 1910. It appears that in 1910 and 1911 there was one death for every 177,000 tons of coal mined. The government bureau of mines seems to take pleasure in announcing a decrease in the number of deaths but there is yet much room for improvement and if the mine inspectors would only insist upon safe methods of work and proper precautions against accidents we believe the death rate could be reduced to less than half what it is at the present time. There is no business in this country in which there are so many fatalities as in coal mining and there is no other country in the world that has nearly so many fatal accidents in its mines in proportion to the work accomplished. What is true of our mines in this respect is equally true of our railroads which have vastly more accidents in proportion to the extent of the traffic than the railroads of Europe. It would appear that the mine operators and the railroad companies care mainly for accumulating dividends and as a result their employes are left without proper protection and hence there is a greater percentage of fatalities than in the same lines of business in any other country of the world.

ANOTHER LAWRENCE PARADE

The city of Lawrence has formed an association to boom the city and support the city government in measures calculated to promote prosperity, peace and order among the people. It has been arranged to have another great parade on Thanksgiving day, this to be another demonstration against the I. W. W. and for industrial peace.

It is likely that at that time the Ettor trial will have been finished and the outcome known so that the effect upon the people whether favorable or otherwise will be felt before Thanksgiving. It is not expected that the I. W. W. leaders will make their headquarters in Lawrence, even though they get out of the meshes of the law. There is certainly a determination in Lawrence not to tolerate any further abuse or disturbance from the I. W. W. and if the leaders attempt to create any disorder the result may be very serious. It is expected, however, that the cool heads who are directing the affairs of government in Lawrence will stand firmly for strict observance of the law not only by the I. W. W. but by those who despise that organization and wish to see it banished from the city.

COMPOSITION LESSONS

It is a mistake to try to teach history and English composition in the same lesson. When pupils get an historical subject on which to write they devote their time to looking up the facts and then they copy the language from books. If given simple topics on which they will have to draw upon their own knowledge or upon their imagination, they must write an original story that will be entirely their own. Such an exercise will be worth a score of the historical kind where the ideas, the facts and the construction are found ready made.

TIME TO COOL OFF

King George did a wise thing in advising the speaker to put off any further sitting of parliament until the belligerents have time to reflect sufficiently upon their foolishness. The Ulster men who threatened to use bullets have come down to use books and papers as missiles aimed at the head of Premier Asquith. They should equip themselves with bean blowers with which they could besiege the opposition. These noisy advocates of old time tyrannies are disgracing themselves and their country in the eyes of the world.

RUBBISH ON STREETS

Some of the streets of this city are so badly littered with rubbish that they are a menace to motorists. All kinds of rubbish, including pieces of wood, ropes, nails, glass and other materials are scattered about on the streets in question. If the street department does not pay proper attention to these public thoroughfares then the abutters should be required to keep them reasonably clean. Some of the street sweepers who have hard work to keep busy on clean streets should be sent for a part of their time to the streets that need their services.

THE GRAND TRUNK

The New England states are greatly disappointed at the sudden change in the plans of the Grand Trunk railroad in its decision not to construct a new line to Boston. It will have a joint traffic arrangement with the New York, New Haven & Hartford and thus the chance of competition will be eliminated. The people are already protesting against the prospective monopoly and every legislature in New England will probably act upon the matter after the first of January.

The Hosfords! Do you remember this well known social organization of a decade ago? Recollections of some of their "doings" came to me the other day when I happened to come across a scrap book with two or three accounts of some of the "times" in which those boys used to indulge. I could not help but laugh when I recalled the famous basketball game between teams captained by John Sligo and Mike Finucan. Since then I have seen many an exhibition of this sport, but never have I been present where such a battle was put up as that between the Sligoites and the Finucans. The celebrated Mike was as graceful a dancer as he was a clever ball player, could cake-walk with any man in the country, and last but not least was the idol of the ladies at all the dances which the Hosfords conducted. Little Johnny Curry, too, was then at the height of his social career and was in great demand at all these entertainments and dances. Street parades, however, were the boys' strong suit. Those were the days when from one end of the country to the other were to be found the "Horribles." And it is safe to say that the Hosfords succeeded in getting together the most grotesque aggregation of "horribles" that the country has ever seen. After cleaning up everything in the prize line around Lowell they invaded Boston and other surrounding cities where, pitted against the cream of the "horribles" of those places, they outhorribled their rivals to a standstill and brought many a side of bacon to the Spindle City. Huskin' bees were another form of amusement which the Hosfords made popular in Lowell. At these "times" everybody appeared in farm costume, everybody danced to the tune of country music, and everybody attempted to imitate the speech and manners of farm folks. That they were unsuccessful in this is of course taken for granted, but that they were successful in making the huskin' bees the most enjoyable kind of entertainment for several seasons there can be no doubt. Many such affairs were given under the direction of the Hosfords and so lively were they that to this day they are remembered with pleasure by those who enjoyed tripping the "light fantastic" a dozen years ago. Being so popular an organization it followed that its finances were always in the best of condition, so once a year or so the members used to gather about the board at one or another of the hotels and enjoy a banquet all by themselves. These were always run off in first class style, were the occasions of delightful after-dinner speeches, clever sallies of wit, and jolly anecdotes, and were looked upon by the boys as milestones in the social events of the season. The Hosfords are now scattered and gone, but where a group of their members now chance to meet it is safe to say that they join in the popular saying, "Those were the happy days."

IN NOVEMBER

Now we hear the dropping drip
Of the chill November rain,
As we watch the dripping drops
Flashing on the window pane.
Leaden skies hang dark and low,
And the trees are gaunt and bare,
And we shiver in the dank,
Murky moisture of the air.

But there's light beyond the clouds:
There are joyous times ahead,
When the bright sky will be blue,
And the sunsets will be red.
Now the rain is beating down,
And the skies are dull and gray,
But in just a little while
It will be Thanksgiving Day!

REV. C. ARTHUR LINCOLN

Preached First Sermon at Kirk St. Church

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln preached his first sermon as pastor of the Kirk street church yesterday morning, his subject being "Faith, the Creator of Fact." Rev. Mr. Lincoln stated that faith is accepted unreservedly by the heart and that having once been accepted it appeals to the mind and that it is not primarily a matter of reason.

"We will consider three phases of faith." We will touch upon the field on which creative faith operates, the nature of that faith and the methods through which we may secure results from it.

"Faith operates on the objective nature of man. Once accepted it produces many changes. It is capable of erasing the lines of worry and of care and in some instances of the lines of dissipation. It brings new life into an old body.

"And faith accepted by one has its effects upon the lives of other men. Many a man deep in sin has been affected by the faith of a good woman. Faith creates faith, and wherever it goes there is gladness. Not long ago I heard a young man preaching the power of reason over all things. I would not decry reason. The Christian religion is the most reasonable religion in the world. It was not any process of reasoning which made the disciples call Jesus the Son of God. Their love for this man, Jesus, came from the heart first of all, and after the heart's outburst of faith came the appeal to their heads, and then later men began establishing systems of theology.

"We believe because we wish to believe. Otherwise there is nothing to be said in defense of Jesus. We believe that the better things are the more eternal ones.

"You believe that God is good. You believe that he has the power to fulfill every one of your great desires. But are you permitting him to do this? When your heart goes up in prayer do you feel a little doubt that grips you and seems to throw a wet blanket on your faith? If you do, then your faith is not the perfect faith, you have not surrendered yourself to that condition of heart which allows you to believe in the efficacy of your petition to the Heavenly Father.

"How is it with men who are good, moral men but who are not Christians? Is there not distrust about the things of life, distrust of man present in their thoughts and actions?

"I would not say that a man who is a good, moral man, and who is not a Christian is in absolute darkness, but is it not true that he has not come fully into the light?"

The preacher referred to the late John Watson's story, "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," as an example of faith and hope succeeding fear. He spoke of Flora Campbell, the daughter of the ruggest Lahlan Campbell, going to London and hiding herself away there, nursing the thought of her shame, and fearing to go to her father's home. She had not the hope to send her back to his arms. And then, as if in a dream, she heard the preaching of the minister who spoke of the shepherd missing his lost sheep, and she took counsel for fear, not of hope, and hid herself on a train that was headed homewards. Arriving at night, she crossed the moor, the dogs heard her coming and licked her hands with their warm, kind tongues. And then that stern father, whose heart was so nearly broken, came to the door, clasped her in his arms and gave her the first kiss since she had been a child. Hope then succeeded the fear.

"Hope and love make possible the creation of a new life in men," said the preacher. "Why not take counsel of that hope and have quiet peace in life? We should not put it all on the Lord of life, and expect the cure. Every man must do his share, must come in faith. Faith makes possible every one of the great activities of life, not only the activities of this earth, but the spiritual activities. Briefly, the great English author, has said that the greatest spectacle in the world is that of faith working on a personality.

"We are on the eve of a mighty revival of faith, the synthesis of all life, the explanation of all history, the dawn of an age devoted to humanity.

"In this city are great activities going on, great material changes, but greater than these is the power of faith in this community. Though men develop great inventions, put together vast combinations, all that is truly worth while depends on that faith we exercise on each other and in each other."

Calvary Baptist Church

"Our Country, God's Country," was the subject of a very fine sermon given at the Calvary Baptist church yesterday by Rev. Asa Reed Dills.

The following is a brief account of Rev. Mr. Dills' sermon: He thought that a good proof of the fact of God's ruling the country was shown by the recent happenings in New York city and by the presidential election. He said that for many years he had been a staunch reporter of the republican party but today he thanked God that he had been defeated as the republican party had not been doing right.

He felt that our material wealth in crops and business prosperity was due to God and it was an opportunity given especially for missionary work. He believed that this country is the one chosen by God to evangelize the world. This he claimed could easily be seen as God made this country and put the best of the Anglo-Saxon race into it and so when we see the great evils of today we may be certain that God's judgment will fall upon them if not immediately within the course of a short time.

The services of the day began "Home Mission Week." Mrs. A. B. Upham was the speaker of the evening service. She described in a very interesting talk the work being done by the missionaries among the Cherokee Indians.

Services are to be held Tuesday and Thursday evening. Thursday evening Rev. F. W. Padleford is to give a sterl-opticon lecture on "Alien or American," a lecture which clearly tells just what the immigration of today means to this country.

SCHOOL FARMING

In Alaska Has Proved to Be a Very Successful Operation, According to U. S. Bureau of Education

The school farm movement has penetrated Alaska. From the school at Klukwan, in southern Alaska, comes a basket of potatoes, turnips, carrots and other vegetables consigned to the United States bureau of education. Several of the products are of a size and weight that would be remarkable in a far more propitious climate than that of Alaska.

The school at Klukwan is one of 81 public schools for natives maintained by the bureau of education in Alaska. In a number of these, gardening is carried on with distinct profit to the school and the community. The teacher from Shungnak, within the Arctic circle, reports that he supervised the making of 17 native gardens and four large school gardens. He instructed the school children and adults in soaking seed, planting, cutting potato eyes, spading, hoeing, raking, thinning, weeding, transplanting, watering—in fact, in all the operations necessary for successful gardening. One-third of an acre he set apart as a model garden; on this he experimented with different products and eventually obtained a good supply of vegetables for use in cooking classes. Radishes, turnips, peas, rutabagas, carrots, beets, cabbages, potatoes, lettuce, kohl-rabi, parsnips, and a few other vegetables did well in this Arctic garden; onions, beans and cucumbers were unsuccessful.

At Eagle, Fort Yukon, Unalaska, and Klawock similar results in gardening are reported. In Unalaska the school farm at first contained only a few plats of rye and wheat, and some kitchen vegetables, but this year a more ambitious experiment was made. The children not only worked a school garden in which each had a patch of his own, but also cultivated a larger farm at some distance from the school.

Although the season is short in these Alaska settlements, the vegetables often attain good growth. In Klukwan the temperature ranges from 81 in summer to 27 below zero in winter. At Klawock the children were able to begin preparing their ground by the first of April, and elsewhere many of the vegetables were in by May.

The work in school gardening illustrates the general principle on which the government is working in the schools of Alaska—that education shall be something more than mere schooling; that it shall be preparation for the life the natives have to lead. Sewing, cooking, and carpentry are prominent subjects in the schools. "The education of the natives of Alaska," says a recent report of the bureau of education, "is conceived as meaning their advancement in civilization. Superintendents, teachers, physicians, and nurses must regard themselves as social workers striving to elevate the native races intellectually, morally and physically."

FUNERAL OF JOHN GRADY

Lowell Boy Who Was Killed Buried Today

Services Were Largely Attended—Interment Took Place in the New Mt. Calvary Cemetery, Boston

The funeral of John W. Grady, the Lowell boy who was killed last Monday morning as a result of being electrocuted while at work on a telephone pole in Messalon, Ohio, took place this morning from the home of his father, William Grady, 22 Maple street, and it was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends. The cortege left the house of mourning at 8.30 o'clock and wended its way to the Sacred Heart church, where at 8.45 o'clock a requiem high mass was sung by Rev. James McDermott, O. M. I. The choir under the direction of John J. Kelly, rendered the Gregorian funeral mass. The sanctuary choir sustained the solos. The church was well filled with friends and neighbors of the bereaved family, and the profusion of floral offerings in evidence testified to the high esteem in which deceased was held. Deceased, while a young man of but 20 years of age, had made remarkable progress in this world. He left Lowell several years ago, and went to Somerville, where he became an expert lineman. Only a few weeks ago he arrived in Messalon, Ohio, where he immediately secured employment at his chosen work. Last Monday morning, while at his work he came in contact with a live wire and fell to the ground. His body arrived in Lowell Saturday.

After leaving the church this morning the cortege proceeded to the Middlesex street station and the body, with the members of the family and other mourners boarded the 9.45 train for Boston, where interment took place in the New Mt. Calvary cemetery.

The bearers were John James Dillon, John McGlinchy, James Blackburn, James Broderick, William Allen and William H. Sullivan. The funeral was in charge of Edward Heelon, undertaker.

END LIVER TROUBLE WITHOUT CALOMEL

Untrustworthy Drug, Thought to Loosen the Teeth, Now Made Absolutely Unnecessary

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are the mildest but surest laxative known, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. Dr. Edwards has been calomel's uncompromising foe. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets, a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil. These pleasant, harmless little tablets do all the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel at all, but to let Olive Tablets take their place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" the clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits.

At 10c and 25c a box. "Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

CHELMSFORD

The Burnside foothall aggregation of Lowell defeated the Chelmsford Indians Saturday afternoon by a score of 21 to 0. The Chelmsford eleven was badly handicapped and the visitors had a much heavier team.

A food sale managed by the women of the parish was held at All Saints guild room on Saturday afternoon and was very successful. The sale opened at 3 o'clock and in a very short order the home made food and other articles were disposed of.

Charles F. Morse, I. H. Knight, F. H. Tuttle and George M. Wright will start Monday on a hunting trip for deer through different parts of the state, traveling in Mr. Wright's automobile. The party plans to camp out wherever night may find them, providing the condition of the weather will permit, and they are carrying a full equipment for cooking, sleeping, etc.

PAID $579 FOR IDLE POTIONS

Young Girl Had Fortune Teller Arrested When Harvest Moon Failed to Restore Lover

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Love powders and other magical charms cost Mary Jarrin over $600, or practically all her life's savings as a servant girl, before she realized they were powerless to win back a swain who had jilted her.

She told this story to a magistrate in police court yesterday, when Jane Grindle was arraigned as an alleged fortune teller and accused of grand larceny. The girl said she went to the woman with her troubles, told her how she was engaged to be married, quarreled with her sweetheart and how he disappeared.

The fortune teller prescribed a love powder. The girl had $75 saved then and thought the powder cheap at that But after wearing it for months next to her heart as prescribed she failed to learn anything of the lost lover.

Every little while she would return disconsolate to the fortune teller who suggested further magical charms and charged her more money. In all the girl said she had paid $579 to the woman, the sum representing the entire savings of her life. As a last resort the seeress advised the girl to pin her faith on the harvest moon. When this waxed and waned, but the love did not come, the girl reported her troubles to the police.

The accused woman was held in $1600 bail.

MISUSE OF THE MAILS ALLEGED

Most Important Case Called for Trial in the United States District Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The federal government called for trial in the United States district court here today what it considers one of its most important cases growing out of alleged misuse of the mails. It involves the integrity of the so-called Hawthorne group of mining stocks and brings to the bar as defendants men of national reputation. They are five in number: Julian Hawthorne, son of the novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne; Josiah Quincy, former mayor of Boston and assistant secretary of state in the Cleveland administration; Albert Freeman, a promoter; Dr. W. J. Norton, a nerve specialist, and John McKinnon, secretary-treasurer of the Hawthorne companies. All are engaged, directly or indirectly, in the sale of stock in the Hawthorne Silver & Iron Mines Co. and allied concerns and were indicted in New York last January for alleged use of the mails to defraud.

The action of the government is based on the alleged misrepresentation and false statements contained in the literature sent through the mails concerning mines of the Continental syndicate located near the Cobalt district in Canada. These mines were described as the Temagami Cobalt mines, limited, the Elk lake Cobalt mines, the Montreal Cobalt mines, the Hawthorne Silver & Iron mines, and the Julian Hawthorne Co. The government alleges that these mines are outside of the silver producing belt at Cobalt and that this fact was suppressed in the circulars and letters sent out. Julian Hawthorne, it is alleged, was selected for his ability to write glowing descriptions and because his name on the prospectus and together with that of Josiah Quincy would inspire confidence among investors.

GIBSON ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Lawyer is Accused of Having Caused Death of His Client, Mrs. Rosa M. Szabo

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 18.—One hundred and ninety talesmen, most of them farmers, crowded into the little courtroom here today for the trial of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, charged with first degree murder in causing the death of his client, Mrs. Rosa Menzchik Szabo. The attorneys hoped to fill the jurybox today and the prosecution thought that it might be ready to rest its case by Thursday.

Dist. Atty. Rogers will endeavor to prove that Mrs. Szabo's death while boating with Gibson in Greenwood lake July 16, last was due not to drowning but to strangulation and that Gibson hurled her from the rowboat which they occupied, into the water, grappled with her and choked her to death.

Dr. Otto Schultze of New York, the coroner's physician who performed the autopsy, testified at Gibson's examination that Mrs. Szabo died of strangulation by "compression from without."

The defense holds that Mrs. Szabo died of drowning and that her death was accidental. Gibson had not decided this forenoon whether he would take the stand.

As a motive for the alleged murder the state will seek to prove that Gibson coveted his client's $10,000 estate, of which under a will drawn by him for Mrs. Szabo he was named as executor. Mr. Rogers will attempt to show that $7100 of this estate, partially administered by Gibson prior to his arrest, is missing. Jacob Singer, of Gibson's counsel, said today that the $7100 was paid to a woman known to Gibson as Mrs. Petronella Menschik, mother of Mrs. Szabo, and that Gibson had receipts to prove it.

Mrs. Petronella Menschik died in Vienna two years ago. The woman whom Gibson says impersonated her, has vanished.

MATRIMONIAL

A very pretty wedding took place this morning in St. Joseph's church, when Mr. Ernest Bedard, formerly of this city and now of North Cambridge and Miss Marie Louise Roux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roux of 20 White street, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 7 o'clock by Rev. Henri Watelle, O. M. I., pastor. The bride who wore a handsome gown of white satin and the veil of the Notre Dame de Lourdes sodality, was given away by her father. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridegroom was escorted to the altar by his father, Mr. Pierre Bedard of this city. During the mass appropriate hymns were rendered by the Notre Dame de Lourdes sodality choir of which the bride was a member. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting couple. The couple left on the 10.45 o'clock train for Sherbrooke, Que., where they will spend their honeymoon. They will return to this city on Nov. 27, at which time a reception will be tendered them at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Bedard, who were the recipients of many useful gifts, will make their home in North Cambridge.

BEDARD—PLANTE

Mr. Alfred Bedard and Miss Marie Louise Plante were married this morning, the ceremony being performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock in St. Joseph's church, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Charles Paquette, O. M. I. The young couple were attended by Messrs. Pierre Bedard and Etienne Plante. After the mass a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 160 South street.

DAIGNAULT—HUBERT.

Mr. Edouard Daignault and Miss Clara Hubert were married this morning. The ceremony took place at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock in the private chapel of St. Joseph's rectory by Rev. Charles Denizot, O. M. I., D. D. The happy couple were attended by Messrs. Edmond Desaulniers and Octavien Drainville. At the close of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at 182 Riverside street and at 11.30 o'clock the couple left on a brief honeymoon trip.

FOR THE MIKADO

Rehearsals are being held daily for the presentation of the opera, "The Mikado," by the Children of Mary sodality of St. Peter's church, which is to be staged in the Opera House on Wednesday, December 11. A great deal of interested ahs been manifested in this event and as a result of the earnest efforts which are being made in behalf of the production it should prove a marked success. The best talent in the parish will take part in this and not until one considers what a number of well known singers it includes, will the significance of this statement be realized.

The good results of the visit and sermon of Rev. Doctor McGlinchey, diocesan director, a short time ago when he addressed the members of the congregation in regard to the Catholic mission work of foreign climes, are becoming manifest. A general mass meeting of the parishioners has been announced to take place on next Thursday evening when some definite steps will be taken in regard to aiding and promoting the foreign missionary work. The interest of the greater number of the members of St. Peter's parish was attracted to this important phase of religious work and it is quite certain that the missionary work will benefit therefrom.

Rev. W. George Mullin celebrated the high mass at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and the sermon of the day was delivered by Father Heffernan.

VISITOR FROM THE WEST

Rev. J. Paille Renewing Acquaintances

HE IS HERE FROM McLEOD, ALBERTA

And Talked Freely on the Conditions and Climate of That Section of the Country

Rev. Joseph Paille, O. M. I., a former Lowell boy, and son of the late Alphonse Paille, now of McLeod, Alberta, Canada, is the guest of the Oblate Fathers of Notre Dame de Lourdes parish. His visit to the east was in order to secure if possible an order of nuns to establish an academy in his parish. Today he is to meet the mother superior of the Sisters of Notre Dame and he feels confident that she will agree and consent to send sisters to Western Canada. During his sojourn in the states Fr. Paille has visited about 20 different communities but so far has not met with success, as no order has any of its members to spare.

Rev. Fr. Paille who received his early education at St. Joseph's college, this city, had been away from Lowell for 20 years. Shortly after he was ordained he was sent in the missions of the west and has remained there ever since. He first preached the gospel in North Battleford, from there going to Prince Albert. Later he went to the Saskatchewan district and three months ago he was transferred to McLeod, Alberta, which is situated about 106 miles south of Calgary. His territory covers about 45 miles and his flock is composed of French and English speaking people, the latter dominating in numbers.

He is pastor of the parish and has one assistant. There is a fine church, a parochial school, and what is now badly needed is an academy and the reverend gentleman hopes to have that established before many moons. In speaking about the climate in McLeod, Fr. Paille said it could not be better. It is especially recommended for the unfortunates suffering from tuberculosis or other incurable diseases. "The climate is dry and we have very little snow," continued Fr. Paille, "and the snow is so scarce that a sleigh or winter wagon of any kind is not known in the district. A snow fall is always followed by what is called the 'Chinook' winds, which is a warm breeze from the Pacific coast, and which melts the snow the minute it is on the ground.

"McLeod is a good railroad centre, for at present there are two roads, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern, and before a year two other roads which are now in process of construction will be finished. The place will then be a division point for railroads."

Fr. Paille claims McLeod is a great place for manufacturing purposes, as there is plenty of coal which is sold very cheap, and also good water service. The country is fine for wheat growing, as well as for the culture of grain and hay, while the soil for vegetable growing cannot be excelled. However, the farmers of that district prefer the raising of wheat, and it is claimed if a New England farmer were to go and settle in that district and go into the vegetable growing business he would make a fortune in no time. The wheat is plentiful as there are generally two crops a year, the fall and spring crops. Fr. Paille would be pleased to give information regarding the country to any one who would wish it, by addressing the letters to Rev. Joseph Paille, O. M. I., McLeod, Alberta.

The visitor will leave this evening for Waltham and from there he will go to New York, where he will board a train for Chicago, later returning to his missions. While in this city he was visited by a large number of his former school mates, who were pleased to renew acquaintances.

POLICE MUST KEEP BUSY

Told to be Watchful at the Polls

Mayor O'Donnell today sent the following letter to the superintendent of police.

Office of the Mayor,

Redmond Welch,
Supt. of Police,

Dear Sir:—

I desire that you instruct all police officers who are to be on duty at the polling booths tomorrow that good order is maintained within the booths at all times; to note and report to you whether or not the precinct officers are in attendance and in the performance of their duties and to make a detailed report to you relative to the general proceedings.

Yours very truly,
James E. O'Donnell, Mayor.

SUSPECTED OF MURDER

Body of Boy Was Found in a Sewer

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Police Chief Gilson of Lackawanna in his search of the murderer of Joseph Josephs, the little Syrian boy of that city, whose dismembered body was found in a sewer Saturday, has narrowed his suspicions on one man whose whereabouts are at present unknown The man sought, according to reports, is an educated technical man who goes all over the east in his work.

Chief Gilson said today that he would go to Rochester this afternoon to examine the man arrested there last night. The funeral of the Josephs boy was held this morning. Mrs. Josephs, mother of the slain boy, is lying in a critical condition and physicians hold out little hope for her recovery.

Mrs. H. W. Blanchard of Wilder street is spending a few days in Waltham.

Mr. F. G. Smith of Chelmsford street has just returned from a trip to New Haven.

ONE DEER FOR EACH HUNTER

The Season in Five Western Counties Opened Today and Will Close Saturday

The open season on deer began at sunrise today in the five western counties of Massachusetts, including Berkshire, Hampden, Hampshire, Franklin and Worcester. Until sunset on Saturday the law permits all licensed hunters to pursue the animals, with the restriction that but one deer is to be killed by any one individual.

Rifles are barred, and the game wardens will also watch for any violation of the law that forbids the use of salt licks or dogs in hunting deer. To overcome the problem of killing deer with a shotgun, manufacturers of shooting equipments have placed a shell on the market that practically converts the shotgun into a rifle. The shell has one single shot the size of a big marble, guaranteed to carry several hundred yards with killing effect.

Those who have been out in the woods during the past week in the counties where deer shooting will be permitted have brought stories that salt licks are in evidence despite the watchfulness of game wardens. A deer's passion for salt is known to the hunter, and there are a number of shooters who make it a point to place a salt lick where deer are plentiful and on the morning of the opening day all he has to do is to sit close by and pot the deer as it comes.

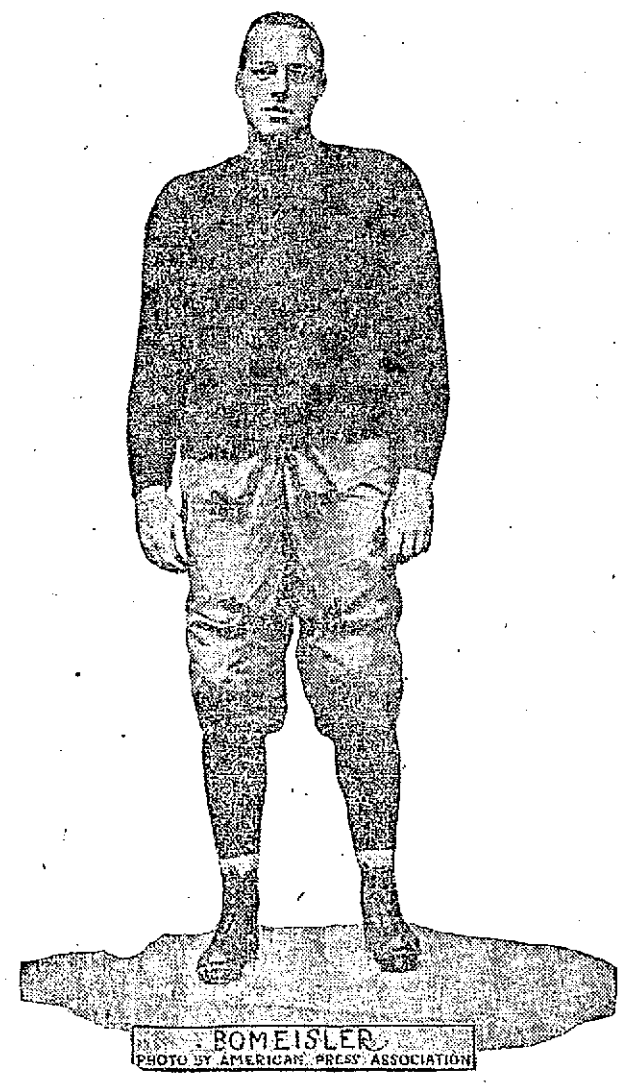

Under the pretense of hunting hare and rabbit other hunters use dogs to run deer. There are all sorts of tricks to land one of the pretty creatures during the week's shooting season. One popular method used by wealthy hunters is to tour the country roads at night in automobiles. Many deer are met on country roads by automobilists, and the glare of auto lamps seems to have a fascination for the animal. A deer will stand spellbound and stupid until an automobile comes within a few yards at night if the auto lamps are especially strong and bright.

Those going into the woods this year for deer are taking extra precautions. They are equipping themselves with red coats and red caps. Hunters are often mistaken for deer and fatalities are frequent where the shooting of deer is permitted. Although few farmers have any sympathy with the deer, because of the damages it is capable of doing in chewing bark off choice fruit trees and destroying gardens, they are spending a very anxious week for fear that over-zealous hunters may shoot carelessly, endangering the lives of their families. One farmer in Worcester county is known to put heavy wooden shutters over his windows during the deer shooting season.

Thousands of men and boys have taken out hunting licenses in this state during the past week. Clerks in the various towns and cities who make out these licenses declare that all records have been broken and that there promises to be more hunters in the woods during this week than ever before in the history of the state.

Deer are plentiful in Massachusetts. The protection that has been given them has multiplied their numbers. It was only last year that the close season was lifted for one week. For over 10 years previous the deer had been protected by law the year round. Over a thousand deer were killed last year during the six days' open season, but even that slaughter has had no effect in cutting down their numbers to any extent.

Douglas Bomeisler, Yale's Star, is King of Hard Luck Players

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—The crown of hard luck king certainly belongs to Douglas Bomeisler, the star Yale end. Injuries kept him out of the majority of games last season, but he recovered in time to make the All American team by spectacular work in the game against Harvard. This season he was still more unfortunate, being laid out in the Holy Cross game and not getting into shape until the Princeton game. Bomeisler is a graduate of the Polytechnic preparatory school of Brooklyn and has played football for several years.

MANY FAMOUS ATHLETES

Are Inclined to Be a Little Superstitious

A great many athletic clubs in holding contests omit the number 13 from their list, as the great majority of athletes will not wear it. There are some, however, who have no fear of it as a hoodoo number.

Alexander Grant some ten years ago Pennsylvania's best distance runner, used to request when he sent in an entry for a race that he be given No 13 to wear. His request was always complied with. Grant once won a national championship on Friday the 13th with a competitor's No. 13 on his back.

Field contestants are much more superstitious than trackmen. Jumpers place sticks, handkerchiefs, shoes, etc., all over the field and move a little faster or slower as the case may be as they come across their own marks, but, as a rule, there are so many articles on the field that the contestant can hardly tell which is his.

Many of the best athletes of the world are superstitious, although few of them are affected by the same thing. Some high jumpers will not make an effort to jump unless there is a handkerchief over the crosspiece; others will not jump if the handkerchief is on the bar. Some athletes will not have their running togs washed while they are training.

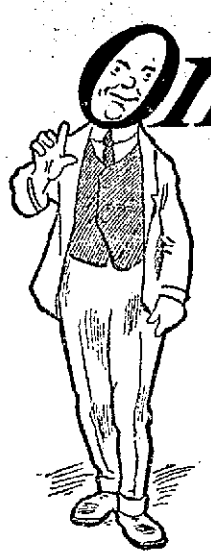

Melvin Sheppard is superstitious about only one thing—the washing of his clothes. He will not have any articles he uses washed while he is in training or running. Only when he retires for a month or so will he have anything cleaned. He says that washing may take his strength away. Sounds ridiculous, but there isn't a chance to clean any of his outfit while he is going well.

THE UNCLES AND AUNTS

And What They Mean to Childhood

A child is certainly unfortunate in the extreme if it does not possess uncles and aunts or does not possess the right kind of uncles and aunts, for those of the wrong kind are worse than none. There are aunts and aunts and uncles and uncles, and children, who are the shrewdest judges of human nature in the world, are quick to realize it. A name may mislead them until an aunt comes along, but half an hour in her company is quite enough to convince them whether she is of the right sort or merely an "auntie" they have to put up with.

In the old days, a name was almost enough—Aunt Letitia meant a dragon, Aunt Letty a dear. Aunt Gwendolin meant a "good-gracious-what-dirty-hands" sort of a person: Aunt Wendy, some one who would tell them stories when they went to bed.

But names have changed, though the characteristics of aunts remain the same. Aunt Bessie, in spite of her name, proves to be the mother of a lot of uncomfortable cousins of whose superiority she is always boasting and whose part she is always taking when they come to the house.

When aunts such as these have come and gone cherished dolls are subjected to a lot of rechristening, and small boys begin to think that aunts are rather an unnecessary invention. When Aunt Katherine pays a visit joy is rampant. They love Aunt Katherine because she is worthy of their affections. They obey her slightest wish, they are anxious to go with her everywhere, the girls struggle desperately to sit on her knee, the boys hug her until she is half choked. Altogether she is an ideal aunt, but the secret of her sway over the juvenile mind is really simplicity itself. She is a woman with a child's heart, that is all. She can look at things from the viewpoint of her nieces and nephews. Her long frocks and smartly coiffured hair are mere accidents of time. She is "nice" because she has not forgotten her own childhood or entirely parted with it.

Uncle Dick

Among uncles her counterpart is Uncle John may be dignified and standoffish; Uncle Henry may be interested only in the conversation of mothers and fathers and turn an unheeding ear to the overtures of the children, but Uncle Dick is the children's chum.

Mothers and fathers may think he has come to see them, but the children know better. They capture him on the doorstep with whoops of triumph, they monopolize him until bedtime, and jolly dreams of him come to the little heads when they are laid on the pillow.

The ideal uncle may be fat or thin. He may be tall or short, but he is the children's ideal. He bites the baby's fingers, he surrenders his clean collar to grubby hands, he pig-a-backs and crawls and climbs, he barks like a dog and mews like a cat and spins a top like a genius—in short, does everything that is demanded of him and a whole lot that isn't.

He is a big boy, a Peter Pan who has grown up in spite of himself. All the girls intend to marry him when they are old enough, just as all the boys are sworn ultimately to marry Aunt Katherine, and in each case their instincts are entirely justified.

The perfect uncle and aunt are simply splendid cousins on a large scale. Their hair may be tinged with gray and uncle may have lots of scrubby whiskers, but memory has kept their childhood fresh and fragrant and in the presence of children younger in years than themselves it simply bubbles over.

Never Has the Saying of

Ralph Waldo Emerson

Been Better Illustrated than here

"If you can preach a better sermon or make a better mouse trap than has been made before, though you build your house in the forest, the people will make a beaten path to your door."

While we haven't built our house exactly in the forest, it was off the beaten path of commerce. And the crowd followed, and are fast wearing a path to our door. A brand new stock of FURNITURE and CARPETINGS. The latest of everything in HOUSEKEEPING GOODS is drawing the people here. Exclusive agency for the CRAWFORD RANGES and PARLOR STOVES is drawing them here. No rent to pay, therefore less expense and lower prices are drawing them here. Larger store, larger stock, better light, better elevator service. Store well heated on every floor. More room. Better display of every piece of furniture. More liberal terms of credit, etc. All these advantages are making the people in ever-increasing numbers beat a path to our door. And they are not disappointed when they enter.

MAN MURDERED IN WATERTOWN

Another Man Dying as Result of Fight Between Factions of the Rubber Strikers

WATERTOWN, Nov. 18.—One man was shot to death and another was slashed in the face and neck so badly that physicians say he has little chance of living, in a fight between employes of the Hood Rubber company, within a short distance of the company's plant last night.

The police stated late last night that the murderous assaults resulted from friction between I. W. W. sympathizers and non-members of that organization.

The dead man, whose body was found with a bullet in the neck, lying at full length at Arlington street, was Frank Cirillo, aged 26, who lived at 817 Mt. Auburn street.

Frank Falzo, aged 50, of 85 Arlington street, who was attacked twice and part of his face cut almost to ribbons in the second alteration, was in such a condition in the Cambridge hospital that practically no hope of his recovery was held out.

Body Found in Street

Up to midnight efforts to find any of those concerned in the killing of Cirillo, or any of the gang that was seen to attack Falzo, had been unsuccessful. Luigi Ligano, aged 24, who also lives at the same house as Falzo, is locked up in the Watertown police station as a witness.

Police found the body of Cirillo in Arlington street, a quarter of a mile from the factory, while hurrying to the Cambridge hospital with Falzo in a patrol wagon.

It was with great difficulty that the local authorities succeeded in wormling any particulars of the murder, or what led up to it out of the members of the crowd, whom they rigidly questioned.

The theory of the police is that Falzo, who declares that he is not a member of the I. W. W., was attacked first in front of his home by sympathizers of the organization, of whom Cirillo was one.

When Falzo retreated to his home to summon aid, it is believed some of his friends rushed up from the vicinity of the factory and gave battle finally shooting down Cirillo and then disappearing as quickly as they had appeared.

This, it is declared, aroused great anger among some of the former employes whom the company is said to be determined against returning to their former places.

Throughout yesterday and during most of the evening policemen and a number of employes detailed as special watchmen had been on duty about the gates of the factory.

While employes known to be hostile to the company had remained about the vicinity for hours, walking back and forth in twos and threes most of the time, there was not the slightest indication of trouble until late last evening.

Police Do Not See Fight

Whether the murder of Cirillo and the slashing of Falzo were deliberately planned or were the outcome of a fight between hostile gangs that developed as quickly as it ended, it was all done without interference or even knowledge of the police until Falzo was found staggering in Arlington street, a quarter of an hour afterward.

Pausing to rest as he reached the Arlington and Elm streets corner, in patroling his beat, Patrolman Arthur Howard's attention was arrested by faint moaning. The groaning became gradually louder.

Out of the darkness, in a few more moments, appeared two men, one of them assisting the other, who was laboring in intense pain.

One of the men was Falzo, with blood trickling from great slashes in his face and neck, barely able to keep on his feet at all. Assisting him was Ligano, now held as a witness. They were "going for help," Ligano said, but where they did not know.

Cirillo's Body in Street

The policeman was the first man they met. As they came face to face with Howard, Falzo practically collapsed. The patrol wagon was summoned, and was lifted, half conscious, into it.

Patrolman Bailey and Driver Holmes started the wagon off at top speed for the hospital. They had gone only a short distance when the horse shied at something in the road.

As they were about to force the horse past the spot, Bailey and Holmes saw that it was a human form lying in the roadway. The man, who was not identified as Cirillo until sometime later, was beyond human aid when found, although the body was still warm. There was a bullet hole in the neck. He had been killed, evidently, by one shot.

Less than 100 yards from the spot where the body was found there was lying in the roadway a broken razor, its blade bloodstained.

Ligano Does Not Tell All

The razor had not been used on Cirillo, but it is the weapon with which Falzo was probably fatally slashed, the police believe. It is one of the few scant clues on which the authorities are working in an effort to unravel the Sunday night crime.

Ligano was able to throw more light on the mystery than any of the many others who were closely questioned in the next few hours.

He said he was peaceably passing the evening in his home, when, shortly before 9:30, Falzo burst through the door and shouted that there was a "crowd outside waiting to kill me."

With three others, whose names he stubbornly declined to divulge, Ligano said he ran outside, but hesitated when he saw a gang of several men in Arlington street. Falzo pitched into the crowd, he said, and four men beat and cut him.

Seek Aid for Falzo

Then, he declared, those who had done the attacking, as well as the three friends of Falzo who had come out of the dwelling, ran through Arlington street in the direction of where Cirillo's body was later found.

Realizing that Falzo would expire unless given prompt medical attention, Ligano got him up from the ground and started off in the direction of Elm street, literally pulling him along in an effort to find aid.

It was while Falzo was being assisted toward Elm street by his companion the police believe that other friends, including the three who had come from his home, gave chase in the other direction and shot down Cirillo.

All Rubber Workers

Ligano told the police that all the men he saw in the fight in front of his home were employes of the rubber factory. He declined to gave any further particulars of the trouble between the gangs, which the police believe had been brewing for more than a week.

"He knows a great deal more than he is willing to tell," was the declaration of the police, after questioning Ligano for more than an hour.

He got a job as section hand on the Boston & Maine railroad when the rubber factory closed a week ago Friday. This, and the fact that he had announced that he would go back to work today, stirred up a great deal of ill feeling against Ligano and his companions.

Trouble Came as Surprise

Cirillo and some of his companions are said to have taken more or less active part in the riot at the gates of the factory last Wednesday morning, when many persons were hurt, although few were injured seriously.

The trouble started when about 300 employes returned to work.

During the greater part of last evening, it is declared, Cirillo and some of his friends remained in the vicinity of the factory, where some of the employes were scheduled to return to work at midnight, preparatory to, the reopening on practically full time today.

Last night's trouble came as a complete surprise.

"JACK THE SNIPPER"

Cut Tresses of Three Lynn Girls

LYNN, Nov. 18.—Search for a "Jack the Snipper," who in two days has cut the tresses of three Lynn girls in the presence of many persons, yet successfully escaped each time, is being made by the police. The only description of the man that his victims are able to give is that he "resembles a dark-skinned foreigner."

His first victim was Miss Therma Waltt, aged 11, of 96 Ontario street. As she entered a Market street store Saturday afternoon she felt a slight tug at her braid, but thought little of the incident. When she reached home she discovered that eight inches of her hair had been cut off.

Only a short time later Miss Lizzie Stone, 14, of Cliftondale, was standing in front of a Union street store when a man deliberately walked up and cut off a 10-inch length of her braid and then as quietly walked away.

Miss Carrie Colby, 14, of Ridgway street, was standing in the entrance of a Union street store yesterday afternoon when a stranger stepped up in front of her. She moved to one side, believing he wished to enter the building, and he turned and snipped eight inches of her tresses. A policeman was standing only a short distance away, but the Colby girl was so frightened that she was unable to make an outcry for several moments. By that time the snipper had walked down Union street and disappeared in the crowd.

SAVED BY NEIGHBORS

Mother and Children Overcome by Gas

HAVERHILL, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Victoria C. St. Pierre, her 7-year-old son and 9-year-old daughter were found suffering from inhaling coal gas at their home on Grove street yesterday afternoon by neighbors, the discovery averting a probable triple fatality.

The children were playing about the house when they became ill, the girl falling in a faint on the floor. The boy next complained of severe headache, and in attending to her two children Mrs. St. Pierre was also overcome.

When the neighbors were attracted to the house and a physician was summoned, the woman and her two children were found lying on a couch, and as soon as the physician entered he discovered the cause of the illness, the coal gas escaping from a stove also nearly overcoming him.

Windows were opened, and last night the three patients were declared out of danger. An investigation showed that the chimney was blocked, and as the stove had been used all day the gas from the coal had escaped into the room, Mrs. St. Pierre having failed to detect it.

HE COMMITTED SUICIDE

Clerk Daniel Lost Cash in Stock

CHICAGO Nov. 18.—Inside information on movements of a stock on the New York Exchange has brought about the suicide of John A. Daniel, chief clerk in the Chicago branch of the American Smelting and Refining company.

When the price of copper went soaring to more than 17 cents a pound young Daniel received a tip that Smelter was going above par. He knew that Smelter usually followed copper shares. It was 87 then. He bought and the stock declined.

Then he took $8500 from the Smelters company and bought some more. The stock continued to decline in a strong market until he lost all.

Then he told his uncle, A. D. Morrison. The latter mortgaged his home to pay back the money. Daniel fled to Germany. A pitiful farewell note asked burial in the potter's field. Instead his body is being brought back to this country for burial with that of his father.

"Everything considered, we would not think of prosecuting," said Fred S. Holbrook, manager of the company's Chicago office. "I regret extremely the cause of the suicide has become known, for I knew and liked young Daniel. The company is thoroughly protected, and it is to our interest to say nothing about the affair."

WIDE DISTRIBUTION

The wide distribution of American manufactures is illustrated by some recent figures of the statistical division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce showing the variety of articles exported and the numerous countries to which they are distributed. Barbed wire, fly paper, telephones, boots and shoes, automobiles, wire nails, motion picture films, flying machines, telegraph instruments, locks, hinges, razors, bath tubs, traction engines operated by steam, traction engines operated by gasoline, stationary engines operated by steam, stationary engines operated by gasoline, stationary engines operated by gas, electric locomotives, elevators, cotton gins, cash registers, and cream separators—these are a few of the numerous products of American ingenuity distributed literally over the entire civilized world.

Take wire nails as an example. They went last year to no less than 60 countries scattered over the entire inhabited portions of the globe—Siam, the Canary Islands, the Dutch East Indies, the British East Indies, Russia in Europe, Russia in Asia, Hongkong, Egypt, the French West Indies, and practically every country of experience, since they as well as many other communities are included in the list of 60 countries and colonies to which the 140 million pounds of wire nails exported last year were sent.

American telephones and telegraph instruments went to such distant places as British Africa, Egypt, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Java, Brazil, Korea, and the Canary islands. The value of scientific instruments and apparatus, including telephones, telegraph instruments, etc., exported last year was over $13,000,000 and the countries to which they were sent approximately 90 in number, distributed to all parts of the civilized world, practically one million dollars worth to Cuba, 4 1-4 million dollars' worth to Canada, and 1 1-2 million dollars' worth to the United Kingdom, while among the other countries and communities to which they were distributed are Siam, Portuguese Africa, Ecuador, the Straits Settlements, Egypt Trinidad and Tobago, Peru, Asiatic Russia and Bolivia.

Even such a comparatively unimportant article of commerce as fly paper went to approximately 75 countries and colonies, including Tripoli, Uruguay, Santo Domingo, Turkey in Europe, the Danish West Indies, Malta, Finland, China, Egypt, Roumania, and Gibraltar. American barbed wire serves the agriculturist in every grand division of the world. Adding machines, printing presses, aeroplanes, automobiles, clocks and watches, celluloid manufactures, binder twine, dynamite, gunpowder, locomotives, ice-making machinery, jewelry, kitchen utensils, phonographs, car wheels, cotton cloth, printers' ink, and hundreds of other manufactures which might be enumerated passed out of the United States last year to the value of more than a billion dollars and were distributed not merely to every grand division, but to practically every country in the inhabited world.

Frank A. Ricard Has a Plan for Construction of Boulevard From Textile School to Connect With Lawrence Boulevard

SKETCH OF ROUTE OF BOULEVARD PROPOSED BY FRANK RICARD

Mr. Frank Ricard of the Lowell board of trade has a plan for the construction of a riverside boulevard from the Textile school down-river, connecting with the new Lawrence boulevard. At a recent meeting of the directors of the board, Mr. Ricard presented his plan with map and general explanation and it was voted to refer the matter to a special committee for further investigation. In submitting his plan to the directors Mr. Ricard read the following paper and it explains the proposition in detail:

"I have a proposition which I desire to submit to you, for your consideration. A proposition to which I have devoted considerable time, study and thought as to its possibilities; a proposition, that, in a word, consists in extending the Pawtucketville boulevard, from its present ending at the Textile school, along the river bank to the Dracut line, to what is known as the car barn, and connecting with the state road which continues to Lawrence.

I feel you will agree with me that this is a very good proposition.

It is a proposition which cannot be successfully carried out in a short space of time but I firmly believe that if this project was started and a portion of the work done each year it would be only a few years when we would have something of which we could feel proud.

I would start the boulevard about fifty feet wide, and would build it along the river bank, taking in one portion of Aiken street bridge, and going in a direct line taking in Front street, a part of Bridge street bridge, then going along in almost a straight line to what is known as Hunt's falls. There we meet with quite a sharp bend, the river at the present time curves, as is shown on the map and here we have a couple of good sized islands which divide the river almost opposite the car barn. I would extend the boulevard over there and then continue to the state road.

I do not want to claim that this plan should be strictly followed out, there may be room for improvements and a chance for alterations.

The boulevard running along the banks of the Merrimack river and connecting with the state road would be a connecting link which would give us a boulevard beginning at the sea and continuing through Haverhill and Lawrence to Lowell, Nashua and on to the White mountains. This one feature alone will make it a very interesting matter to consider. But it does not begin to be of as much importance as are the benefits to be derived by our city. I will show you what I mean by that.

You will see that the Moody, Aiken and Bridge street bridges bring this boulevard right into the city, so that all the sections of the city will derive the most material benefits from it. Here at the very beginning is a large bend in the river which, owing to its shape and because of the fact that the river is shallow makes it a natural bathing or swimming pool in the summer time and in winter it could be used as a skating rink, and along the bank here you will have a good park.

From Aiken street to Bridge street bridge would be boulevard; though there is a large piece of land along Lakeview avenue which could be used for park purposes. As we pass along down we come to a large tract of waste land at First street which has been filled in and is in such shape that it could easily be made into a large sized park.

Owing to the fact that First street ascends the hill here, it makes a natural amphitheatre. Going along we come to the so-called Indian orchard, which also could be made into a big park.

Now, gentlemen, I have shown you that we have a boulevard in the vicinity of 2 1-2 miles long adjacent to the city, easily reached by three bridges, and very convenient to Pawtucketville and Centralville, and I firmly believe that this proposition will present to the city a grand boulevard and a series of parks that will equal anything we have in New England, not even excepting Boston, because the whole boulevard in itself would be a park.

Should you stand on Aiken street bridge you will have a view that will be equal to the brush of David Neal. Extending on the southerly side of the river you will have a view of our mile long mills. From here and down along this boulevard you will have scenery that is worthy of the art of a Whistler or of a Hornby, two men the city may well feel proud of.

This boulevard admits of the most wonderful improvements for years and years to come. With the lights along it lighted at night, and the lights of the mills on the opposite side, it would be a most attractive sight.

That such a proposition was ever before suggested to the citizens of Lowell is very doubtful.

Another question of vast importance to the people of our city is the question of health. You can see these parks would give breathing spaces for the whole city, hundreds, yes thousands of people could come here and they need not ever exert themselves—because they could reach the electric cars at any point along the boulevard.

I have spoken to you as regards the beauty and the health of this important proposition and I feel that no one can dispute me when I say that it is of the greatest importance to the people of Lowell.

The practicability of its being built and the probable cost is next to be considered. Swinging out in a long curve where the bank is low a wall could be built four or five feet high and and this would give plenty of protection against the high water in the spring of the year caused by the freshets.

This wall would narrow the channel some but we would experience no trouble here in regard to back water entering into our mills as the bed of the river is very low. By having the channel deepened all the surplus water would be taken care of and also would prevent any overflow on private land.

The question of the possible cost of filling in and building the retaining walls is of vital importance of course. I would propose that all along would be built a wall of reinforced cement—I am not a civil engineer—that is not in my line—perhaps a wall of granite, would be more practicable.

In some places on account of the height of the wall a large amount of filling would be required. You will understand that in years gone by this proposition could not be carried out as well as at the present time. There has been a large amount of filling in in years past. When Aiken street bridge was built all of that part between Lakeview avenue and the entrance to the bridge was filled in, and on the southerly side of the river in Belvidere, a retaining wall was built and all of that section down Stackpole street was filled in. A certain corporation of our city has derived the greatest amount of benefits from this new land.

The Locks and Canals is receiving great benefit by the filling in of waste land along the banks of the river. In fact I am going to say I would expect the Locks and Canals to help the city in developing this scheme.

Their best argument from a business standpoint is that of increasing the horsepower of the river, and it would prove a great benefit to them to go as far as in their power lies to help out this proposition. Their strongest argument for filling in this land is to increase the horsepower and the mechanical force of the river. Then surely this boulevard would be a decided help to the Locks and Canals and also to the other mill powers located in our city.

Now besides this fact of increasing the horsepower of the river you will have to admit that this will greatly increase the valuation of the vast amount of territory in Centralville and Pawtucketville. It would tend to build up all this portion wonderfully and increase the tax rate in these sections. Whether the cost is large or small I am firmly convinced that in the increased valuation in these sections that in ten years' time the cost will be returned to the city of Lowell. While talking about the cost and arguing that it should not cost so very much if this boulevard is 40 or 50 feet wide, say 50 feet extending along the river bank we come to Beaver Brook, where a bridge would have to be built, which perhaps would cost a few thousand dollars. Going down along we pass Aiken street and down farther we come to the street known as Front street and on until we strike Bridge street bridge. You who are acquainted with that section know that the land value cannot be but very small, so that there is nothing at all to interfere and nothing to obstruct the boulevard at the present time until we get to the Bridge street bridge.

I understand the buildings belong to Mr. Parker—I am going to speak plainly. I claim that Mr. Parker should be willing to give to the city of Lowell at least at a small cost a portion of his buildings. There are no large buildings on First street but there are small pieces of private property but these would not interfere as the boulevard would take in their back yards and the land could be secured at a small cost to the city because it would increase the valuation of the remaining property.

Now we come along to where the Locks and Canals has filled in all this waste land along First street until we come to this triangle in the river near the Dracut line. The river here is divided in two branches by two good sized islands. I have extended this boulevard so as to take in these islands. You will see by cutting off this branch of the river it would increase the depth of the river over Hunt's falls and by so doing we have increased the depth and flow of the river the whole distance so that we will have a river from Lawrence more navigable than at present which would also add to the valuation of the boulevard.

On the southerly side of the river we have the Lawrence, Merrimack, Boott and Massachusetts mills, St. John's hospital and a number of excellent residences which extend down through Tewksbury and just below the Dracut line the river presents a fine place for boating, swimming and canoeing.

Figuring the cost upon the same basis as that of boulevards which have been built near our city I feel satisfied that $75,000 would be a great help to building this boulevard. You want to understand gentlemen that all the land need not be filled up to the height of Aiken street bridge it could be raised up as we approach the bridge.

I have been a member of the board of trade for some few years. I share the spirit that animates each and every member and that is an eager and honest desire to advance the best interest of our city in every way and this proposition that I have submitted to you I firmly believe is one of the best we could consider.

I thank you for your kindness and hope you will give it careful consideration.

MAN SHOT BY WOMAN

Jaskilainen Only Slightly Injured in Arm

WOMAN THEN TRIED TO END HER LIFE

She Was Angered Because Man Had Refused to Marry Her—She is Not Seriously Wounded

GARDNER, Nov. 18.—David Jaskilainen, aged 23, of 15 Oriole street, was shot in the right arm at 1 o'clock yesterday morning with a revolver in the hands, it is alleged, of Miss Hilma Lumme, who then turned the weapon upon herself, inflicting a wound in her breast over her heart.

The shooting occurred in front of a tenement house at 71 Ash street, the home of Miss Ida Tolvainen, who, accompanied by Jaskilainen, was returning home from a dance in the Finnish Workingmen's hall. As Jaskilainen and Miss Tolvainen arrived in front of the house Miss Lumme, whom it is claimed was jealous, appeared and fired three shots, the first of which struck Jaskilainen, who fled with Miss Tolvainen to a place of safety.

Firing a fourth time Miss Lumme turned the weapon on herself, it is said.

Police Officers William H. Moran and Wilhelm Waxlax hurried to the scene of the shooting. They found Miss Lumme in an unconscious condition with a 32-caliber revolver lying on the ground by her side. Two chambers were loaded and four empty shells were found in the cylinder.

A taxicab was called and Miss Lumme was taken to the Henry Heywood Memorial hospital, where it was found that the bullet was lodged beneath the left shoulder blade. A bottle of creolin with part of the contents gone was found in Miss Lumme's handbag. No evidence was found, however, that she had swallowed any of the liquid.

Dr. John B. Donnelly and Dr. A. P. Lachance of the hospital staff gave first aid. Later Miss Lumme rallied from the effects of the bullet wound. Her condition was somewhat improved yesterday afternoon. The injury to Jaskilainen was slight and he returned to his home after the bullet had been removed.

Jaskilainen told the police that Miss Lumme was infatuated with him and had threatened to commit suicide on three different occasions because he had refused to marry her.

FIRE DAMAGE $25,000

Hotel at Essex Junction, Vermont, Burned

ESSEX JUNCTION, Vt., Nov. 18—Johnson's hotel, owned by Walter B. Johnson, was destroyed by fire last night at a loss of about $25,000.

The Johnson garage adjoining containing a number of new automobiles, and the Central Vermont passenger station opposite, across a narrow roadway, were saved by the prompt response of the automobile fire truck from Burlington to the call for aid. The truck crew made the run of seven miles in eight minutes.

The fire in the hotel originated around a chimney and an attempt was made to extinguish the blaze with a hand chemical. The fire gained headway rapidly and low pressure in the mains of the village made it impossible to save the building. Mr. Johnson could not state last night just how much of his loss is covered by insurance.

Lines of hose were laid across the main line tracks of the Central Vermont, delaying through trains each way about two hours.

HARD EARNED DOLLARS MUST NOT BE THROWN AWAY
DON'T PAY BIG PRICES FOR ANY MAKE PIANO

I have been telling the people for years that it is not necessary to pay luxury prices for PIANOS. A PIANO is no longer a luxury. I have taken it out of that class. I have made it as easy to secure a PIANO by reducing the price and making the terms of purchase as liberal as it is to secure any other household necessity.

I have educated the public in PIANO values to such an extent that the intelligent man or woman, who knows how to go about it, can now buy a PIANO for much less than it could be bought for five years ago. I am in receipt of letters daily from all over New England, praising me for my stand against the high-priced dealer, and I am selling more PIANOS at lower prices than ever before. It pays to protect the public.

GOVERNMENT OF TODAY

AND NOT THE TWENTIETH CENTURY MAN

Says Pastor of Grace Church—He Would Set a Standard for the 20th Century

Rev. Clarence R. Skinner was the speaker in the Grace church social forum meeting last night. His subject was: "A Maximum Government and a Minimum Citizen."

"The fundamental fault with government today," he said, "is that it expresses the 18th century man, and not the 20th century man. It is a protest against the over-churched, over-governed, over-taxed, over-lorded, overburdened condition. In the 18th century government, every man's individuality was absolutely wiped away. He was over-institutionalized. As a result there came the French revolution, and men set up their individual rights. Now, the modern government, especially of the United States, is moulded as a protest against that overgoverned, over-churched, over-taxed, condition of the 18th century.

For instance: We say that government shall not interfere with business, because, in business, a man is seeking his own right. Anything like paternalism must not be tolerated. Whenever a man finds a coal mine in the side of a mountain, it is his right to develop it to the utmost of his ability. The employer says it is no business of the government whom he shall employ, or how many hours he shall employ that man, woman or child. Up to a few years ago, that has been absolutely the condition of affairs—a minimum government, in order that men may obtain their maximum right. The great fault with this system is that only a few attain their highest good. We are at the mercy of people who are driving others for the sake of what they can get out of them. So this philosophy has resulted in a maximum man, here and there, but a vast majority of minimum citizens. Natural resources have been devastated, under the philosophy of minimum government and maximum citizenship.

There should be a maximum government, enabled to condemn a tuberculous, germ-laden tenement, or to take hold of the coal situation, and provide coal for all people.

It was not long after the establishment of this government, before men found that this philosophy was absolutely wrong. Then, when it was said that government should undertake the function of education, there was a storm of protest. But gradually men began to learn that it was necessary, for the protection of all, that there should be a minimum standard of education; and now we accept it. Gradually we came likewise to understand that there must be a minimum standard of health. We have developed the power of government to such an extent that we can take away the liberty of a smallpox patient.

It is not paternalism, for all men to decide what shall be done for the common good. It is fraternalism; and there can be no harm in fraternalism. We ought to have a still higher maximized government. We must have a stronger government. We must have a stronger centralized power, in order to enforce a minimum standard of education for 20th century conditions, and a standard of work efficiency which shall be best for all men.

Also, we must have a minimum standard of wage, for the protection of the present generation and of the future race, and in order to uphold the standard of the home. A maximum government, a minimum citizen, a minimum standard—in order that we may have the highest good of all.

JUDGE NATHAN D. PRATT PRESIDED

At Jury Waived Session of the Superior Court Which Opened in Lowell Today

The November sitting of the jury waived session of the superior court was opened at the local court house in Gorham street this morning at 10 o'clock, Judge Nathan D. Pratt of this city presiding. This is the first time that Judge Pratt occupied the bench of the superior court in this city since he was appointed by Gov. Foss.

There was a large representation of lawyers when court opened and the greater part of the morning session was taken up by the reading of the docket and the hearing of motions.

Many Motions Heard

Daniel J. Donahue, counsel for the plaintiff in the case of Vlahos vs. Nicholson, asked that he be granted a continuance, owing to the fact that his client is in Greece at the present time but is expected home in a short time. Lawyer Silverblatt, one of the counsel for the defense, asked that if the case was continued that the trustee be released. Judge Pratt stated that it was a matter for counsel to agree upon and that if they could not agree the case would be disposed of at this term.

John J. Hogan asked for a continuance in the case of Revel vs. Vien. Mr. Hogan, who represents the defendant, stated that it was necessary to get some depositions from France before trying the case and explained that owing to the peculiar methods of procedure of the courts of France he had had some difficulty in ascertaining just how to get the answers to his interrogatories. He asked that the case be put over until the February term in order that he might have a chance to secure the depositions. Lawyer Bent insisted on having the case tried at this session, and in all probability it will be in order next week.

Long Law List

The list of law cases for this session is very long and includes 39 against the Lexington board of health, the majority of the petitioners being farmers or truck gardeners belonging or coming under the jurisdiction of the Lexington board of health.

Heretofore manure upon arriving in Lexington has been unloaded from the railroad cars at various places, but recently the board of health adopted a measure where the manure could be unloaded at only one place. As a result the gardeners of that place entered protest and finally appealed to the court. It is understood that this is the first matter of this kind ever brought before a court in the commonwealth.

In the case of Sherwood against Carney, J. Joseph O'Connor, Esq., stated that the defendant, Owen J. Carney, is dead, and asked that the administrator of the estate of the deceased be enjoined. It is alleged that the late Mr. Carney engaged a store in the Runels building in Merrimack square for a limited time and failed to pay the rent.

Equity Case Heard

Shortly before noon today the first case was called, it being a case of equity in which the Connors Brothers Co. is the plaintiff and Fisher et al. the defendants. This case grew out of the making out of a mortgage to John Connors, formerly treasurer of the Connors Bros.' Construction Co., for a barn which was erected in Dunstable, while the Construction Co. was erecting a postoffice for the United States government in Nashua, N. H. Messrs. F. W. and S. E. Qua appear for the Connors Brothers and Frederick A. Fisher for the defendants.

The Connors Brothers' case was resumed at this afternoon's session of the court and John H. Connors was on the stand for a considerable length of time during which he answered questions regarding dealings of himself and Connors Brothers with their uncle. The session adjourned late in the afternoon.

COURT SUSPENDED

Until Tomorrow Because of Absence of Judge McLaughlin Who Was Called to Washington

The case of Adolphe Lemerise against J. J. Prindiville Co., which was opened before Judge McLaughlin in the session of the superior civil court with juries last week, and was to have been resumed this morning will reopen tomorrow morning, owing to the absence of Judge McLaughlin, who was called to Washington Friday afternoon.

100 TON VESSEL LOST

Schooner E. B. Marvin Had Four on Board

THOUGHT TO HAVE RUN INTO A GALE

Boat Is Long Overdue, and Owner Is of the Opinion That All on Board Went Down

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 18.—The schooner E. B. Marvin, formerly the Gloucester fishing schooner Mollie Adams, was lost with all on board while bound from Perth Amboy, N. J., to Halifax, in the opinion of her owners here.

The Marvin, which was a 100-ton vessel carrying three men besides Capt. Cox, left Perth Amboy Oct. 9. She left New London Oct. 11 and has not been heard from since.

Officials connected with the marine and fisheries department here believe the Marvin is the vessel reported by wireless to have foundered in lat. 40 degrees 25 minutes north, lon. 60 degrees 46 minutes west, where it is still a menace to navigation. A gale swept the Nova Scotia coast three weeks ago and the Marvin's loss is generally believed to have occurred at that time.

As the Mollie Adams, with Capt. Col. Jacobs as her skipper, the Marvin was well known in New England waters some years ago. She was built at Kennebunk, Me., in 1884.

GRAND TRUNK ROAD

Trouble With New Haven Not Mentioned

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—No mention of the New Haven-Grand Trunk situation was made today when the interstate commerce commission's hearing on the New Haven lines was resumed before Special Examiner Ward Prouty. Complaints of delays in freight shipments over the Maine Central railroad were considered. It was shown by reports of Supt. F. E. Sanborn of the Maine Central that of 14 shipments from Lynn, Mass., to Auburn, Me., 75 per cent were four days or more on the road. The normal time was three days. Mr. Sanborn's report also showed that shipments from Boston to Farmington, Me., frequently reached their destination sooner than shipments for the same place originating at Portland. This was said to be due to loading delays at Portland. Transfer delays at Monson Junction, Me., were also discussed.

George S. Hobbs, second vice president of the Maine Central, told of reductions that had been made in switching charges and said that a large part of the switching at Portland was now done free of charge. In the last ten years Mr. Hobbs said the road had spent $11,000,000 on improvements and there is yet to be expended a further appropriation of more than $2,000,000.

J. T. Marchand, counsel for the interstate commerce commission, asked for monthly reports on late trains, for one year previous to Nov. 1 from the Boston & Maine, the New York, New Haven & Hartford, the Maine Central and the Boston & Albany railroads to be presented at the hearing later.

THE POLICE LOST THEIR HEADS

So Giovannitti Testified at the Ettor Trial in Salem This Morning

SALEM, Nov. 18.—Arturo Giovannitti, last of the accused agitators in the Giovannitti-Ettor-Caruso trial, which is being held at Salem to appear for the defense, took the witness stand today. The young socialist writer and poet, who is charged as an accessory before the fact to the killing of Anna Lopizzo in a Lawrence strike riot last winter, faced the jury despite the absence of his personal counsel, W. Scott Peters.

Attorney Fred H. Moore took up the defense where it was left last week when Mr. Peters' illness caused a postponement.

Reports were current about the court house that Attorney Peters had withdrawn permanently from the case, but this was denied by associate counsel.

Giovannitti, whose home is in Brooklyn, went to Lawrence to aid Joseph Ettor in conducting the strike and addressed the workers on several occasions. The commonwealth sought to prove that his utterances in Italian incited the strikers to acts of violence and aided in the precipitation of the fatal riot on Jan. 29 last.

Giovannitti, like Ettor, affirmed to tell the truth as he faced the clerk of the court. He first told of his early life; that he was born in Italy 28 years ago, the son of a chemist, and came to Canada after being educated in public schools and lyceums of Italy. He lived for some time at Halifax and Montreal. While studying English at Montreal he took the place of a minister who died and for some time conducted an Italian Presbyterian mission, after which he entered a Presbyterian theological school. "Soon after that," said Giovannitti, "I was called to Brooklyn to take charge of another mission. That was in 1904. I wasn't exactly a minister but sort of a missionary. I preached to the people on Sundays and taught them during the week."

Later he entered the Union Theological seminary and registered also at Columbia university. The work was too much for him, he said, particularly the study of Hebrew, "which was a little too strong for my capacities." After this for eight months he conducted an Italian mission at Pittsburgh.

"While there I became connected with the socialist party," Giovannitti continued, "and the authorities of the Presbyterian church objected to socialism, and said I should give it up. They said it was not a question of political economy but of soul salvation. I told them that I did not think the teachings of Christ and socialism were antagonistic, and I severed my connection with the church."

Returning to New York he took up Italian newspaper work and met the defendant, Ettor. He went to Lawrence Jan. 20 last after the strike was called.

"Before I went to Lawrence," the witness said, "I had learned the militia had been called, that there was a feeling that Ettor should leave there and that railroad stations were being watched for outside agitators. I read that all such would be under suspicion."

Police Lost Their Heads

Immediately after he arrived in Lawrence Giovannitti said he heard of the discovery of the planted dynamite and he went to the hall where Ettor had just spoken. He asked Ettor at once about the dynamite and Ettor replied: "They've played an awful dirty trick on us." "I said," Giovannitti testified, "do you refer to the McNamara case?" "Yes, that case is still fresh in the public mind and they are trying to fasten the same thing on us. It is the greatest blow that could fall on us just now. We have 25,000 people on the street and hardly any savings. We can't keep up much longer unless we get outside help and if we can't sift this dynamite affair to the bottom and find out who did it, very likely we can't get a cent and the people will be driven back to work."

After that Giovannitti began the organization of relief for the strikers. The witness told about a conversation he had with a Lawrence policeman in which he said there was no necessity for the militia in Lawrence.

"This disorder never would have happened in New York," Giovannitti said he told the officer.

"As soon as there was a little disorder the police and authorities of Lawrence immediately lost their heads. I am not over-enthusiastic about the New York cops but I think eight or nine good Irish cops here would have handled this situation without calling any militia."

TEST OF THE PANAMA CANAL

Will Be Made Next Summer or Fall According to Present Arrangements

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Some time next summer or fall, no exact date being specified, a vessel will pass from the Atlantic to the Pacific across what is now the Isthmus of Panama, which consequently must disappear from the world's geography and by the same human agency, the Western hemisphere will be divided into two continents. The vessel will not be the Oregon nor any other famous ship, but will be one of the many small water crafts in daily use by the canal builders; and probably the only passengers will be Col. George W. Goethals, and the staff of American engineers, who for the past eight years have been carrying on the greatest engineering work the world has ever seen. It will be later than that, anywhere from six months to a year perhaps before the formal opening of the waterway will take place and a naval fleet headed by the famous old Oregon, will pass through into the western ocean, and the canal may be fairly said to be open to trade.

These facts are not of official record as yet; the date of January 1, 1913, still stands for the opening predicted by Col. Goethals. But that the opening will be anticipated to a great extent has been promised by the canal builders in unofficial statements, and now comes a clear intimation of their purpose to advance the opening date in the annual report of the canal commission, just published. It is disclosed while the completion of the great locks by January 1st next will not be possible, owing to contract delays, within six months thereafter the channel will be finished, while to insure the safe passage of the locks, the contractor has been called upon to finish the gates in one flight first, so that if the rest of the work is in condition, passage of ships can be permitted without waiting for the completion of the other flights. This statement will be understood, when it is known that the great locks are being built in duplicate; side by side, not only to add to the capacity of the canal but to insure its continuance in operation in case of a serious accident to a ship in one of the locks.

Fine Progress Made

The report shows a most satisfactory state of progress of the whole great work, though in view of the fact that it is dated September 10th last, the figures regarding excavation; placing of concrete erection of dams and locks and subsidiary works are not as recent as those contained in the regular monthly reports. Naturally the most interesting feature of the report relates to the operations in the great Culebra Cut. Here, great landslides, many ranking with an Alpine avalanche in magnitude, have so increased the amount of material to be excavated, that were it not found possible to steadily reduce the cost per yard of dredging and steam shoveling through the growing expertness of the employes, and improved engineering methods, the total cost of excavation would have been vastly greater than the estimates. During the last year nearly 16,500,000 cubic yards of earth were taken out of this cut, leaving nearly 12,000,000 to be displaced before the canal can be opened. The damage caused by the slides may be appreciated from the fact that nearly 6,000,000 yards of earth excavated was so composed or nearly 36 per cent. of the total excavation.

There is only one way to deal with these slides, and that is to dig them out as they occur, though some help is gained by terracing the upper banks. That is because the geological formation changes so frequently and suddenly that no other effective treatment has been found. So unstable is the earth that the material in one part of the cut begins to move on an inclination as low as 1 on 7, owing to the mass of stratified rock sliding over a layer of lignite. One slide now in motion, near the bridge of Culebra, covers an area of 63 acres, from which 2,710,000 yards have already been removed, leaving 1,300,000 still to be handled.

Then there is another little slide of no less than 50 acres on the opposite side of the canal. The result of these earth movements, which are quite exceptional in engineering practice, has been to leave the canal in its deepest portions, with very flat slopes. The encouraging feature of the heavy work of that point is found in the statement in the report "that none of the slides which occurred during the year would have interfered with the passage of ships had the canal been in operation."

Already the appropriations made by congress for the canal have run into big figures, the total up to June 30 last being $293,561,468, and since that date there have been additional appropriations, exclusive of those for fortifications, amounting to $28,980,000, making the grand total $322,541,468. On June 30 of all these appropriations, the engineers had expended 69 per cent of the total estimated cost of the canal.

Of even greater interest from an engineering point of view, than the vast but commonplace work of excavation in Culebra Cut, was the work of constructing the great locks at Gatun, and Pedro Miguel, for there many novel problems have been solved, and lock machinery constructed of special designs of a magnitude never before heard of. For instance, so big are the valves at the side of the locks that a test showed that it required a pull of over ten tons on the stem to open one of these valves. All this work is done electrically, and here again the engineers were confronted with new difficulties. Owing to the peculiar climatic conditions on the isthmus, with tropical heat and extreme humidity, and the deteriorating effect of these conditions on the insulation of electrical machinery, the ordinary insulation proved unreliable, and the engineers found it necessary to make a great number of experiments, no less than 16 sample motors being pitted against one another. It was an awful test for dynamo and motor builders to have their machines required to operate for a period of ten days in a building filled with steam at a temperature of 50 degrees centigrade and having the motor cases filled with water for five hours at 30 degrees. But finally the American motor builders responded and suitable apparatus is being installed.

Thus electric motors under tests are now swinging the great gates of the canal, each weighing very many tons and as tall and broad as a great skyscraping building in the remarkable time of one minute and forty-eight seconds. Incidentally it appears that to make these gates the iron workers must drive and head 5,750,000 rivets. The pivots of these great locks are being made of a special grade of steel and bronze, not only for strength, but to protect them against corrosion, a very necessary precaution in view of the fact that they will always be submerged in sea water after the canal is open. To guard against galvanic action, zinc rings are also placed on the bronze bushings.

To Supply Power

To supply the power to operate the gates and sluice valves in the locks, and furnish current for the monster electric locomotives which are to tow the steamships through the locks, a great hydro-electric station is being erected adjacent to the spillway in Gatun dam. There are 2250 kilowatt water turbines, and three 2000 kilowatt generators with suitable exciters and other auxiliaries. There will be enough available water from the storage in Lake Gatun to warrant the installation of 6000 kilowatts, though in the dry season it will be necessary to draw upon the storage. Altogether it is figured that for this electric work 7 per cent of the minimum water system of the canal will be required. A part of the electricity is to be used for lighting the line of the canal. There will be concrete lamp-posts 100 feet apart throughout the entire length of each lock wall. Altogether 7000 lamps will be installed at the locks.

Outside of the canal proper, the report shows that work has been going on rapidly in preparing harbors for the shelter of ships at each end of the waterway. The work of fortification has also been progressing well, nearly half a million yards of concrete having been placed in the mortar pits and gun emplacements during the last year. The sanitation of the isthmus also has been maintained at the high level set by Col. William C. Georgas, the chief sanitary officer, from the beginning.

Contrary to the common impression, the sanitary work in the way of clearing land does not extend over the entire zone, but less than 1200 of the 278,488 acres in the tract are kept clear for sanitary purposes and almost the entire zone is in its original condition as regards brush and jungle.

ACTION ON THE HOME RULE BILL

Has Been Delayed About Ten Days as a Result of the Recent Squabble

LONDON, Nov. 18.—An amicable arrangement in the Home Rule quarrel in the house of commons was brought about today, when the dispute as to the government's method of procedure, which led to such disorder last week was settled. The government announced this afternoon its intention to reach the end it desired by a more roundabout means and the unionists having made good their demand for the observance of precedent raised no objection. Premier Asquith attributed his change of mind "partly to repugnance at a possible recurrence of disorder and partly to a desire not to ignore the appeal of the chair." The house of commons then, on the motion of the premier negatived its original financial resolution, the amendment of which by Sir Frederick Banbury in committee led to the trouble.

The net result of the squabble will be to delay the progress of the Home Rule bill for ten days.

GOV'T WINS BATHTUB TRUST CASE

Court Holds That the Manufacturers Violated Sherman Anti-Trust Law

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The government today won its fight in the supreme court against the so-called bathtub trust. The court held that the "license agreement" of enameled ware manufacturers were in violation of the German anti-trust law.

The fight against the enameled ware manufacturers was begun by the government in the district court of Maryland, it being charged that the 50 defendants named had entered into a combination to restrain interstate trade in sanitary enameled iron ware and had attempted to monopolize that trade. Sixteen of the defendants were corporations.

One of the individual defendants was Edwin L. Wayman, with whom the corporate defendants and their officials were charged with having entered into illegal agreements, in effect licenses for the use of a patented enameling tool. Wayman was to refund part of the license fee if the manufacturers had not violated any conditions of the agreements, among these conditions being one that they would not sell to any jobber who would not sign a contract not to buy from anyone other than the corporate defendants, and another that they would not sell at a lower or on more attractive terms than those named in a schedule of prices attached to the agreement.

The lower court held that the agreements destroyed competition and fixed prices in violation of the Sherman law and, furthermore, that the patent on the tool did not make the agreement lawful. The lower court prohibited the defendants from attempting further to restrain trade by means of these agreements, pronounced illegal.

Justice McKenna, in announcing the decision of the supreme court, called attention to the effectiveness of the combination made possible among enameled ware manufacturers, through Wyman's plan to grant licenses on the improvement for enameling.

The decision marked an epoch in anti-trust decisions because it sustained the government's contention that a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law could not be concealed behind the patent laws of the country. The decision of the lower court was upheld throughout as to the main defendants and the Colwell lead company, which claimed it was not engaged in interstate commerce.

INFERNAL MACHINES

Figured in Trial of the Dynamite Cases

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 18.—Blackened pieces of infernal machines which figured in the explosion at Los Angeles, Cal., on Oct. 1, 1910, when 21 people were killed in the wreck of the Times building were identified at the dynamite conspiracy trial today.

Events involving the handling of the nitro-gelatine with which James B. McNamara caused the explosion were first described by witnesses.

A clock was shown the jury as having been taken from the bomb near the Zeelandiaer home. The alarm was set for 1 a. m., but had failed to work.

SEARCH FOR MURDERER

Boston Police Are Busy on the Case

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—The local police were still seeking today for some trace of the self-confessed boy murderer who has several times written to the police of Buffalo telling of crimes he claims to have committed. Acting on information that the man was in Boston as late as Saturday, when a postcard was mailed from this city, efforts to locate him were redoubled today. Letter carriers and postal clerks throughout the Boston district were instructed to keep a close watch for any further letters that might be sent from here, and policemen and postoffice inspectors were detailed for duty at the several stations where previous communications were mailed.

THE WAR WITH TURKEY

ly retreat in case of defeat, has been cut, are fighting desperately. During the first day's battle 250 Servians were killed and wounded.

The country around the fortress is a morass and the attackers are frequently up to their knees in mud. In spite of the difficulties, however, the Servians succeeded in a series of night attacks in carrying the two important heights of Oblakovo and Kochistu, 3600 feet high.

THE DEATHS FROM CHOLERA ARE REPORTED TO BE ABOUT 6000 DAILY

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The liveliest imagination would be unable to depict the frightful conditions existing among the Turkish troops at Hadenkeui on the lines of Tchatalja, according to Major Zenger, the war correspondent of the Tageblatt. He says thousands of dead and dying lie along the road. Men with stretchers are engaged day and night gathering the dead for burial and the wounded for transport to the hospitals.

He continues:

"Wherever I looked I saw the distorted faces and stiffened hands of the wounded stretched forward appealing for help. The nearer I approached the railroad station the sadder grew the picture.

"The railroad station itself is just a field full of dead. I walked among piles of corpses and among masses of groaning sick men who will soon find relief in death.

"A train about to start was overcrowded with cholera stricken men. Many of those in the cars died soon after they got on board.

"According to authentic information the deaths from cholera number 5000 daily along the line of Tchatalja."

Another despatch from Kustendji, Roumania, says a thousand cholera cases and 200 deaths occurred daily among the Turkish reserves at San Stefano, where the sick and the dead lie indiscriminately on the street.

BANDS OF ARNAUT TRIBESMEN ARE RAIDING AND PILLAGING VILLAGES

BELGRADE, Servia, Nov. 18.—Bands of Arnaut tribesmen, armed with rifles and in possession of two machine guns taken from the Turkish troops during their flight after the battle of Kirchevo are raiding and pillaging the surrounding villages and devastating the country as far as Gostivar to the southwest of Uskup. The Servian commander has sent out patrols of troops to search for the looters.

The Turkish troops before leaving Prisrend sold their rifles and ammunition for a few cents or bartered them away for coffee, sugar or bread and in this way many of the tribesmen came into possession of arms.

FIRING WAS HEARD THIS MORNING FROM THE DIRECTION OF TCHATALJA

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—Firing was audible this morning from the direction of the Tchatalja lines. It is thought probable, however, that the great battle begun yesterday continues but the direction of the wind prevents the roar of the cannon being heard here. Detachments of bluejackets and marines were landed from the warships of the international squadron early today. They occupied the foreign embassies, consulates and postoffices, the banks, the hospitals and the schools of the respective colonies. The landing of the foreign sailors attracted considerable attention, crowds of Turkish inhabitants gathering in front of the embassies and looking with curiosity at the men's rifles piled at the entrances.

BRITISH BLUEJACKETS HAVE BEEN LOANED TO GUARD U. S. EMBASSY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—A detachment of 100 British bluejackets has been lent by the British cruiser Weymouth to guard the United States embassy as the American station ship Tennessee has been hallooed to duty on the Upper Bosphorus and the American cruisers are not expected to arrive here before the end of the month.

AUSTRO-SERVIAN SITUATION IS MADE MORE SERIOUS BY TONE OF THE PRESS

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—The Austro-Servian situation has been rendered much more serious by the tone of the Servian press in its denunciation of Austria. This has been added to by the reported bad treatment meted out by the Servians to the Austrian consuls in Albanian towns, who assert that they were prevented from leaving their posts for fear they might disclose the ill treatment of the Albanian inhabitants by the Servian conquerors.

Public opinion here tends more and more to demand that the situation shall be definitely cleared up.

OTTOMON GOVERNMENT MAKES A FRESH APPEAL FOR CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Ottoman government today made a fresh appeal this time through the Russian ambassador at Constantinople, for the cessation of hostilities, according to a news agency despatch received here this evening from the Turkish capital.

TWO MEN INJURED

One Received a Fracture of the Leg and the Other Was Hurt About the Ankle

Hugh Leary, residing at 68 C street and employed by Douglas, the contractor, was painfully injured this morning when he fell from a staging where he was at work at the corner of Hollyrood avenue and Laurel street. He received a fracture of the right leg and was removed to the Lowell hospital in the ambulance.

At 11.25 o'clock this forenoon the ambulance was called to the Tremont & Suffolk mill, where a man named Edw. Lynn, aged about 50 years, had painfully injured his right ankle while at his work. The injured man was removed to his home, 19 James street.

WITH THE BOWLERS

SWEDISH M. E. TEAM WON IN BARACA LEAGUE

Making Room Team Trounces the Stock Room Five in Shoe Shop Bowling League

The First Swedish M. E. church bowling team won three of the four points from the Highland M. E. church team in a game in the Baraca league on the Crescent alleys Saturday night. H. Johnson of the winning team was high man, having a single of 115 and a triple of 284, while Swanson of the same team was a close second, being but two points behind in both single and triple. The Swedish church team got a poor start and lost the first string, but after that got into the running and walked away from its opponent.

The Making Room and Stock Room teams of the Mears, Feeley & Adams bowling league, met on the alleys Saturday night, the former team winning with ease. H. Scobie of the winning team was high man. The scores:

LEGAL NOTICES

Under authority of Section 40, Chapter 590, of the Acts of 1908, I, Walter P. Wiley of Lowell, Mass., do hereby give notice that I have made written application to the Lowell Institution for Savings, Lowell, Mass., for a duplicate deposit book of Account No. 104629, standing in the name of Walter P. Wiley in trust for Mary J. Wiley, and which said deposit book is lost or destroyed.

WALTER P. WILEY.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

To all persons interested in the estate of John J. Sheehan, late of Westford in said County, deceased:

Whereas Thomas J. Enright, the administrator of the estate of said deceased, has presented for allowance, the account of his administration upon the estate of said deceased:

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Lowell, in said County, on the nineteenth day of November, A. D. 1912, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.

And said administrator is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this fourth day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Catherine A. Mooring, of Malden, in said County, that she was lawfully married to William F. Mooring, now of Londonderry, Nova Scotia, at Londonderry, Nova Scotia, on the eighteenth day of May, A. D. 1904, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said William F., never lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth; that your libellant has lived at said Malden for more than five years last preceding the filing of this libel; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said William F., being wholly regardless of the same, at said Londonderry, on or about April 21, 1905, utterly deserted your libellant, and has continued such desertion to the date hereof, being for a period of more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. That said William F. has contracted gross and confirmed habits of intoxication from the voluntary and excessive use of intoxicating liquor.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said William F., and that she may be allowed to resume her maiden name of Catherine A. McLaughlin.

Dated this fifth day of November, A. D. 1912.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, November 5, A. D. 1912.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

Attest,

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents William J. Driscoll, of Cambridge, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Edith A. P. Driscoll, now of 611 Grant Ave., in the city of Denver, County of Denver, in the State of Colorado, at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on the second day of March, A. D. 1900, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Edith A. P. Driscoll lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at said Boston, at Watertown, in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and at Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Edith A. P. Driscoll, being wholly regardless of the same, at said Cambridge, on or about the first day of October, A. D. 1905, without just cause, wilfully and utterly deserted your libellant, which desertion has continued from such time to the day hereof, being more than three consecutive years prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Edith A. P. Driscoll.

Dated this seventh day of November, A. D. 1912.

WILLIAM J. DRISCOLL.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, November 11, A. D. 1912.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of January next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

Attest,

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

LEGAL NOTICES

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Probate Court.

To the devisees, legatees, and all other persons interested in the estate of Michael Murphy, late of Lowell, in said County, deceased, testate:

Whereas a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration with the will annexed, on the estate of said deceased not already administered, to Annie T. Murphy, of Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, without requiring surety on her bond, or to some other suitable person.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Lowell, in said County of Middlesex, on the nineteenth day of November, A. D. 1912, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all devisees and legatees named in said will, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this ninth day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents James B. Knowlton, of Everett, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Marie L. Knowlton, now of Milwaukee, in the State of Wisconsin, at Janesville, in said State of Wisconsin, on the sixth day of October, A. D. 1902, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Marie L. Knowlton lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Chelsea, in the County of Suffolk; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Marie L. Knowlton, being wholly regardless of the same, has been guilty of cruel and abusive treatment of your libellant.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Marie L. Knowlton.

Dated this fifth day of November, A. D. 1912.

JAMES B. KNOWLTON.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, November 6, A. D. 1912.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

OUTLOOK FOR TURKEYS

Indications Point to a Shortage of Supply

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Every indication points toward a shortage in the supply of Thanksgiving turkeys and high prices are expected to prevail. A late spring and a warm fall delaying the growth of turkeys are assigned as the cause but an accurate line on the quality and quantity of the birds that grace every New Englander's Thanksgiving table cannot be determined until later in the week.

Dealers, however, are unanimous in predicting that turkeys will be much cheaper at Christmas than at Thanksgiving. At present, a good Vermont or other northern turkey fetches from 33 to 35 cents a pound, while his western brother brings from 28 to 30 cents.

A canvass by a reporter through the market district brought out that while the dealers are not pessimistic they all fear the supply of turkeys will be short and that their general quality will not be up to the average. If their fears are borne out this means that turkeys will bring fancy prices. Northern turkeys, headed and drawn, will sell for from 38 to 40 cents, and western turkeys will retail at 33 cents.

The fears of a short market and a poorer quality of bird are directly resultant from the knowledge of the influence of bad weather in general on market fowl. Turkeys had a retarded start in the late spring with its bad weather. Had cold weather predominated to any extent during the past month this would have been offset. Warm weather prevailed, giving the birds the opportunity to race around, thus preventing them from taking on the weight necessary for the holiday market.

This means that the plump and heavy-weight birds are apt to be very scarce, and that while the market may be well supplied with turkeys, the chances of their being lightweights are very good. Dealers say that if Thanksgiving were only three weeks farther off, giving the birds time to obtain their full maturity, every one would have good turkeys at less than the present prices.

But this has been the wailing prophecy of every year with the advent of the holiday season. The turkeys will not start to pour into the market for a few days as yet. Even then, when the dealers have their fingers on the pulse of the market a warm spell would send their calculations awry by western turkeys arriving in poor condition.

Anniversary mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock at St. Patrick's church tomorrow morning for the repose of the soul of the late Mary A. Shanley.

WILSON IS IN BERMUDA

Pres.-Elect Was Given Great Welcome

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 18.—President-elect Wilson and his family on board the steamer Bermudian arrived off the coast of Bermuda this morning and are now proceeding to Grassy Bay. Alderman Black, representing the corporation of the city of Hamilton, went out on board a private steamer to invite Mr. Wilson and his party to accompany him to Hamilton, where an address of welcome will be presented. Large crowds of people lined the streets and wharves awaiting the arrival of the president-elect and all public and private buildings are decorated with flags and bunting.

Hurstholme, the winter residence of Mrs. Bordon Harriman has been offered to Mr. Wilson during his stay here. The weather is charming.

TYPHOID FEVER CASES

Six cases of typhoid fever have been reported at the office of the board of health within a week. All of these cases, it was stated today, are being treated at the Corporation hospital in Merrimack and Pawtucket streets. It was stated at the hospital today that none of the cases is very serious. The origin of the disease at this particular time is not known. A year ago this month there were five cases of typhoid fever in Lowell. The fact that the six cases now under treatment developed within a day or two of each other has alarmed the health authorities and they are making every effort to get at the root of the trouble. It was reported that at the Corporation hospital nurses were sick with typhoid fever, but this report was denied by the hospital superintendent, Dr. Clark, today.

Scarlet Fever Disappearing

The number of cases of scarlet fever is decreasing rapidly. During the month of August there were 30 cases reported. Fifty-five cases were reported in September and 116 cases in October. During the first half of this month only 37 cases have been reported.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Observed By Mr. and Mrs. Farrell

Mr. and Mrs. William Farrell of Kenwood celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary at Kenwood yesterday. Many relatives and friends were present and a good old-fashioned dinner was prepared by Mrs. Farrell and served to her guests. The real date of the anniversary was Wednesday, the 13th.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrell are well known in Kenwood, as they have lived there for 13 years. Mrs. Farrell was born in Maine, April 30, 1844. Her maiden name was Theresa Luella Bridges and she is a descendant of one of the early settlers who made America their home in pioneer days, being a direct descendant of John Clarke, who was the first settler in Campbello, Me., going there in 1760." When the Farrels first moved to Kenwood the place was a desolate one; there were no other inhabitants and the life was that of the typical pioneer. Since that time, however, a large number of cottages have been established and several people remain there throughout the year. The name of the Farrell home is "Penaquon," which is an old Indian name, meaning "Rest in Peace," this being the name of a lake in Maine. Mrs. Farrell is one of the few women who remain who are able to skilfully do the work of a man. She is able to plow and manage horses. In fact she is as capable as any farmer of today.

Mr. Farrell is a veteran of the Civil war, having served throughout the war on the northern side, and he has several scars on his arm today which were received at that time. Mr. Farrell was born in Maine in 1844, and he married Mrs. Farrell Nov. 13, 1867, and after their marriage they moved to Princeton, Me., moving to North Andover in 1886 and from there moved to Kenwood just 13 years ago.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Farrell are the picture of health and their only regret is that Kenwood will soon be built up so that the outdoor life that they are now leading will be impossible.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF WIFE

Angus Steele Held By the East Boston Police Denies He Killed Woman

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Angus Steele, aged 36, of 18 Bremen street, East Boston, was charged with the murder of his wife, Jennie, at the East Boston police station about 6 o'clock last night, following the report of Medical Examiner Magrath, who had performed an autopsy.

The medical examiner discovered that the woman, who was 32 years old, had sustained a broken rib, a ruptured liver and evidence of an internal hemorrhage from injuries which Dr. Magrath thought could have been caused by a kick. Steele had been detained at Division 7 since yesterday morning awaiting the results of the examiners' inquiry.

When the medical examiner's report reached the station house Steele was being put through a rigid examination in Capt. Brickley's private office by Lieut. Clark and Sergt. Sweeney. Upon receiving the report from Dr. Magrath the officers preferred a charge of murder.

About 11 o'clock Saturday morning Steele reported to the police that he [illegible] his wife dead in bed at their [illegible] and told the police that [illegible] afternoon his [illegible] Lizzie, who lives on [illegible] Steele said his wife arrived home [illegible] and [illegible] said she was [illegible] manner. Steele [illegible] her about coming [illegible] condition.

Steele said that he went to bed after talking to her, she going to bed about an hour after Liz. In the bed with Steele and his wife were their two children. Steele said he awoke about 11 o'clock Saturday and found his wife dead.

A Mrs. Fosberg, who lives in the neighborhood, heard screams coming from the direction of the Steele home about 8 o'clock Friday night, according to the police.

Steele and his wife have been living at 18 Bremen street about five months. They lived in the rear, having a bedroom and a kitchen. Mrs. Steele's maiden name was O'Malley. She was born in County Cork, Ire., about 33 years ago.

They have a boy, 2 years old, and a daughter, 3 years old. Both children were turned over to Steele's brother, who lives on Border street near Lexington street, East Boston. Steele has no permanent occupation, doing odd jobs at moving and longshore. For the past few weeks Steele has not done much of any work.

HEIRS FOR $100,000

New York Attorney Seeking Relatives of Henry D. Winters, Who Died in the West

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Nelson H. Tunnicliff, a lawyer at 20 Liberty street, is searching for the heirs of Henry D. Winters, who died in the west June 29, 1911, leaving an estate of $100,000. As Winters died intestate, unless some of his relatives claim his property, mostly real estate, it will revert to the state.

A woman who was employed as Winters' housekeeper, and is a creditor of his estate, filed an application and was appointed administratrix. Mr. Tunnicliff learned from some of Winters' acquaintances that he had told them he was born near Albany and had been twice married, his first wife having died in New York many years ago, and that he had a daughter and grandchildren there.

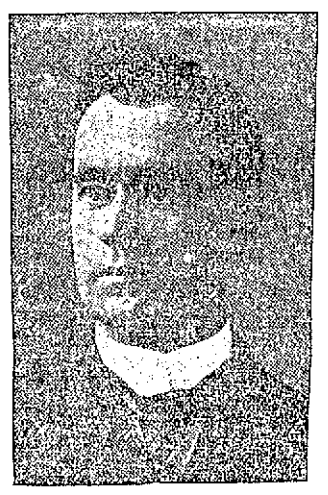

It was said that Winters took as his second wife Alida E. Shufelt, who was born in New York state, and that one daughter, Alice, was born of this marriage. With his wife and child Winters visited New York in 1881 and remained for one night with Ernest E. Shufelt, his wife's brother, and about the same time he visited a cousin of his wife in Albany.

Man Blown to Pieces

WESTMINSTER, Nov. 18.—Lieut. Gen. Miles, retired, saw one of his farmhands blown to pieces, and another severely injured in a dynamite explosion on his farm in this town today. The dead man was Fred Daly of Westminster. W. C. Melvin of Leominster sustained a fractured arm and was badly shaken up. General Miles was several hundred yards away and was not injured. The men were blowing up stumps.

Miss J. M. Fennell of this city is visiting friends in Waltham.

DALY
FOR
Alderman

The fairest and most intelligent way of judging the future is by the past.

The fairest and most intelligent test of what a man will do as Alderman is what he has done in the public positions he has held before.

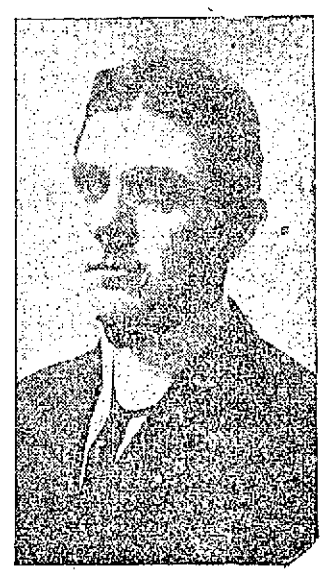

John W. Daly has served five years in the City Council. His service there was marked by faithfulness and efficiency, by honesty of intention and fidelity to principle.

By this service he has gained the knowledge and experience of municipal affairs, which a man should have to intelligently and successfully perform the duties of Alderman.

He has never sought office for the emoluments and he has never yet held an office to which was attached a salary.

"In aspiring to the position of Alderman," says John W. Daly, "It seems to me that it is necessary and essential that a man should have such practical knowledge of municipal affairs and such conception of municipal problems as shall enable him to serve the city well and be a credit to the people who place their trust in him."

In reply to Commissioner Brown's criticism invites comparison of his administration of the street department in 1905, 1906, 1907 or 1908 with that of Commissioner Brown this year.

He asks which is the more efficient, the more economic or the more progressive.

DO YOU KNOW, MR. COMMISSIONER BROWN, THAT THIS YEAR, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE HISTORY OF LOWELL, THE STREET DEPARTMENT HAS MADE NEITHER A SEWER ASSESSMENT NOR A STREET ASSESSMENT?

Why have you permitted such a condition?

Is it because your office force, now larger than ever, did not have time to attend to this important source of revenue?

Tell the people, then, Mr. Commissioner Brown, why no assessment has been made.

CHARLES PARKER, 13 Second St.
Chairman Morse Campaign Com.

To the Voters of Lowell

I AM A CANDIDATE FOR THE SCHOOL BOARD. I HAVE BEEN A RESIDENT OF LOWELL FOR MORE THAN 30 YEARS. I AM ENGAGED IN BUSINESS IN LOWELL—AND I AM A REAL ESTATE TAXPAYER. IF I AM NOMINATED I WILL BE ELECTED. AND WHEN ELECTED, I WILL GIVE TO THE PEOPLE OF LOWELL A FAIR AND IMPARTIAL SERVICE—HAVING IN MIND AT ALL TIMES THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE CITY—ITS PEOPLE AND ITS SCHOOLS.

CRASH!

CHARLES J. MORSE stands upon his platform—he does not waver—HE BELIEVES IN THE ESTABLISHMENT BY LAW OF A MUNICIPAL COAL YARD—For he knows that the city CAN SAVE money by such an institution. He knows that if the City has its own coal pocket—and purchases coal direct from the mines, that the City will be free from any combination—and that also in times such as we are now encountering, the City can put itself in such a position that its people shall not have to beg the combination to sell them coal—He knows it Mr. Voter—and you know it, too.

ASK THE BOARD OF TRADE!

ASK MR. LAJOIE, who tried to sell coal to the people of Lowell at a fair price, but was stopped by the combination!

ASK MR. BRADY, who tried to do likewise!

THINK FOR YOURSELF MR. VOTER.

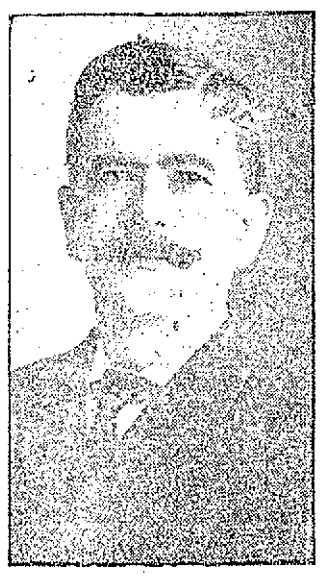

Mr. Voter, do you think that if the City establishes its own coal pocket, dealers outside of the combination will have a chance to sell coal in Lowell—under a fair competition?

MR. MORSE believes in the establishment of a permanent force of City Employees, so does any man who believes in good service.

MR. MORSE believes in Good Roads—Good Streets and Good Sewers—The best that the city can afford.

CHARLES PARKER, 13 Second St.,

James J. Gallagher
Alderman

A practical and successful business man. A man, who, when in office conducted the city business in a clean, honest, straightforward manner with ability.

A man who by thorough application to his duties, acquired a very practical knowledge of the management of the several departments thereby fitting himself for the proper administration of any department in the city.

A man whose ability and fairness in the conduct of business, as chairman of the Board of Aldermen, won many favorable comments from those who had business before the Board of Aldermen in 1911. We therefore have confidence in presenting the name of JAMES J. GALLAGHER as a Candidate for Alderman because we know his ability, fairness and honesty properly fit him to make a competent member of the municipal council and hence we urge you to vote for him.
